20TH YEAR. NO. 60. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1903. TWO CENTS.

FRANCHISE IS GRANTED TO NEW STREET RAILWAY

C. A. Smith Authorized to Construct a Line to the East End and a Branch to the Northside.

THE SCHEDULE AND ROUTES DECIDED UPON

A franchise granting C. A. Smith the right to construct, maintain and operate an electric street railway from the central portion of the city to the East End via Pennsylvania avenue, with a branch line to the Northside, was placed upon its third reading and final passage by eight members of council at an adjourned meeting held last evening.

The members present at the meeting were: President Nice, McConnell, Marshall, Bullock, Johnston, Barlow, Horwell and Orr. As in almost every meeting that he has ever attended Dr. Marshall, who was present for the first time in several weeks, owing to sickness, had the floor fully two-thirds of the time. After the franchise was read for the second time he raised a vigorous protest to it being passed under the suspension of the rules until certain amendments were granted by the applicant.

Considerable time was consumed in arranging the amendments to suit all parties concerned, but after it was once completed the franchise went through on rollers. The amendments inserted and mutually agreed upon were in a concise form as follows: That the railway company shall pave two feet on either side of the track and keep it in repair wherever the road runs on public paved property; that the company shall keep the surface between the tracks in such condition that it will not be a hindrance to any vehicle, and that at crossings planking must be laid; that the poles erected along the route shall be 25 feet in height; that the cars shall be run on the main line on a schedule of every 15 minutes and on the branch lines on a schedule of every 30 minutes; that the cars shall be run continuously from 5:30 a. m. until 12 p. m.; that a guard rail shall be placed along the line where it is parallel with Pennsylvania avenue or where the board of public service may direct; that incandescent lights be placed along the route at every fourth pole and at all crossings.

All this done Dr. Marshall was satisfied and made a motion that the ordinance be placed on its second reading. This motion carried and Mr. Bullock made a motion that it be placed on its third reading and final passage. It also carried.

When the ordinance authorizing the People's Light & Power company to erect poles and all other necessary supports for the wiring or heating,

NEW RAILROAD

Col. Frease Ordered to Get in Readiness to Build Canton-East Liverpool Line.

Cleveland, March 12.—Captain Harry Frease, of Canton, announced yesterday, following a trip to Baltimore, that he has been instructed to purchase the right of way and get everything in readiness for the construction of the Canton-East Liverpool railway. Mr. Frease has been the moving spirit in this road, and while at Baltimore held a conference with B. & O. officials. The connecting link will be built by the B. & O. company and the Pennsylvania company will use it for freight traffic from a point along the Cleveland & Pittsburg division, either at Bayard or East Rochester. The railroad will connect with the C. & P. at Smith's Ferry.

This line will give the B. & O. a short line between Pittsburg and Chicago by way of Warwick. Canton and East Liverpool parties promoted the branch and secured valuable rights of way. The balance of rights will be secured in the near future.

Negotiations were opened with the B. & O. a year ago and that company will push the work during this spring and summer. The road will give Canton a trunk line east and west and add to her railroad facilities considerably.

THE MYSTERY IS NOW SOLVED

Headless Man Found on the Railroad a Month Ago Was Stephen Wallace.

HOME WAS NEAR MONACA

Two Relatives, One a Brother, Came Here Today And Identified the Dead Man From the Effects and Clothing Left.

The headless body found on the railroad track in the West End during the early hours of Wednesday morning, February 11, which lay for four days without identification in the undertaking establishment of C. N. Miller, and which was later interred in the potters' field at Spring Grove cemetery, was identified this afternoon by Jesse Wallace, of Monaca, and Harry Wallace, of Industry.

These gentlemen by an examination of the clothing found near the place where the body was mangled, pronounced the dead man Stephen Wallace, who was about 26 years of age and who was born and reared on a farm a few miles back in the country from Monaca, Beaver county, Pa. They were positive in their identification and steps will be taken by them to have the body removed to the family burial ground in North Branch cemetery.

Jesse Wallace says the dead man was his brother and a cousin to Harry Wallace. The last seen of Stephen was by the latter, who had a short conversation with him in Pittsburg a few days after Christmas. Harry was working on the towboat D. B. Wood when Stephen unexpectedly appeared, and was well dressed. He had not been seen for several months by any of his relatives and in explanation of his absence stated that he had been doing as he always had done, following the life of a hobo. However, he had worked a few months on the river, the only occupation he had ever followed, and had in his possession over $300.

Harry invited him to make the trip on the boat with him, but Stephen stated that he had too much money. A few hours later he returned to the boat with his grip and said that he would return later to go out on the trip. He never returned.

The clothes that he wore the last time he was seen by his cousin were the same found in the grip on the railroad track.

The two gentlemen arrived in the city this afternoon and applied at the mayor's office to get any information possible in regard to the disposition made of the body. They said that a letter written by Mrs. Miller to Dr. Scroggs, of Beaver, and given them an idea that the body might be that of their relative. Mayor Davidson turned them over to the care of Officer Aufderheide, and they were taken to Miller's, but were unable to get any information of value there. The clothes had been left at a saloon on Franklin street. When taken there the cousin at once recognized the suit, both by color and a slit in the left trouser's leg which, he said, was there when he last saw the clothes.

Although confident that they had made the identification complete they wanted to be certain and then went to the fire station, where Officer Woods had several of the articles found on the man, and they were also identified. One of them was a knife, another a comb and a pair of gloves. A day book containing the name of a man whose address was Congo was also recognized by Jesse Wallace. He said that last summer he was working

A MOUNTAIN DESPERADO REPORTED IN THIS CITY

He Has a Private Graveyard and a Record to Match That of a Dime Novel Hero.

ELOPED WITH MOTHER OF SEVEN CHILDREN

If the allegations made by James Calfee, of Pulaski City, Va., be true there is now a desperado roaming the streets of the city, one who owns a private burial ground for the interment of those who cross his path or in any manner provoke him. The number of men that he has sent to the happy hunting ground can only be guessed at. For years he has been the terror of the mountainous district in which he was reared, and should he strive to maintain his record in East Liverpool the quietude prevailing for so long will surely come to an abrupt end.

It was with the hope of recovering his wife who deserted him several months ago and came to this city with the wild mountaineer that Calfee imparted the intelligence of the man's location. In a letter he states that he and his wife lived for years in the unsettled regions of Virginia and that to them were born seven children. The wife's affections were won by the desperate man, and from that time on their home was one of turmoil. Many hand-to-hand encounters resulted over the affair, and as a climax to one of these fights the bad man shot a cow, dog and a boy, all belonging to Calfee, and also, after stealthily approaching the house, fired through a window at the latter, narrowly missing him.

The trouble around the little home finally assumed such proportions that the wife and her illegitimate lover decided to abandon the spot, and, taking the entire family of children, ran away to a rudely constructed log cabin, situated in a dense forest 12 miles from other settlers. In this cabin they lived for a while, but very destitute, and one day not long ago the man, woman and one of the children, a young girl, deserted the remaining six, leaving them to starve in the cabin and came to East Liverpool.

After the trio had been gone a few days, the husband, in making a search for his family, found the six little ones huddled together in a pitiable condition at the cabin. Calfee learned of their coming to this city and has applied to the police of Pulaski City for aid in securing the return of his wife, but thought it best to ascertain something definite regarding their location before sending officers on the mission. He thinks that the woman is working in a local restaurant and that the man is living with her. He states that a more desperate man never lived and that the lives of any community are in danger when he is around.

JOHN ALLISON 'AGAIN IN JAIL

BAD RECORD MADE WORSE

Summer will be fading when John Allison, the notorious horse and chicken thief, roams the streets of this city again a free man. He was arrested last night by Officers Dawson and McDermott on a serious charge. Pleading guilty this morning before the mayor, he was fined $50 and costs, which, in default of payment, will insure his incarceration in the Canton workhouse for almost six months.

John was drunk when taken in charge by the officers but it was not for that offense alone that he was escorted to the city jail. Two little boys made information against him to the police stating that he had enticed them into Diamond alley and attempted a most despicable act. They became much frightened and after a struggle succeeded in breaking away from the depraved man. He acknowledged at his hearing that he was drunk but pleaded ignorance of any other offense and offered a pathetic appeal for a light sentence.

He said that he had tried to act like a man since his release from the county jail where he spent most of last summer under suspicion of stealing a horse from East End parties, but that yesterday, having an attack of rheumatism, he concluded to take a drink of whisky, having heard that the spirits were good for the malady. One drink tasted like another one and he finally lost all control of himself. However, he was on his way home when apprehended. It was his intention to go there and sober up. For that purpose he had bought two half pints and had them with him at the time of arrest. With longing eyes he stared at the two bottles on the mayor's desk when arraigned. After he had received the long sentence he said:

"That is an awful long time for me to be locked up. I am terribly unlucky. There is mighty little of next summer that I will see. Say now, as I won't get any more to drink for so long and as I have got a terrible headache, can't I have a little drink "

He was allowed a nip and went back to his cell in a happy mood, notwithstanding the uninviting future staring him in the face.

DUVALL'S CHANCES CONSIDERED GOOD

Senator Archer Predicts That the Steubenville Man Will Be Nominated.

Columbus, March 12.—(Special)—Senators Frank B. Archer, of Bellaire, and Charles C. Connell, of Lisbon, were at the state capital yesterday on business of a personal nature. Senator Archer gave it as his opinion that Hon. M. N. Duvall, of Steubenville, who is a candidate for senator, would get the Jefferson county delegates notwithstanding the efforts of the bosses of the county, who want another candidate, Justin A. Moore, of Steubenville, nominated as the county's choice. The senator met Duvall in Wellsville several days ago and was told by him that his candidacy is progressing finely.

Duvall is one of the senatorial candidates entered in Columbiana county for one of the two nominations to be made. His good record as a legislator and his wide acquaintance in Columbiana county will give him quite an advantage over outside candidates in that county.

MORE MONEY FOR MRS. LAIRD

THE FUND TODAY HAD REACHED THE SUM OF $94.

A Prospect That Other Generous People Will Swell the Contributions.

The subscription fund for Mrs Neil Laird and her children was swelled today by contributions to the amount of $11, all of which were voluntary given. If the people who have given their assistance could realize the distress and misery a few dollars has relieved they would feel that charity is the greatest of the three virtues.

Other than the sorrow over the death of a husband whom she dearly loved, Mrs. Laird has been greatly worried lest her poverty would lose to her the children who are now her sole comfort. The struggle to support them looked hard and she was doubtful of the outcome. It would have made her load of misery complete had they been taken away. But, thanks to a generous people, this latter source of sorrow has been removed by the assistance already rendered. The small sum that will be raised, if properly hoarded, will serve to keep the family circle intact until the older of the children are large enough to help the hardworking mother.

The fund is now as follows:

Previously reported	$83 00
Cash paid News Review	5 00

SPECIAL OFFICER ON HIS TRAIL

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SHOWMAN THE OBJECT OF PURSUIT.

Salem Township Man Says the Professor Left Without Settling Board Bill.

Lisbon, March 12. — (Special)—George W. Long, of Salem township, had himself sworn in as a special officer yesterday by Justice J. M. Dickinson and is now on the trail of a traveling showman giving his name as Prof. Haggerman and his place of residence as Indianapolis. Haggerman is said to be a Christian Science lecturer who has been giving stereopticon entertainments throughout the county and quartering himself on the farmers for a nominal consideration.

Mr. Long says the professor came to his neighborhood in Salem township about the first of March and while giving entertainments in the school house near by, procured board for himself and two horses with Long. Haggerman was at his place with his horses for eleven meals and two nights' lodging, but when he came to go refused to pay his host more than $1.50 in settlement of the entire bill, Mr. Long says.

Long brought an action in Justice Dickinson's court and had an attachment issued against the professor to recover more. Haggerman eluded the local constable at Elkrun and made a jump to the northern part of the county. Learning that he was to show at the Humtown school house between Columbiana and New Waterford, Mr. Long went to that vicinity today to try to find him and serve the attachment. Haggerman is said to have used the same tactics in settling for his board in other places where he had stopped.

FATALLY CRUSHED BENEATH A LOG

Young Man Near Hookstown Found Unconscious After Hours of Suffering.

COLLAR BONE FRACTURED

A terrible accident happened to Oscar Rearick, employed at the sawmill on the Nelson farm, near Hookstown, yesterday afternoon, while Rearick was engaged in hauling logs from the woods to the sawmill. The ground over which the team was passing was very uneven, and Rearick had his arm on the log holding it steady, when the chain fastening it in some manner became loosened.

The log fell heavily across the unfortunate man's breast, breaking his collar bone and injuring him internally. The man had been under the log for quite a time, the team did not stop but went on to the sawmill, where the absence of the driver was then noticed.

The men at the mill, knowing something was wrong hurried back and extricated Rearick, who was unconscious from his awful position and carried him to the nearby house of George Allison and summoned a physician. The extent of his injuries are not known, but it is thought he cannot recover.

He said that he had tried to act like a man since his release from the county jail where he spent most of last summer unler suspicion of stealing a horse from East End parties, but that yesterlay, having an attack of rheumatism, he concluded to take a drink of whisky, having heard that the spirits were good for the malady. One drink tasted like another one and he finally lost all control of himself. However, he was on his way home when apprehended. It was his intention to go there and sober up. For that purpose he had bought two half pints and had them with him at the time of arrest. With longing eyes he stared at the two bottles on the mayor's desk when arraigned. After he had received the long sentence he said:

"That is an awful long time for me to be locked up. I am terribly unlucky. There is mighty little of next summer that I will see. Say now, as I won't get any more to drink for so long and as I have got a terrible headache, can't I have a little drink "

He was allowed a nip and went back to his cell in a happy mood, notwithstanding the uninviting future staring him in the face.

Senator Archer Predicts That the Steubenville Man Will Be Nominated.

Columbus, March 12.—(Special)—Senators Frank B. Archer, of Bellaire, and Charles C. Connell, of Lisbon, were at the state capital yesterday on business of a personal nature. Senator Archer gave it as his opinion that Hon. M. N. Duvall, of Steubenville, who is a candidate for senator, would get the Jefferson county delegates notwithstanding the efforts of the bosses of the county, who want another candidate, Justin A. Moore, of Steubenville, nominated as the county's choice. The senator met Duvall in Wellsville several days ago and was told by him that his candidacy is progressing finely.

Duvall is one of the senatorial candidates entered in Columbiana county for one of the two nominations to be made. His good record as a legislator and his wide acquaintance in Columbiana county will give him quite an advantage over outside candidates in that county.

MORE MONEY FOR MRS. LAIRD

A Prospect That Other Generous People Will Swell the Contributions.

The subscription fund for Mrs Neil Laird and her children was swelled today by contributions to the amount of $11, all of which were voluntary given. If the people who have given their assistance could realize the distress and misery a few dollars has relieved they would feel that charity is the greatest of the three virtues.

Other than the sorrow over the death of a husband whom she dearly loved, Mrs. Laird has been greatly worried lest her poverty would lose to her the children who are now her sole comfort. The struggle to support them looked hard and she was doubtful of the outcome. It would have made her load of misery complete had they been taken away. But, thanks to a generous people, this latter source of sorrow has been removed by the assistance already rendered. The sum sum that will be raised, if properly hoarded, will serve to keep the family circle intact until the older of the children are large enough to help the hardworking mother.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SHOWMAN THE OBJECT OF PURSUIT.

Salem Township Man Says the Professor Left Without Settling Board Bill.

Lisbon, March 12. — (Special)—George W. Long, of Salem township, had himself sworn in as a special officer yesterday by Justice J. M. Dickinson and is now on the trail of a traveling showman giving his name as Prof. Haggerman and his place of residence as Indianapolis. Haggerman is said to be a Christian Science lecturer who has been giving stereopticon entertainments throughout the county and quartering himself on the farmers for a nominal consideration.

Mr. Long says the professor came to his neighborhood in Salem township about the first of March and while giving entertainments in the school house near by, procured board for himself and two horses with Long. Haggerman was at his place with his horses for eleven meals and two nights' lodging, but when he came to go refused to pay his host more than $1.50 in settlement of the entire bill, Mr. Long says.

Long brought an action in Justice Dickinson's court and had an attachment issued against the professor to recover more. Haggerman eluded the local constable at Elkrun and made a jump to the northern part of the county. Learning that he was to show at the Humtown school house between Columbiana and New Waterford, Mr. Long went to that vicinity today to try to find him and serve the attachment. Haggerman is said to have used the same tactics in settling for his board in other places where he had stopped.

FATALLY CRUSHED BENEATH A LOG

Young Man Near Hookstown Found Unconscious After Hours of Suffering.

COLLAR BONE FRACTURED

A terrible accident happened to Oscar Rearick, employed at the sawmill on the Nelson farm, near Hookstown, yesterday afternoon, while Rearick was engaged in hauling logs from the woods to the sawmill. The ground over which the team was passing was very uneven, and Rearick had his arm on the log holding it steady, when the chain fastening it in some manner became loosened.

The log fell heavily across the unfortunate man's breast, breaking his collar bone and injuring him internally. The man had been under the log for quite a time, the team did not stop but went on to the sawmill, where the absence of the driver was then noticed.

The men at the mill, knowing something was wrong hurried back and extricated Rearick, who was unconscious from his awful position and carried him to the nearby house of George Allison and summoned a physician. The extent of his injuries are not known, but it is thought he cannot recover.

Rearick is 23 years of age and unmarried. His home is at Bolivar, O. The young man is well known in Chester.

FRANCHISE IS GRANTED TO NEW STREET RAILWAY

C. A. Smith Authorized to Construct a Line to the East End and a Branch to the Northside.

THE SCHEDULE AND ROUTES DECIDED UPON

A franchise granting C. A. Smith the right to construct, maintain and operate an electric street railway from the central portion of the city to the East End via Pennsylvania avenue, with a branch line to the Northside, was placed upon its third reading and final passage by eight members of council at an adjourned meeting held last evening.

The members present at the meeting were: President Nice, McConnell, Marshall, Bullock, Johnston, Barlow, Horwell and Orr. As in almost every meeting that he has ever attended Dr. Marshall, who was present for the first time in several weeks, owing to sickness, had the floor fully two-thirds of the time. After the franchise was read for the second time he raised a vigorous protest to it being passed under the suspension of the rules until certain amendments were granted by the applicant.

Considerable time was consumed in arranging the amendments to suit all parties concerned, but after it was once completed the franchise went through on rollers. The amendments inserted and mutually agreed upon were in a concise form as follows: That the railway company shall pave two feet on either side of the track and keep it in repair wherever the road runs on public paved property; that the company shall keep the surface between the tracks in such condition that it will not be a hindrance to any vehicle, and that at crossings planking must be laid; that the poles erected along the route shall be 25 feet in height; that the cars shall be run on the main line on a schedule of every 15 minutes and on the branch lines on a schedule of every 30 minutes; that the cars shall be run continuously from 5:30 a. m. until 12 p. m.; that a guard rail shall be placed along the line where it is parallel with Pennsylvania avenue or where the board of public service may direct; that incandescent lights be placed along the route at every fourth pole and at all crossings.

All this done Dr. Marshall was satisfied and made a motion that the ordinance be placed on its second reading. This motion carried and Mr. Bullock made a motion that it be placed on its third reading and final passage. It also carried.

When the ordinance authorizing the People's Light & Power company to erect poles and all other necessary supports for the wiring or heating,

NEW RAILROAD

Col. Frease Ordered to Get in Readiness to Build Canton-East Liverpool Line.

Cleveland, March 12.—Captain Harry Frease, of Canton, announced yesterday, following a trip to Baltimore, that he has been instructed to purchase the right of way and get everything in readiness for the construction of the Canton-East Liverpool railway. Mr. Frease has been the moving spirit in this road, and while at Baltimore held a conference with B. & O. officials. The connecting link will be built by the B. & O. company and the Pennsylvania company will use it for freight traffic from a point along the Cleveland & Pittsburg division, either at Bayard or East Rochester. The railroad will connect with the C. & P. at Smith's Ferry.

This line will give the B. & O. a short line between Pittsburg and Chicago by way of Warwick. Canton and East Liverpool parties promoted the branch and secured valuable rights of way. The balance of rights will be secured in the near future.

Negotiations were opened with the B. & O. a year ago and that company will push the work during this spring and summer. The road will give Canton a trunk line east and west and add to her railroad facilities considerably.

A SPLENDID OFFER.

The News Review, in its issue of next Saturday, will inaugurate a voting contest which it will be worth while for representatives of organized labor of East Liverpool and vicinity to enter.

To the person receiving the second highest number of votes, A TRIP UP THE GREAT LAKES OR TO SOME ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORT AT THE EXPENSE OF THE NEWS REVIEW.

Rules and conditions of the contest will be published in full, along with the first coupon.

The headless body found on the railroad track in the West End during the early hours of Wednesday morning, February 11, which lay for four days without identification in the undertaking establishment of C. N. Miller, and which was later interred in the potters' field at Spring Grove cemetery, was identified this afternoon by Jesse Wallace, of Monaca, and Harry Wallace, of Industry.

These gentlemen by an examination of the clothing found near the place where the body was mangled, pronounced the dead man Stephen Wallace, who was about 26 years of age and who was born and reared on a farm a few miles back in the country from Monaca, Beaver county, Pa. They were positive in their identification and steps will be taken by them to have the body removed to the family burial ground in North Branch cemetery.

Jesse Wallace says the dead man was his brother and a cousin to Harry Wallace. The last seen of Stephen was by the latter, who had a short conversation with him in Pittsburg a few days after Christmas. Harry was working on the towboat D. B. Wood when Stephen unexpectedly appeared, and was well dressed. He had not been seen for several months by any of his relatives and in explanation of his absence stated that he had been doing as he always had done, following the life of a hobo. However, he had worked a few months on the river, the only occupation he had ever followed, and had in his possession over $300.

Harry invited him to make the trip on the boat with him, but Stephen stated that he had too much money. A few hours later he returned to the boat with his grip and said that he would return later to go out on the trip. He never returned.

The clothes that he wore the last time he was seen by his cousin were the same found in the grip on the railroad track.

The two gentlemen arrived in the city this afternoon and applied at the mayor's office to get any information possible in regard to the disposition made of the body. They said that a letter written by Mrs. Miller to Dr. Scroggs, of Beaver, and given them an idea that the body might be that of their relative. Mayor Davidson turned them over to the care of Officer Aufderheide, and they were taken to Miller's, but were unable to get any information of value there. The clothes had been left at a saloon on Franklin street. When taken there the cousin at once recognized the suit, both by color and a slit in the left trouser's leg which, he said, was there when he last saw the clothes.

Although confident that they had made the identification complete they wanted to be certain and then went to the fire station, where Officer Woods had several of the articles found on the man, and they were also identified. One of them was a knife, another a comb and a pair of gloves. A day book containing the name of a man whose address was Congo was also recognized by Jesse Wallace. He said that last summer he was working

He Has a Private Graveyard and a Record to Match That of a Dime Novel Hero.

ELOPED WITH MOTHER OF SEVEN CHILDREN

If the allegations made by James Calfee, of Pulaski City, Va., be true there is now a desperado roaming the streets of the city, one who owns a private burial ground for the interment of those who cross his path or in any manner provoke him. The number of men that he has sent to the happy hunting ground can only be guessed at. For years he has been the terror of the mountainous district in which he was reared, and should he strive to maintain his record in East Liverpool the quietude prevailing for so long will surely come to an abrupt end.

It was with the hope of recovering his wife who deserted him several months ago and came to this city with the wild mountaineer that Calfee imparted the intelligence of the man's location. In a letter he states that he and his wife lived for years in the unsettled regions of Virginia and that to them were born seven children. The wife's affections were won by the desperate man, and from that time on their home was one of turmoil. Many hand-to-hand encounters resulted over the affair, and as a climax to one of these fights the bad man shot a cow, dog and a boy, all belonging to Calfee, and also, after stealthily approaching the house, fired through a window at the latter, narrowly missing him.

The trouble around the little home finally assumed such proportions that the wife and her illegitimate lover decided to abandon the spot, and, taking the entire family of children, ran away to a rudely constructed log cabin, situated in a dense forest 12 miles from other settlers. In this cabin they lived for a while, but very destitute, and one day not long ago the man, woman and one of the children, a young girl, deserted the remaining six, leaving them to starve in the cabin and came to East Liverpool.

After the trio had been gone a few days, the husband, in making a search for his family, found the six little ones huddled together in a pitiable condition at the cabin. Calfee learned of their coming to this city and has applied to the police of Pulaski City for aid in securing the return of his wife, but thought it best to ascertain something definite regarding their location before sending officers on the mission. He thinks that the woman is working in a local restaurant and that the man is living with her. He states that a more desperate man never lived and that the lives of any community are in danger when he is around.

JOHN ALLISON 'AGAIN IN JAIL

BAD RECORD MADE WORSE

Summer will be fading when John Allison, the notorious horse and chicken thief, roams the streets of this city again a free man. He was arrested last night by Officers Dawson and McDermott on a serious charge. Pleading guilty this morning before the mayor, he was fined $50 and costs, which, in default of payment, will insure his incarceration in the Canton workhouse for almost six months.

John was drunk when taken in charge by the officers but it was not for that offense alone that he was escorted to the city jail. Two little boys made information against him to the police stating that he had enticed them into Diamond alley and attempted a most despicable act. They became much frightened and after a struggle succeeded in breaking away from the depraved man. He acknowledged at his hearing that he was drunk but pleaded ignorance of any other offense and offered a pathetic appeal for a light sentence.

He said that he had tried to act like a man since his release from the county jail where he spent most of last summer unler suspicion of stealing a horse from East End parties, but that yesterday, having an attack of rheumatism, he concluded to take a drink of whisky, having heard that the spirits were good for the malady. One drink tasted like another one and he finally lost all control of himself. However, he was on his way home when apprehended. It was his intention to go there and sober up. News and Notes About The Potteries

WHITE HOUSE TREASURES.

Quite a valuable bric-a-brac collection has accumulated at the White House, which possesses, aside from the intrinsic value of the works of art, the peculiar distinction of being absolutely without its counterpart. Gifts have from time to time been made to the respective incumbents of the presidency, and each president, upon retiring from office, has left these tokens of appreciation behind him in the historic house. There are vases, plates and other articles that are purely ornamental, that have been presented by kings and rulers, and which have no duplicates.

TWELVE KILNS TO START WITH.

The Bell Pottery company is rushing work on its new pottery in Columbus and expects to have it in operation about the middle of the summer. The clay shops will soon be under roof and the foundations are completed for the other buildings. Twelve kilns are to be erected and as many more will be added soon after the plant starts, according to Manager Rose, who represents the company. The tract on which the pottery stands contains 140 acres, which will be subdivided into lots and put on the market, and on which homes will be erected by the employes.

A TENNESSEE PLANT.

The Harley Pottery company, of Nashville, Tenn., has been incorporated under the laws of the state of Tennessee, with a capital stock of $10,000. The concern will erect a new stoneware plant at once and work will be started on the same as soon as the plants can be got together. The works will have a capacity of two kilns.

TWO-KILN PLANT.

The Atwater Stoneware company, the new concern which will erect a two-kiln stoneware factory at Atwater, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000, and has elected Geo. B. Gelhart, president, and E. S. Goodman, secretary and treasurer. The concern will begin operations at once.

ILL OF FEVER.

Isaac Gensib, who came to this city about the first of the year, and for a short time worked as a ware carrier at the Thompson pottery, is very seriously ill with typhoid fever at the home of Mrs. Allen, on Third street.

WORKING AT THOMPSON'S.

Fred Pennington, the well known packer, is putting in a couple of weeks in the shed at the Thompson, taking the place of Glade Coleman, who has left the trade and returned to his home near town.

Clifford Fox is here from Youngstown visiting friends.

John Sladen has taken a job of handle maker at the Union.

The clay hands at the William Brunt were off yesterday, owing to a break in the pug mill.

Miss Maude Beach has gone to Lisbon, where she has a position with the Thomas China company.

Miss Hattie Craig, of Wellsville, and Mrs. Mahon have taken jobs in the biscuit warehouse at the Union.

Will Adams, of the K., T. & K., who went to his home at Parkersburg about a month ago to recover from an illness, has returned. His wife, who has also been quite ill, is improving.

Ed Jackson, who has been sticking up at the Canonsburg plant, visited friends here Sunday and Monday, returning to Canonsburg Tuesday. He will work out his notice there and go to California.

TWENTY MILLIONS FOR NEW TRACKS

600 MILES OF NEW ROAD

Among the Extensions Contemplated. The Forest City to Be Connected By Trolley With Buffalo And Other Cities East And West.

Cleveland, March 12.—The electric railway syndicates of Cleveland are preparing to construct 600 miles of new track the coming season at a cost of $20,000,000. Cleveland is the acknowledged center of the electric railway industry of the United States.

Cleveland financiers and trolley railway men are preparing for their most active season. Contracts for labor are being made every day, and with the first approach of settled weather the construction of about 60 miles of track will begin.

The greatest difficulty that will probably be experienced during the ensuing season will not be to obtain money, but in obtaining labor and material. Never before in the history of the country was there such a demand for labor as there is today. The average wages for laborers has risen from 90 cents a day, where it was during the panic of 1893, to as high as $1.90. In the electric railway field, if a man has had experience in rail road building, he is paid even higher wages, and men at $2.25 and $2.50 a day are in demand.

The scarcity of steel rails is an old story. Material of this description ordered last year in some instances has not been delivered as yet.

"Where it is possible," said F. T. Pomeroy, of the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum syndicate yesterday, "we order our rails a year in advance, and designate the time of delivery several months ahead of the time we will need the material."

There are a half dozen or more big street railway syndicates in Cleveland and innumerable smaller ones. The largest of these are the Everett-Moore syndicate, the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum syndicate, and the Cleveland Electric syndicate. Then there is a syndicate which operates the Toledo & Western electric lines, the Holcomb & Lattimer syndicate, which operates in a number of localities, and syndicates which are operating in Texas, Kansas, Missouri, New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan.

Work on the Mansfield & Ashland electric line will be started immediately. This will connect Mansfield and Ashland with the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum railway system. At the same time a large force of men will be put to work on the Western Ohio Traction company's extensions. It is the purpose of the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum syndicate to push the work on the construction of a stretch of track from Sidney to Findlay immediately. With the completion of this 30 miles there will be a complete chain of electric railways from Toledo to Cincinnati. It is expected the line will be completed in October. Simultaneously with this project will be started the building of a new electric railway from Findlay to Toledo by way of Fostoria and of a new line from Piqua to Dayton. In each of the two cases last mentioned the line will parallel railways which have been in existence for some time.

Within the next 30 days work on the extension from Medina to Wooster of the Cleveland & Southwestern railway will be started. The extension will be in operation before the season closes next fall. It will take in Chippewa Lake, and it is the purpose of the syndicate to run excursions to that point as soon as the track has been completed that far.

East of the city the Everett-Moore syndicate in conjunction with other electric railway syndicates will fill in the gaps between Buffalo and Cleveland, making a complete railroad between Buffalo and Toledo. J. W. Holcomb and others interested in this project are on the ground at present making arrangements for work to start just as soon as the weather permits.

It is the intention of the East Ohio Traction company to make extensive repairs during the coming season, and several extensions will be built. In all probability the gap between the Mahoning Valley railway and the Chagrin Falls railway will be filled, and the project of connecting Pittsburg with Cleveland by electric line realized.

In Cleveland great improvements are being planned by the two city electric railways. Extensions will be made tracks relaid, new rolling stock purchased, and other improvements carried on at a total cost of over $2,000,000.

The Toledo & Western Traction company will also expand. Electric railway people are looking to the members of this syndicate to fill the gaps between Cleveland and Chicago. The project is not so great as one would suppose at first glance, but is one which will require the greater portion of one year to complete.

Electric railway men of the city are planning great things. Their planning is along conservative lines, and extensions will be pushed forward with the utmost caution. Should their expectations be realized, the first day of next January will see Cleveland in direct connection by electric line with Buffalo, Pittsburg, Chicago, Toledo, Cincinnati, Canton and Youngstown.

KANSAS CITY TEAMSTERS OUT.

Drivers Use Force in Efforts to Hinder Traffic—Woman Drives Team.

Kansas City, Mo., March 12.—Violence entered into the strike of 211 drivers, employed by the 14 transfer companies, who went out for an increase in wages and recognition of their union. Perhaps half a hundred men were employed during the day to take the places of the strikers, though but little work was accomplished by them. Strikers and their sympathizers gathered in large numbers at several points in the west bottoms and held up wagons driven by non-union men. At the Burlington freight depot the police were forced to draw their revolvers to disperse a crowd that had cut the traces of teams hitched to two loaded wagons.

At another point George B. Evans, an employe of the American Express company, in attempting to disperse a crowd that was throwing stones at a driver, fired a shot into the ground. N. N. Latin, a striker, interfered, and made a move to draw a knife, when both men were arrested. Mrs. Evans, wife of the man arrested, struck with a whip the leaders of a crowd that interfered with the course of a wagon on which she was riding. Later Mrs. Evans took charge of a wagon belonging to the Swofford Dry Goods company and, unaided, drove the team through the crowd. Her progress was interrupted. In Mulberry street a crowd blockaded the thoroughfare and threw stones at the non-union drivers. Much excitement prevailed and the police were kept busy.

COMPERS OPPOSES LEWIS' BILL

Compulsory Labor Will Make Outlaws of Peaceful and Law-Abiding Citizens.

Albany, N. Y., March 12.—President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, appeared before the senate committee on judiciary to oppose Senator Lewis' bill providing for so-called compulsory arbitration of difficulties between public service corporations and their employes. Mr. Gompers said:

"If you enact this principle into the legislation of this state and make labor compulsory, even while waiting for the decision of the tribunal or in accordance with the award of that tribunal, you will simply make outlaws of peaceful and law-abiding citizens. If you outlaw strikes you will simply give place to the harsher measures—you cannot legislate out of existence the right of men to combine and to quit work if need be for the betterment of their condition."

Police Interrupt Students' Fun.

Lafayette, Ind., March 12.—The fiercest fought battle in the history of Purdue class fights occurred here, when 500 freshmen bombarded with stones and clubs Columbian hall, where the sophomores were in session at their annual banquet. They stormed the stairs and succeded in temporarily breaking up the gathering. This was not accomplished until about 20 of the attacking freshmen were more or less hurt. A riot call was sent, but the score of police who responded were unable to handle the rioting students. Not until the city fire department was called and two streams of water were brought into play did the freshmen disperse. A patrol wagon full of the ringleaders were arrested. All were subsequently released, except H. L. Harmon. Most of the students' injuries were received at the hands of the police, who charged the crowd, using their clubs.

Damaged by Fire and Water.

Cleveland, March 12.—Fire and water did damage estimated at $100,000 to the works of the Ajax Manufacturing company. Much of the loss is to valuable machinery and patterns by water.

Fall Results in Death.

New York, March 12.—J. Hobart Herrick, former president of the produce exchange, who fell two and a half stories as he was stricken with apoplexy in the Union League club, died from the effects of his injuries. Mr. Herrick fell over the railing of the staircase.

WEARY TRAMP OVER THE SNOW.

Vessel Masters Walk Four Days to Reach Railroad—Herring Fleet Frozen in the Ice.

St. Johns, N. F., March 12.—Norman Ross and Frank Carter, masters of two vessels of the American herring fleet, which is frozen in the ice floes in the Bay of Islands, arrived here after having trudged 96 miles across the snow fields in the interior. They were four days on the march and were accompanied by three other travelers and two guides, who dragged a sled with their stock of provisions. They reached the railroad on the morning of the fifth day, footsore and weary. They had to adopt this expedient to return to Gloucester, Mass.

The travelers report that there are immense snow drifts in the interior and that the traffic on the western division of the railway has been abandoned for the past month, not a wheel moving. It is also difficult to clear the track, owing to the trouble of pushing forward supplies for the working parties.

When Wife Came Upon Them Husband Shoots Her and Then Turns Weapon on Himself.

Urbana, O., March 12.—Joseph H Gibbs and his wife were found by two young boys, lying dead in their own blood in the main street of St. Paris. Gibbs started out early in the evening with the wife of Jim Shehee, a saloonkeeper. While Gibbs and his companion were passing by the village church, Mrs. Gibbs came upon them. Gibbs drew a revolver and shot his wife, killing her instantly, and it is now believed that he tried to kill the Shehee woman. She ran away screaming and Gibbs turned the gun on himself with fatal results.

Had His Little Joke and Suicided.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 12.—After sitting in a window of a fashionable apartment house and taking pot shots at the people passing in James street below, Henry C. Friend held a party of policemen at bay for an hour with a big revolver. Then forcing the janitor to roll cigarettes, Friend played the piano with his left hand and held the gun in his right. Soon thereafter Friend turned on the piano stool, placed the revolver to his breast, and sent a bullet through his heart. He was 26 years old and son of the late George S. Friend, once a prominent merchant.

Mohawk Valley Flooded.

Fonda, N. Y., March 12.—Heavy rains have caused the Mohawk river to overflow and flood portions of the valley. Much damage to property is reported. Homes have been flooded and families compelled to seek places of safety. Many factories have shut down. The Central and West Shore railroads are suffering from landslides. Hundreds of persons employed in shops in the various towns of the valley have been thrown out of employment.

TWENTY MILLIONS FOR NEW TRACKS

600 MILES OF NEW ROAD

Among the Extensions Contemplated. The Forest City to Be Connected By Trolley With Buffalo And Other Cities East And West.

Cleveland, March 12.—The electric railway syndicates of Cleveland are preparing to construct 600 miles of new track the coming season at a cost of $20,000,000. Cleveland is the acknowledged center of the electric railway industry of the United States.

Cleveland financiers and trolley railway men are preparing for their most active season. Contracts for labor are being made every day, and with the first approach of settled weather the construction of about 60 miles of track will begin.

The greatest difficulty that will probably be experienced during the ensuing season will not be to obtain money, but in obtaining labor and material. Friend held a party of policemen at bay for an hour with a big revolver. Then forcing the janitor to roll cigarettes, Friend played the piano with his left hand and held the gun in his right. Soon thereafter Friend turned on the piano stool, placed the revolver to his breast, and sent a bullet through his heart. He was 26 years old and son of the late George S. Friend, once a prominent merchant.

News and Notes About The Potteries

Quite a valuable bric-a-brac collection has accumulated at the White House, which possesses, aside from the intrinsic value of the works of art, the peculiar distinction of being absolutely without its counterpart. Gifts have from time to time been made to the respective incumbents of the presidency, and each president, upon retiring from office, has left these tokens of appreciation behind him in the historic house. There are vases, plates and other articles that are purely ornamental, that have been presented by kings and rulers, and which have no duplicates.

TWELVE KILNS TO START WITH.

The Bell Pottery company is rushing work on its new pottery in Columbus and expects to have it in operation about the middle of the summer. The clay shops will soon be under roof and the foundations are completed for the other buildings. Twelve kilns are to be erected and as many more will be added soon after the plant starts, according to Manager Rose, who represents the company. The tract on which the pottery stands contains 140 acres, which will be subdivided into lots and put on the market, and on which homes will be erected by the employes.

A TENNESSEE PLANT.

The Harley Pottery company, of Nashville, Tenn., has been incorporated under the laws of the state of Tennessee, with a capital stock of $10,000. The concern will erect a new stoneware plant at once and work will be started on the same as soon as the plants can be got together. The works will have a capacity of two kilns.

TWO-KILN PLANT.

The Atwater Stoneware company, the new concern which will erect a two-kiln stoneware factory at Atwater, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000, and has elected Geo. B. Gelhart, president, and E. S. Goodman, secretary and treasurer. The concern will begin operations at once.

ILL OF FEVER.

Isaac Gensib, who came to this city about the first of the year, and for a short time worked as a ware carrier at the Thompson pottery, is very seriously ill with typhoid fever at the home of Mrs. Allen, on Third street.

WORKING AT THOMPSON'S.

AMONG THE WORKMEN.

Clifford Fox is here from Youngstown visiting friends.

John Sladen has taken a job of handle maker at the Union.

The clay hands at the William Brunt were off yesterday, owing to a break in the pug mill.

Miss Maude Beach has gone to Lisbon, where she has a position with the Thomas China company.

John Fox, mouldrunner, and Frank Crowley, batter-out for John Crowley at the Union, quit yesterday and have been succeeded by Earl Hamilton and Fred Dearth. Fox has gone to Sebring.

Miss Hattie Craig, of Wellsville, and Mrs. Mahon have taken jobs in the biscuit warehouse at the Union.

Will Adams, of the K., T. & K., who went to his home at Parkersburg about a month ago to recover from an illness, has returned. His wife, who has also been quite ill, is improving.

Ed Jackson, who has been sticking up at the Canonsburg plant, visited friends here Sunday and Monday, returning to Canonsburg Tuesday. He will work out his notice there and go to California.

KANSAS CITY TEAMSTERS OUT.

Drivers Use Force in Efforts to Hinder Traffic—Woman Drives Team.

Kansas City, Mo., March 12.—Violence entered into the strike of 211 drivers, employed by the 14 transfer companies, who went out for an increase in wages and recognition of their union. Perhaps half a hundred men were employed during the day to take the places of the strikers, though but little work was accomplished by them. Strikers and their sympathizers gathered in large numbers at several points in the west bottoms and held up wagons driven by non-union men. At the Burlington freight depot the police were forced to draw their revolvers to disperse a crowd that had cut the traces of teams hitched to two loaded wagons.

At another point George B. Evans, an employe of the American Express company, in attempting to disperse a crowd that was throwing stones at a driver, fired a shot into the ground. N. N. Latin, a striker, interfered, and made a move to draw a knife, when both men were arrested. Mrs. Evans, wife of the man arrested, struck with a whip the leaders of a crowd that interfered with the course of a wagon on which she was riding. Later Mrs. Evans took charge of a wagon belonging to the Swofford Dry Goods company and, unaided, drove the team through the crowd. Her progress was interrupted. In Mulberry street a crowd blockaded the thoroughfare and threw stones at the non-union drivers. Much excitement prevailed and the police were kept busy.

COMPERS OPPOSES LEWIS' BILL

Compulsory Labor Will Make Outlaws of Peaceful and Law-Abiding Citizens.

Albany, N. Y., March 12.—President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, appeared before the senate committee on judiciary to oppose Senator Lewis' bill providing for so-called compulsory arbitration of difficulties between public service corporations and their employes. Mr. Gompers said:

"If you enact this principle into the legislation of this state and make labor compulsory, even while waiting for the decision of the tribunal or in accordance with the award of that tribunal, you will simply make outlaws of peaceful and law-abiding citizens. If you outlaw strikes you will simply give place to the harsher measures—you cannot legislate out of existence the right of men to combine and to quit work if need be for the betterment of their condition."

Police Interrupt Students' Fun.

Lafayette, Ind., March 12.—The fiercest fought battle in the history of Purdue class fights occurred here, when 500 freshmen bombarded with stones and clubs Columbian hall, where the sophomores were in session at their annual banquet. They stormed the stairs and suceeded in temporarily breaking up the gathering. This was not accomplished until about 20 of the attacking freshmen were more or less hurt. A riot call was sent, but the score of police who responded were unable to handle the rioting students. Not until the city fire department was called and two streams of water were brought into play did the freshmen disperse. A patrol wagon full of the ringleaders were arrested. All were subsequently released, except H. L. Harmon. Most of the students' injuries were received at the hands of the police, who charged the crowd, using their clubs.

Cleveland, March 12.—Fire and water did damage estimated at $100,000 to the works of the Ajax Manufacturing company. Much of the loss is to valuable machinery and patterns by water.

TWENTY MILLIONS FOR NEW TRACKS

600 MILES OF NEW ROAD

Among the Extensions Contemplated. The Forest City to Be Connected By Trolley With Buffalo And Other Cities East And West.

Cleveland, March 12.—The electric railway syndicates of Cleveland are preparing to construct 600 miles of new track the coming season at a cost of $20,000,000. Cleveland is the acknowledged center of the electric railway industry of the United States.

Cleveland financiers and trolley railway men are preparing for their most active season. Contracts for labor are being made every day, and with the first approach of settled weather the construction of about 60 miles of track will begin.

The greatest difficulty that will probably be experienced during the ensuing season will not be to obtain money, but in obtaining labor and material. Never before in the history of the country was there such a demand for labor as there is today. The average wages for laborers has risen from 90 cents a day, where it was during the panic of 1893, to as high as $1.90. In the electric railway field, if a man has had experience in railroad building, he is paid even higher wages, and men at $2.25 and $2.50 a day are in demand.

The scarcity of steel rails is an old story. Material of this description ordered last year in some instances has not been delivered as yet.

"Where it is possible," said F. T. Pomeroy, of the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum syndicate yesterday, "we order our rails a year in advance, and designate the time of delivery several months ahead of the time we will need the material."

There are a half dozen or more big street railway syndicates in Cleveland and innumerable smaller ones. The largest of these are the Everett-Moore syndicate, the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum syndicate, and the Cleveland Electric syndicate. Then there is a syndicate which operates the Toledo & Western electric lines, the Holcomb & Lattimer syndicate, which operates in a number of localities, and syndicates which are operating in Texas, Kansas, Missouri, New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan.

Work on the Mansfield & Ashland electric line will be started immediately. This will connect Mansfield and Ashland with the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum railway system. At the same time a large force of men will be put to work on the Western Ohio Traction company's extensions. It is the purpose of the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum syndicate to push the work on the construction of a stretch of track from Sidney to Findlay immediately. With the completion of this 30 miles there will be a complete chain of electric railways from Toledo to Cincinnati. It is expected the line will be completed in October. Simultaneously with this project will be started the building of a new electric railway from Findlay to Toledo by way of Fostoria and of a new line from Piqua to Dayton. In each of the two cases last mentioned the line will parallel railways which have been in existence for some time.

Within the next 30 days work on the extension from Medina to Wooster of the Cleveland & Southwestern railway will be started. The extension will be in operation before the season closes next fall. It will take in Chippewa Lake, and it is the purpose of the syndicate to run excursions to that point as soon as the track has been completed that far.

East of the city the Everett-Moore syndicate in conjunction with other electric railway syndicates will fill in the gaps between Buffalo and Cleveland, making a complete railroad between Buffalo and Toledo. J. W. Holcomb and others interested in this project are on the ground at present making arrangements for work to start just as soon as the weather permits.

It is the intention of the East Ohio Traction company to make extensive repairs during the coming season, and several extensions will be built. In all probability the gap between the Mahoning Valley railway and the Chagrin Falls railway will be filled, and the project of connecting Pittsburg with Cleveland by electric line realized.

In Cleveland great improvements are being planned by the two city electric railways. Extensions will be made tracks relaid, new rolling stock purchased, and other improvements carried on at a total cost of over $2,000,000.

The Toledo & Western Traction company will also expand. Electric railway people are looking to the members of this syndicate to fill the gaps between Cleveland and Chicago. The project is not so great as one would suppose at first glance, but is one which will require the greater portion of one year to complete.

Electric railway men of the city are planning great things. Their planning is along conservative lines, and extensions will be pushed forward with the utmost caution. Should their expectations be realized, the first day of next January will see Cleveland in direct connection by electric line with Buffalo, Pittsburg, Chicago, Toledo, Cincinnati, Canton and Youngstown.

WEARY TRAMP OVER THE SNOW.

Vessel Masters Walk Four Days to Reach Railroad—Herring Fleet Frozen in the Ice.

St. Johns, N. F., March 12.—Norman Ross and Frank Carter, masters of two vessels of the American herring fleet, which is frozen in the ice floes in the Bay of Islands, arrived here after having trudged 96 miles across the snow fields in the interior. They were four days on the march and were accompanied by three other travelers and two guides, who dragged a sled with their stock of provisions. They reached the railroad on the morning of the fifth day, footsore and weary. They had to adopt this expedient to return to Gloucester, Mass.

The travelers report that there are immense snow drifts in the interior and that the traffic on the western division of the railway has been abandoned for the past month, not a wheel moving. It is also difficult to clear the track, owing to the trouble of pushing forward supplies for the working parties.

WAS WITH ANOTHER WOMAN.

When Wife Came Upon Them Husband Shoots Her and Then Turns Weapon on Himself.

Urbana, O., March 12.—Joseph H Gibbs and his wife were found by two young boys, lying dead in their own blood in the main street of St. Paris. Gibbs started out early in the evening with the wife of Jim Shebee, a saloonkeeper. While Gibbs and his companion were passing by the village church, Mrs. Gibbs came upon them. Gibbs drew a revolver and shot his wife, killing her instantly, and it is now believed that he tried to kill the Shehee woman. She ran away screaming and Gibbs turned the gun on himself with fatal results.

Had His Little Joke and Suicided.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 12.—After sitting in a window of a fashionable apartment house and taking pot shots at the people passing in James street below, Henry C. Friend held a party of policemen at bay for an hour with a big revolver. Then forcing the janitor to roll cigarettes, Friend played the piano with his left hand and held the gun in his right. Soon thereafter Friend turned on the piano stool, placed the revolver to his breast, and sent a bullet through his heart. He was 26 years old and son of the late George S. Friend, once a prominent merchant.

EAST END

EAST ENDERS PLEASED

They Hail With Satisfaction the Prospect of a New Street Car Line.

The majority of the residents of the East End were highly gratified over the action of the council last night in granting the franchise to the new street car line. Many are of the opinion that the building of the new line will result in the construction of a large number of new dwellings, which otherwise would not be built for some time to come. A number of houses will be erected in the Englewood addition in case the labor question does not interfere too much with the plans of the parties who intend building them.

A great many of the people are of the opinion that the opposition line will have the desired effect of necessary improvements being made to the rolling stock and tracks of the present line, and that better service will result from all sources.

Funeral of W. A. Finley.

The funeral of William A. Finley was well attended this morning, a number of out-of-town friends being in attendance. The Sons of Veterans were present in a body. The family of Mr. Finley were the recipients of a beautiful boquet of white roses, which were presented by the teachers of the Horace Mann school. There were also other beautiful floral offerings.

Laying New Water Mains.

The 12-inch water pipes have all been hauled and placed on Pennsylvania avenue. The pipes for the continuation on Mulberry street, which will be eight inches in size, are also being placed, and as soon as they are all in position the trenches will be dug in which to set them.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Michael J. Kerr has gone to Pittsburg on business.

Charles Smith, of Wellsville, visited friends in the East End last night.

Miss Jennie Chafin, of Erie street, is confined to the house by illness.

The dwelling of W. C. Smith, on Railroad street, is rapidly nearing completion.

H. E. Hall, of Mansfield, is in the East End attending the funeral of William A. Finley.

Mrs. Harry Harris, of St. George street, has been called to Wheeling on account of the serious illness of her father, Thomas Malin.

J. W. Harger and family will return tonight on the Greenwood from Gallipolis, where they have been attending the funeral of a relative.

Attorney J. E. Davis is having a number of improvements made to his property on Erie street, a modern porch being one of them.

The work of excavating for a retaining wall in front of the residence of Rev. D. W. McQuiston on Pennsylvania avenue, has been commenced.

BUSHEL OF LETTERS AND A RIFLED POUCH

Mail Bag Robbery at Cleveland Like That Which Took Place Here.

Cleveland, March 12.—A canvas mail pouch and a bushel of opened letters, found in the furnace of the Central armory, may afford clews to a mail robbery. The bag and its contents were turned over to Postmaster Dewstoe.

The find was made by workmen engaged in the work of arranging for the forestry, fish and game show. The building being cold yesterday morning, they decided to build a fire in the furnace and the pouch was found in the fire box.

Postoffice Inspector Owen was immediately apprised of the discovery and commenced an investigation. According to the report, the pouch came west from Pittsburg, via the C. & P. railroad, February 24. Inasmuch as the bag was at no time in the hands of the city postoffice attaches, it is almost certain that it was stolen from a truck at the union depot.

Most of the letters are opened, but practically all of them are in such shape as to be sent on to their destination. Those that cannot be forwarded will be sent back to their writers. It is impossible to tell how much money was removed.

BITUMINOUS MINERS CONVENE.

Session Taken Up With the Discussion of Resolutions—Co-Operative Stores to Be Established.

Altoona, Pa., March 12.—The morning session of the bituminous miners' convention was occupied in the discussion of resolutions. Mr. Rice proposed to abolish the examination of mine foremen, the certificates, he said, being more of a protection to the operator than to the miner. Several speakers advocated the passage by the state legislature of the employes' liability act.

The following resolutions were adopted: That miners shall be informed each evening whether or not there will be work next day; that no limit be placed on mine cars; petitions the state legislature to enact a law similar to the law now in force in the anthracite region, which provides that mine inspectors be elected by a popular vote.

It was decided not to admit boys under 16 to the union rooms, as they have been known to give away the pass word. The recommendation of the secretary-treasurer to establish co-operative stores was adopted.

Woodmen Elect Officers.

Strenuous Efforts Being Made to Keep Flood From Breaking Through.

CONVICTS WILL BE PUT TO WORK

Every Mile of Levee Closely Guarded. Higher Water Expected and Occupants of Lowland Glad to Escape With Their Lives.

Memphis, Tenn., March 12.—A telegram was received from Caruthersville, Mo., saying that the caving of the river bank in front of the first levee has necessitated its abandonment and that the second levee or loop is now relied upon alone. The second levee will stand a further rise of five feet if no further caving of the river bank shall occur.

The river registers 35.4 and is rising. This is an advance of only .2 since morning. The weather bureau says the stage at Memphis will reach 38 feet by Sunday and that a stage of 39 feet should be prepared for, as such a stage seems assured.

Reports from Mississippi county, Ark., say a large area behind the levees is flooded by water, which has seeped through and under the embankments. The report says this flooded area extends back seven miles from the embankment and that it practically has been abandoned by all families living in the territory.

Natchez, Miss., March 12.—A report reached here that the Texas Pacific railroad embankment at Bougre had broken, but could not be verified. Officers on the mail steamer Betsy Ann are authority for the statement that frame buildings in the lowlands have been washed away. The occupants were glad to escape with their lives. Deer, bears and other animals have been driven to highlands and are being slaughtered in large numbers. The weather is threatening. The river gauge is 46.8, being 2.5 above the danger line, and rising. Every mile of levee on both sides of the river is being patrolled and closely guarded.

Vicksburg, Miss., March 12.—At a conference of levee engineers and freight officials of the Valley road the levee men urged the railroad men to give a big shipment of sacks and other materials the right of way from New Orleans. This material is needed to strengthen weak places in the embankments along the Louisiana side in the parishes of Concordia, Tensas and East Carroll. Two United States snag boats have been placed at the disposal of the levee officials for patrol duty. The water is rising steadily here at the rate of nearly half a foot in 24 hours.

Orange, Tex., March 12.—There was no improvement in the flood situation, but the levee and flood gates which have been constructed render less the chance of the town being inundated. Reports from the upper portion of the Sabine are that there has been a very heavy loss in cattle on both the Texas and Louisiana shores. The whole country is under water.

Jacksonville, Miss., March 12.—The board of control ordered all available convicts to be placed at the disposal of the Yazoo, Miss., levee board. The levees are still three feet above the water, but the danger is great, as large volumes of water are expected Saturday. Pearl river continues to rise and has spread over the sections adjacent to Jackson.

Paducah, Ky., March 12.—The gauge is 45.7 and rising. Many thousands of acres of wheat are ruined by the floods. It is estimated that 175,000 ties are in danger and cannot be loaded, as negroes refuse to work because they have to wade in water to handle them.

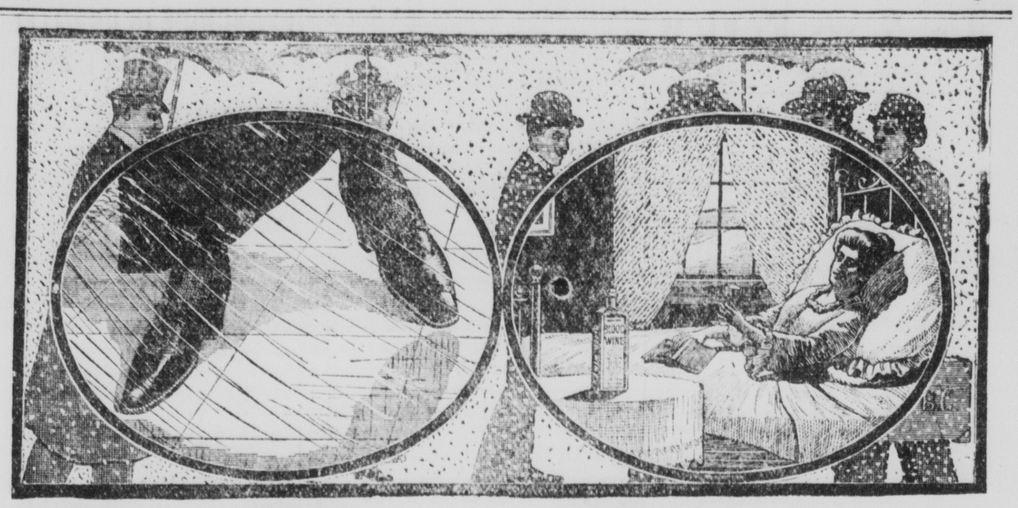

Stockholders Ask for Accounting.

Lima, O., March 12.—Seven stockholders of the Union Oil, Gas and Refining company, residents of Dubuque, Hampton and Pringham, Ia., have brought action against the directors of that company asking for an accounting, an injunction and the appointment of a receiver to wind up its affairs. The Union company was organized by Jackson B. and H. H. Adkins, with others, in December, 1901, and has floated $3,500,000 of stock throughout the United States. The plaintiffs own 60,000 shares and have combined with others, making a total stockholding of 250,000 shares.

Counterfeiter Arrested.

Chicago, March 12.—Officials of the United States secret service have arrested Frank Davis, who is said to have made and circulated 12,000 counterfeit dollars in the last year. He made the coins of tin and glass and plated them with silver. Davis is said to have been one of the gang, but the others eluded the detectives.

Don't fool with a cold, no one can tell what the end may be. Pneumonia, catarrh, chronic bronchitis and consumption invariably result from neglected colds. Blood Wine Cures Grip, Colds and Consumption

It is almost an absolute certainty that people who guard against the diseases of winter by the prompt use of "Blood Wine," will not have a cold, a cough, or any of the weakening, harassing and fatal ailments that infest every community through the winter months. "Blood Wine" is the safest protection and the most reliable, because it protects all organs of the body—the throat, lungs, kidneys, stomach, liver and bowels, by making the blood so active, rich, healthy, warmth-creating and strength-giving that the weakness that foreruns disease never comes. It keeps the system in a natural, healthy state. It corrects irregularities, and drives disease out of the body. "Blood Wine" is a remarkable medicine. It is a reliable medicine. It never disappoints. If kept in the house and taken with the first signs of an approaching cold, cough, soreness of the lungs, croup, rheumatism, bodily fatigue, loss of appetite or general weakness, it will give immediate and lasting relief. A bottle for fifty cents will

PROTECT YOUR HEALTH

Peter Berry of Pearl Street, Augusta, Maine, a well-known citizen, whose recovery was common talk, owes his life to "Blood Wine." He says it was AN ASTONISHING RECOVERY and adds that it "was a surprise to my physician; a very bad cold settled on my lungs, causing a most obstinate cough that no medicine could relieve. During several months I suffered untold misery. My lungs growing worse and worse. My physician was baffled and finally told me I would have to go to a warmer climate. I saw 'Blood Wine' advertised and made up my mind to try it. After taking it a few weeks during which time I gained rapidly, I was reported out of danger. I continued to take it and it entirely cured me. Those whom I have since advised to take it agree with me that it is a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Berry's experience has been duplicated by thousands of people who frankly admit that "Blood Wine" saved their lives.

Miss Nettie Clark of 9 Hanson Street, Boston, Mass., TOLD SHE MUST DIE but she didn't. On the other hand, she got well. She had a hard time of it, though, and "Blood Wine" pulled her through. Is it any wonder that she made this statement? "About six years ago I was taken with a very severe cold which settled on my lungs. I bathed my feet in hot water, took hot sweats, quinine and the other ordinary remedies, but nothing would lift it from my lungs. It ran along for some time in spite of my efforts to cure it. I sought all medical aid that money could procure, and all well-known remedies failed to cure me. I was told I had consumption and that I must die. I lost flesh, soon became a hollow-chested, frail woman, with a deep rasping cough. I was plainly going to my grave, when one day in despair I sent to the druggist, Jaynes & Co., for a bottle of 'Blood Wine.' I started on it with little faith, but like a drowning person I gladly clutched at a straw. After taking one bottle I thought I saw an improvement, so I continued—two bottles, three—by this time I was sure I was gaining; four bottles—now it was quite perceptible, and I kept on taking it and kept on gaining until I was entirely well. Today I am healthy and happy, have my flesh back, can eat a good meal and attend to my business. I think without a doubt, notwithstanding there are many good medicines, that 'Blood Wine' is the most far-reaching, penetrating and sure exterminator of germs in the world. I gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

Could anything be stronger than Miss Clark's statement, or could a medicine do more good? These colds do seem to create an awful lot of sickness. Here is another case where a cold almost cost Mrs. C. White of Bath, Me., her life. She, too, found in "Blood Wine" THE MEDICINE THAT CURED. "Last spring I had a bad cold which quickly led into an attack of La Grippe. I was sick some little time, and I was as weak as I could be. I tried several medicines advertised as strengtheners, but did not gain in any way until I started on 'Blood Wine.' The first dose seemed to start the blood like the water down a cataract, which gave me a good appetite. Three bottles was all I took, and they cured me. The cough has entirely left and I have no bad traces of the grip. 'Blood Wine' is a splendid medicine, and no mistake."

Last winter, Mr. A. J. Kelly, one of the leading lawyers of Terre Haute, Ind., caught a bad cold, had the grip, and it left him with rheumatism. He was in a bad condition, but IT WAS "BLOOD WINE" that cured him after he had experimented with everything else. This is what Mr. Kelly says: "I had rheumatism so badly that at times I was unable to go to my office for weeks. After patiently doctoring without relief, I took three bottles of 'Blood Wine' and it entirely cured me. I must say that in my case it worked wonders, simply marvelous. It is the best I ever saw."

EAST END

They Hail With Satisfaction the Prospect of a New Street Car Line.

The majority of the residents of the East End were highly gratified over the action of the council last night in granting the franchise to the new street car line. Many are of the opinion that the building of the new line will result in the construction of a large number of new dwellings, which otherwise would not be built for some time to come. A number of houses will be erected in the Englewood addition in case the labor question does not interfere too much with the plans of the parties who intend building them.

A great many of the people are of the opinion that the opposition line will have the desired effect of necessary improvements being made to the rolling stock and tracks of the present line, and that better service will result from all sources.

Funeral of W. A. Finley.

The funeral of William A. Finley was well attended this morning, a number of out-of-town friends being in attendance. The Sons of Veterans were present in a body. The family of Mr. Finley were the recipients of a beautiful boquet of white roses, which were presented by the teachers of the Horace Mann school. There were also other beautiful floral offerings.

Laying New Water Mains.

The 12-inch water pipes have all been hauled and placed on Pennsylvania avenue. The pipes for the continuation on Mulberry street, which will be eight inches in size, are also being placed, and as soon as they are all in position the trenches will be dug in which to set them.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Michael J. Kerr has gone to Pittsburg on business.

Charles Smith, of Wellsville, visited friends in the East End last night.

Miss Jennie Chafin, of Erie street, is confined to the house by illness.

The dwelling of W. C. Smith, on Railroad street, is rapidly nearing completion.

H. E. Hall, of Mansfield, is in the East End attending the funeral of William A. Finley.

Mrs. Harry Harris, of St. George street, has been called to Wheeling on account of the serious illness of her father, Thomas Malin.

J. W. Harger and family will return tonight on the Greenwood from Gallipolis, where they have been attending the funeral of a relative.

Attorney J. E. Davis is having a number of improvements made to his property on Erie street, a modern porch being one of them.

The work of excavating for a retaining wall in front of the residence of Rev. D. W. McQuiston on Pennsylvania avenue, has been commenced.

Mail Bag Robbery at Cleveland Like That Which Took Place Here.

Cleveland, March 12.—A canvas mail pouch and a bushel of opened letters, found in the furnace of the Central armory, may afford clews to a mail robbery. The bag and its contents were turned over to Postmaster Dewstoe.

The find was made by workmen engaged in the work of arranging for the forestry, fish and game show. The building being cold yesterday morning, they decided to build a fire in the furnace and the pouch was found in the fire box.

Postoffice Inspector Owen was immediately apprised of the discovery and commenced an investigation. According to the report, the pouch came west from Pittsburg, via the C. & P. railroad, February 24. Inasmuch as the bag was at no time in the hands of the city postoffice attaches, it is almost certain that it was stolen from a truck at the union depot.

Most of the letters are opened, but practically all of them are in such shape as to be sent on to their destination. Those that cannot be forwarded will be sent back to their writers. It is impossible to tell how much money was removed.

BITUMINOUS MINERS CONVENE.

Session Taken Up With the Discussion of Resolutions—Co-Operative Stores to Be Established.

Altoona, Pa., March 12.—The morning session of the bituminous miners' convention was occupied in the discussion of resolutions. Mr. Rice proposed to abolish the examination of mine foremen, the certificates, he said, being more of a protection to the operator than to the miner. Several speakers advocated the passage by the state legislature of the employes' liability act.

The following resolutions were adopted: That miners shall be informed each evening whether or not there will be work next day; that no limit be placed on mine cars; petitions the state legislature to enact a law similar to the law now in force in the anthracite region, which provides that mine inspectors be elected by a popular vote.

It was decided not to admit boys under 16 to the union rooms, as they have been known to give away the pass word. The recommendation of the secretary-treasurer to establish co-operative stores was adopted.

The river registers 35.4 and is rising. This is an advance of only .2 since morning. The weather bureau says the stage at Memphis will reach 38 feet by Sunday and that a stage of 39 feet should be prepared for, as such a stage seems assured.

Reports from Mississippi county, Ark., say a large area behind the levees is flooded by water, which has seeped through and under the embankments. The report says this flooded area extends back seven miles from the embankment and that it practically has been abandoned by all families living in the territory.

Natchez, Miss., March 12.—A report reached here that the Texas Pacific railroad embankment at Bougre had broken, but could not be verified. Officers on the mail steamer Betsy Ann are authority for the statement that frame buildings in the lowlands have been washed away. The occupants were glad to escape with their lives. Deer, bears and other animals have been driven to highlands and are being slaughtered in large numbers. The weather is threatening. The river gauge is 46.8, being 2.5 above the danger line, and rising. Every mile of levee on both sides of the river is being patrolled and closely guarded.

Vicksburg, Miss., March 12.—At a conference of levee engineers and freight officials of the Valley road the levee men urged the railroad men to give a big shipment of sacks and other materials the right of way from New Orleans. This material is needed to strengthen weak places in the embankments along the Louisiana side in the parishes of Concordia, Tensas and East Carroll. Two United States snag boats have been placed at the disposal of the levee officials for patrol duty. The water is rising steadily here at the rate of nearly half a foot in 24 hours.

Orange, Tex., March 12.—There was no improvement in the flood situation but the levee and flood gates which have been constructed render less the chance of the town being inundated. Reports from the upper portion of the Sabine are that there has been a very heavy loss in cattle on both the Texas and Louisiana shores. The whole country is under water.

Jacksonville, Miss., March 12.—The board of control ordered all available convicts to be placed at the disposal of the Yazoo, Miss., levee board. The levees are still three feet above the water, but the danger is great, as large volumes of water are expected Saturday. Pearl river continues to rise and has spread over the sections adjacent to Jackson.

Paducah, Ky., March 12.—The gauge is 45.7 and rising. Many thousands of acres of wheat are ruined by the floods. It is estimated that 175,000 ties are in danger and cannot be loaded, as negroes refuse to work because they have to wade in water to handle them.

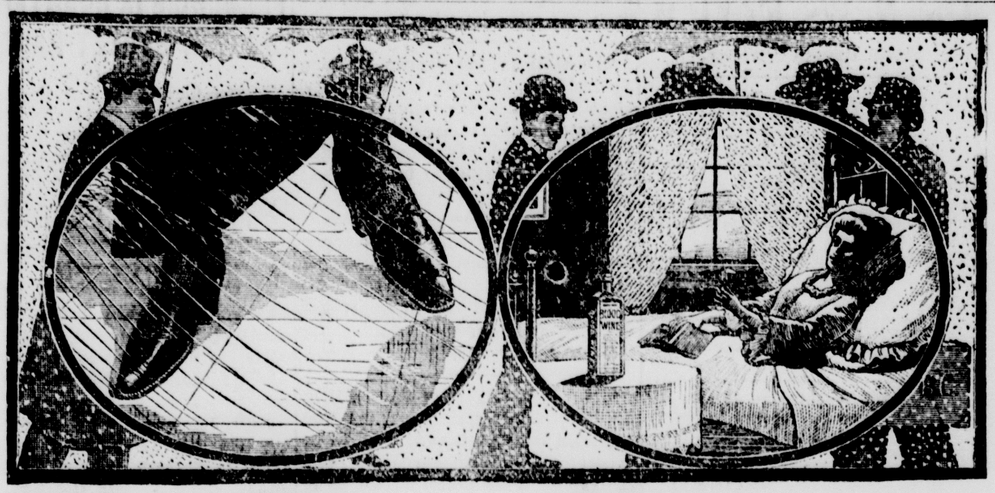

Stockholders Ask for Accounting.

Lima, O., March 12.—Seven stockholders of the Union Oil, Gas and Refining company, residents of Dubuque, Hampton and Pringham, Ia., have brought action against the directors of that company asking for an accounting, an injunction and the appointment of a receiver to wind up its affairs. The Union company was organized by Jackson B. and H. H. Adkins, with others, in December, 1901, and has floated $3,500,000 of stock throughout the United States. The plaintiffs own 60,000 shares and have combined with others, making a total stockholding of 250,000 shares.

Counterfeiter Arrested.

Chicago, March 12.—Officials of the United States secret service have arrested Frank Davis, who is said to have made and circulated 12,000 counterfeit dollars in the last year. He made the coins of tin and glass and plated them with silver. Davis is said to have been one of the gang, but the others eluded the detectives.

Blood Wine Cures Grip, Colds and Consumption

It is almost an absolute certainty that people who guard against the diseases of winter by the prompt use of "Blood Wine," will not have a cold, a cough, or any of the weakening, harassing and fatal ailments that infest every community through the winter months. PROTECT YOUR HEALTH

Peter Berry of Pearl Street, Augusta, Maine, a well-known citizen, whose recovery was common talk, owes his life to "Blood Wine." He says it was AN ASTONISHING RECOVERY and adds that it "was a surprise to my physician; a very bad cold settled on my lungs, causing a most obstinate cough that no medicine could relieve. During several months I suffered untold misery. My lungs growing worse and worse. My physician was baffled and finally told me I would have to go to a warmer climate. I saw 'Blood Wine' advertised and made up my mind to try it. After taking it a few weeks during which time I gained rapidly, I was reported out of danger. I continued to take it and it entirely cured me. Those whom I have since advised to take it agree with me that it is a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Berry's experience has been duplicated by thousands of people who frankly admit that "Blood Wine" saved their lives.

Miss Nettie Clark of 9 Hanson Street, Boston, Mass., TOLD SHE MUST DIE but she didn't. On the other hand, she got well. She had a hard time of it, though, and "Blood Wine" pulled her through. Is it any wonder that she made this statement? "About six years ago I was taken with a very severe cold which settled on my lungs. I bathed my feet in hot water, took hot sweats, quinine and the other ordinary remedies, but nothing would lift it from my lungs. It ran along for some time in spite of my efforts to cure it. I sought all medical aid that money could procure, and all well-known remedies failed to cure me. I was told I had consumption and that I must die. I lost flesh, soon became a hollow-chested, frail woman, with a deep rasping cough. I was plainly going to my grave, when one day in despair I sent to the druggist, Jaynes & Co., for a bottle of 'Blood Wine.' I started on it with little faith, but like a drowning person I gladly clutched at a straw. After taking one bottle I thought I saw an improvement, so I continued—two bottles, three—by this time I was sure I was gaining; four bottles—now it was quite perceptible, and I kept on taking it and kept on gaining until I was entirely well. Today I am healthy and happy, have my flesh back, can eat a good meal and attend to my business. I think without a doubt, notwithstanding there are many good medicines, that 'Blood Wine' is the most far-reaching, penetrating and sure exterminator of germs in the world. I gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

Could anything be stronger than Miss Clark's statement, or could a medicine do more good? These colds do seem to create an awful lot of sickness. Here is another case where a cold almost cost Mrs. C. White of Bath, Me., her life. She, too, found in "Blood Wine" THE MEDICINE THAT CURED. "Last spring I had a bad cold which quickly led into an attack of La Grippe. I was sick some little time, and I was as weak as I could be. I tried several medicines advertised as strengtheners, but did not gain in any way until I started on 'Blood Wine.' The first dose seemed to start the blood like the water down a cataract, which gave me a good appetite. Three bottles was all I took, and they cured me. The cough has entirely left and I have no bad traces of the grip. 'Blood Wine' is a splendid medicine, and no mistake."

Last winter, Mr. A. J. Kelly, one of the leading lawyers of Terre Haute, Ind., caught a bad cold, had the grip, and it left him with rheumatism. He was in a bad condition, but IT WAS "BLOOD WINE" that cured him after he had experimented with everything else. This is what Mr. Kelly says: "I had rheumatism so badly that at times I was unable to go to my office for weeks. After patiently doctoring without relief, I took three bottles of 'Blood Wine' and it entirely cured me. I must say that in my case it worked wonders, simply marvelous. It is the best I ever saw."

EAST END

They Hail With Satisfaction the Prospect of a New Street Car Line.

The majority of the residents of the East End were highly gratified over the action of the council last night in granting the franchise to the new street car line. Many are of the opinion that the building of the new line will result in the construction of a large number of new dwellings, which otherwise would not be built for some time to come. A number of houses will be erected in the Englewood addition in case the labor question does not interfere too much with the plans of the parties who intend building them.

A great many of the people are of the opinion that the opposition line will have the desired effect of necessary improvements being made to the rolling stock and tracks of the present line, and that better service will result from all sources.

Funeral of W. A. Finley.

The funeral of William A. Finley was well attended this morning, a number of out-of-town friends being in attendance. The Sons of Veterans were present in a body. The family of Mr. Finley were the recipients of a beautiful boquet of white roses, which were presented by the teachers of the Horace Mann school. There were also other beautiful floral offerings.

Laying New Water Mains.

The 12-inch water pipes have all been hauled and placed on Pennsylvania avenue. The pipes for the continuation on Mulberry street, which will be eight inches in size, are also being placed, and as soon as they are all in position the trenches will be dug in which to set them.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Michael J. Kerr has gone to Pittsburg on business.

Charles Smith, of Wellsville, visited friends in the East End last night.

Miss Jennie Chafin, of Erie street, is confined to the house by illness.

The dwelling of W. C. Smith, on Railroad street, is rapidly nearing completion.

H. E. Hall, of Mansfield, is in the East End attending the funeral of William A. Finley.

Mrs. Harry Harris, of St. George street, has been called to Wheeling on account of the serious illness of her father, Thomas Malin.

J. W. Harger and family will return tonight on the Greenwood from Gallipolis, where they have been attending the funeral of a relative.

Attorney J. E. Davis is having a number of improvements made to his property on Erie street, a modern porch being one of them.

The work of excavating for a retaining wall in front of the residence of Rev. D. W. McQuiston on Pennsylvania avenue, has been commenced.

Mail Bag Robbery at Cleveland Like That Which Took Place Here.

Cleveland, March 12.—A canvas mail pouch and a bushel of opened letters, found in the furnace of the Central armory, may afford clews to a mail robbery. The bag and its contents were turned over to Postmaster Dewstoe.

The find was made by workmen engaged in the work of arranging for the forestry, fish and game show. The building being cold yesterday morning, they decided to build a fire in the furnace and the pouch was found in the fire box.

Postoffice Inspector Owen was immediately apprised of the discovery and commenced an investigation. According to the report, the pouch came west from Pittsburg, via the C. & P. railroad, February 24. Inasmuch as the bag was at no time in the hands of the city postoffice attaches, it is almost certain that it was stolen from a truck at the union depot.

Most of the letters are opened, but practically all of them are in such shape as to be sent on to their destination. Those that cannot be forwarded will be sent back to their writers. It is impossible to tell how much money was removed.

BITUMINOUS MINERS CONVENE.

Session Taken Up With the Discussion of Resolutions—Co-Operative Stores to Be Established.

Altoona, Pa., March 12.—The morning session of the bituminous miners' convention was occupied in the discussion of resolutions. Mr. Rice proposed to abolish the examination of mine foremen, the certificates, he said, being more of a protection to the operator than to the miner. Several speakers advocated the passage by the state legislature of the employes' liability act.

The following resolutions were adopted: That miners shall be informed each evening whether or not there will be work next day; that no limit be placed on mine cars; petitions the state legislature to enact a law similar to the law now in force in the anthracite region, which provides that mine inspectors be elected by a popular vote.

It was decided not to admit boys under 16 to the union rooms, as they have been known to give away the pass word. The recommendation of the secretary-treasurer to establish co-operative stores was adopted.

Woodmen Elect Officers.

Advocates Trade Combination.

Paris, March 12.—Speaking at a meeting of the association of French Industry and Agriculture, former Premier Meline said he thought there were some indications of a termination of the long European industrial crisis, which had been due to overproduction, the fall in the price of silver, the American trusts, the German cartels and other causes. He declared that if the American trusts continued their operations the European nations would be compelled to take defensive measures against them, and he advocated as a remedy the formation of small trade combinations like those which served to unite German industry and the permanent establishment of French business abroad on German lines.

Railroad Machinists Strike.

Kansas City, Mo., March 12.—Two hundred machinists and machinists' helpers in the shops of the Kansas City Southern Railroad company at Pittsburg, Kan., struck for an increase in wages. President Knott said that the company's superintendent at Pittsburg received the demand for an increase of wages and was given only three hours in which to answer the demand. Before he could communicate with the officers of the road the strike was declared. The machinists demand 34 cents an hour and the machinists' helpers 20 cents an hour.

Strenuous Efforts Being Made to Keep Flood From Breaking Through.

Memphis, Tenn., March 12.—A telegram was received from Caruthersville, Mo., saying that the caving of the river bank in front of the first levee has necessitated its abandonment and that the second levee or loop is now relied upon alone. Could anything be stronger than Miss Clark's statement, or could a medicine do more good? These colds do seem to create an awful lot of sickness. Here is another case where a cold almost cost Mrs. C. White of Bath, Me., her life. She, too, found in "Blood Wine" THE MEDICINE THAT CURED. "Last spring I had a bad cold which quickly led into an attack of La Grippe. I was sick some little time, and I was as weak as I could be. I tried several medicines advertised as strengtheners, but did not gain in any way until I started on 'Blood Wine.' The first dose seemed to start the blood like the water down a cataract, which gave me a good appetite. Three bottles was all I took, and they cured me. The cough has entirely left and I have no bad traces of the grip. 'Blood Wine' is a splendid medicine, and no mistake."

Last winter, Mr. A. J. Kelly, one of the leading lawyers of Terre Haute, Ind., caught a bad cold, had the grip, and it left him with rheumatism. He was in a bad condition, but IT WAS "BLOOD WINE" that cured him after he had experimented with everything else. This is what Mr. Kelly says: "I had rheumatism so badly that at times I was unable to go to my office for weeks. After patiently doctoring without relief, I took three bottles of 'Blood Wine' and it entirely cured me. I must say that in my case it worked wonders, simply marvelous. It is the best I ever saw."

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL EAST LIVERPOOL, O.

THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1903.

Country roads are reported in a frightful condition. One needs not to traverse them to know that this is true. He can form a fairly correct idea of what they are like by looking at some of the unpaved streets of East Liverpool. Now is an excellent time to preach the gospel of road reform. Improved highways are needed everywhere. The people of St. Clair township, taking a common-sense view of the matter, are arranging to have a road to this city that cannot be rendered useless by spring and fall rains. Their example might be followed with profit and advantage by every township in the county.

According to reports from Cleveland, the trolley lines which radiate from that city are going to do considerable branching out the coming season. When the East Liverpoool & Youngstown electric line shall have been completed it will not be long until people can ride on electric cars from this city to Cleveland, Buffalo, Toledo, Detroit and other points further east and west. There are many who will then discover that a summer trip by electric cars is a refreshing and enjoyable experience.

Possibly southerners can understand why southern senators are making such a hard fight against the Panama canal, which will be more beneficial to southern than to northern states, but nobody else can explain their motive unless it be that the canal is an administration measure and they are "agin the administration."

The antis are no longer claiming Aguinaldo as one of their number since they have discovered that he proposed to erect a monarchy in the Philippines, and had promised titles of nobility in profusion to his close adherents.

It is no easy task to build or operate electric railroads over and around the hills of East Liverpool. That the city has men bold enough to attempt the difficult job speaks volumes for their enterprising spirit.

There is a surplus of $2,000,000 in the Philippine treasury. Those who predicted that the islands were to be a perpetual financial burden to this government were wrong in this, as in other predictions.

The midnight train from Pittsburg is said to have been known to reach East Liverpool on time, but the passenger who came in on the train when it was not late is yet to be discovered.

The Republican party will have two Democratic parties to fight next year, one of which will be Bryan's. That will make it all the more easy to achieve glorious victory.

The statue of Frederick the Great will not be sent to this country until next year. The feathers of both the American and German eagles are still a little ruffled.

A California bishop is soon to be placed on trial for various alleged offenses, one charge being that he played a game of tennis. He must have played badly.

There is one cause for thankfulness in connection with the present spring weather. It has not yet been of the sort to inspire the spring poets.

Even the senate is at last getting weary of Morgan's talk.

Maple Sugar Crop of the Western Reserve Disappointing Thus Far.

Chagrin Falls, March 12.—Unless weather conditions change the present will be the shortest and most unprofitable maple sugar season ever known on the western reserve. Maple sugar orchards of this region have only been open about ten days; only one good "run" of sap is reported by the producers, and during most of the time since the season opened rain has fallen steadily; there has been no freezing weather which is necessary to start the flow of maple sap again, and unless cold weather comes at once producers will have to turn their pails and quit the business for this year.

Thus far not 25 per cent of the usual yield has been procured in this region.

light and power purposes in the city was introduced, Dr. Marshall stated that he had not had time to investigate the matter and would not vote on it until he had. Council could do nothing with a member opposing, and an adjournment was made.

In selecting the route of the new line Mr. Smith had three different ones under consideration, and not until yesterday afternoon was the following, which appears in the franchise, adopted:

From Jefferson along Sixth street to the Diamond; along Market to Fifth street to Kossuth street or East Fifth street; along Kossuth street to Pennsylvania avenue; along Pennsylvania avenue to Vine street; along Vine street to Ravine street; along Ravine street to Pennsylvania avenue. From this point the route is along the north and south line of Pennsylvania avenue with two crossings over the road to State street, located just this side of the lower school house in the East End. Private right of way is used at this point and the line reaches Maple street.

The route then lies along Maple street to Locust alley, or the alley just north of the C. & P. tracks; along this alley to Virginia avenue, thence to Maple Tree street; to Boyce street; along Boyce street over private right of way to Erie street; thence to Globe street; thence to the east end thereof.

The branch line shall begin at the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Ravine street. From this point the line is as follows: To Thompson avenue, to Lilly street, to Ada street, to Ambrose street, to Riley avenue, to alley between lots 3089 and 3090, along alley to Chester avenue, to Bank street, to Avondale street, to Calcutta road, to the incorporated limits, with an extension along McKinnon avenue to the eastern line thereof.

AMUSEMENT PARK PROPOSED AT SALEM

Owner of the Driving Park Proposes An Enterprise on a Large Scale.

Salem, March 12.—P. J. Brennan, who a year ago came to this city and invested several thousand dollars in the Salem Driving Park and opened what is now claimed to be the best half mile track in the East Ohio circuit, is again considering another proposition which may be put into effect this coming year should the citizens of Salem show an inclination to help it along.

If encouraged he will give Salem a place of amusement where one can spend a few hours of recreation each day during the summer months if he so desires. Last summer he invested over $30,000 in improving the driving park and he is again willing to spend that much more for an amusement park if the citizens and business men especially will encourage the move. If he attempts to build the park he will use the 24 acres of woodland east of the driving park, which can be transformed into a beautiful recreation ground. He intends to build an artificial lake sufficiently large for boating and bathing. That part of the lake for bathing will be concreted and made of sufficient depth that even children can bathe without the danger of going beyond their depth as was done in Baltimore, Md., when the large artificial lake was constructed in that city.

A fine dancing pavilion would also adorn the grounds and a number of cottages and a place given to all kinds of sports where picnics would be of untold advantage to the city.

BALDNESS DUE TO A SMALL GERM

A Massachusetts Man Puts Forth Several New Ideas About Contagious Diseases.

Boston, March 12.—Ideas about disease, bright as new coins from the mint, were given out by Dr. C. G. Carleton, of Lawrence, in a lecture before the Universalist club last night. "Baldness," the doctor said, "is due to germs, and is contagious. Boils, ringworms, and appendicitis are all contagious. So is pneumonia. Disease is spread by dogs and cats. It comes, sometimes, in even more indirect ways. For instance, immigrants are stung by mosquitoes laden with rare and vicious germs found only in the depths of foreign swamps. Then the victims come to this country and spread the germs in the land of the free.

"Consumption, you know, is caused by germs, and germs alone. Every person's throat and lungs contain consumption germs, but a rundown condition is essential for them to breed. Germs must have soil and environment to thrive."

MRS. PENNELL DIES AT HOSPITAL

Never Regained Consciousness—In Ignorance of Her Death Father Hastens to Buffalo—Had Implicit Confidence in Pennell.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 12.—Mrs. Arthur Pennell died at the Sisters of Charity hospital. For hours the surgeons worked over the unconscious form of the injured woman. A faint twitching of the eyelids or murmur of pain were the only signs of returning consciousness perceptible during the 24 hours the injured woman was in the hospital ward. Towards evening a rising temperature and a quickening pulse warned the surgeons that the end was near and word was sent to her brother, who arrived from New York. Before he reached the hospital Mrs. Pennell's pulse ceased to beat. Except for a few incoherent words uttered when she was first taken to the hospital, Mrs. Pennell's lips did not move.

The body of Mr. Pennell was removed from the morgue to an undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. It was decided that the remains of both Mr. and Mrs. Pennell would be taken to Mr. Pennell's former home in Brunswick, Me., for burial.

Mrs. Abbey Y. Pennell, J. Fred Pennell, mother and brother of the dead man, and Harry W. Lamb, a brother of Mrs. Pennell, arrived from New York. They were at once driven to the Sisters' hospital and admitted to the ward where Mrs. Pennell lay unconscious, and stood beside her for 15 minutes. During that time the injured woman did not move. They then left the ward and were taken to the Pennell home on Cleveland avenue. All callers at the Pennell house were denied admission.

At 8 o'clock J. Fred Pennell, Mr. Lamb and Thomas Penney, ex-district attorney and a former partner of Mr. Pennell, went to the Austin building and searched the desk of the dead man. A policeman, who has been on guard ever since the fatal accident occurred, stood by while the search was being made. A number of important documents were found, including a will of recent date. It is not known when the will was drawn up, but it is said to have been within the last year. What the provisions of the will were is not known, as none of the three men who saw it would discuss the matter.

The automobile which carried Mr. Pennell and his wife in the plunge to the bottom of the stone quarry on Kensington avenue was carefully examined. The brakes and levers were given particularly close attention. Experts in the construction and manufacture of automobiles were called in. The result of the examination left no doubt in the minds of any of the men present that Mr. Pennell did everything in his power to regain control of the vehicle when it careened. The brakes were tightly set, the power indicator pointed to "reverse" and the track of the wheels in the soft earth on the ridge between the street pavement and the quarry showed that the wheels were turning backward when the machine sped forward to destruction.

Does Not Believe Suicide Theory.

St. Louis, March 12.—Uninformed of the death at Buffalo of Mrs. Carrie Pennell, his daughter, Winslow M. Lamb started for Buffalo. When the tidings of the death of his son-in-law and the probably fatal injury of his daughter at Buffalo were told to him he almost collapsed. He was told the full particulars and of the rumor that the automobile was designedly steered into the stone quarry.

"I do not believe the suicide theory," Mr. Lamb exclaimed. "I believe that Arthur would have vindicated himself of any connection with the Burdick murder when the time came. My daughter has stood by him in this case, and had he been guilty she would not have done so. I have telegraphed for information as to my daughter's condition, but have received no reply. The legacy my daughter received was not $300,000, as has been stated, but about $143,000."

Mr. Lamb was accompanied to the train by friends and retired immediately. He could not be located until just before the train pulled out of the station, and his friends would not permit him to be aroused and informed of his daughter's death, which occurred earlier in the evening.

Possibly southerners can understand why southern senators are making such a hard fight against the Panama canal, which will be more beneficial to southern than to northern states, but nobody else can explain their motive unless it be that the canal is an administration measure and they are "agin the administration."

The antis are no longer claiming Aguinaldo as one of their number since they have discovered that he proposed to erect a monarchy in the Philippines, and had promised titles of nobility in profusion to his close adherents.

It is no easy task to build or operate electric railroads over and around the hills of East Liverpool. That the city has men bold enough to attempt the difficult job speaks volumes for their enterprising spirit.

There is a surplus of $2,000,000 in the Philippine treasury. Those who predicted that the islands were to be a perpetual financial burden to this government were wrong in this, as in other predictions.

The midnight train from Pittsburg is said to have been known to reach East Liverpool on time, but the passenger who came in on the train when it was not late is yet to be discovered.

The Republican party will have two Democratic parties to fight next year, one of which will be Bryan's. That will make it all the more easy to achieve glorious victory.

The statue of Frederick the Great will not be sent to this country until next year. The feathers of both the American and German eagles are still a little ruffled.

A California bishop is soon to be placed on trial for various alleged offenses, one charge being that he played a game of tennis. He must have played badly.

There is one cause for thankfulness in connection with the present spring weather. It has not yet been of the sort to inspire the spring poets.

Even the senate is at last getting weary of Morgan's talk.

Maple Sugar Crop of the Western Reserve Disappointing Thus Far.

Chagrin Falls, March 12.—Unless weather conditions change the present will be the shortest and most unprofitable maple sugar season ever known on the western reserve. Maple sugar orchards of this region have only been open about ten days; only one good "run" of sap is reported by the producers, and during most of the time since the season opened rain has fallen steadily; there has been no freezing weather which is necessary to start the flow of maple sap again, and unless cold weather comes at once producers will have to turn their pails and quit the business for this year.

AMUSEMENT PARK PROPOSED AT SALEM

Owner of the Driving Park Proposes An Enterprise on a Large Scale.

Salem, March 12.—P. J. Brennan, who a year ago came to this city and invested several thousand dollars in the Salem Driving Park and opened what is now claimed to be the best half mile track in the East Ohio circuit, is again considering another proposition which may be put into effect this coming year should the citizens of Salem show an inclination to help it along.

If encouraged he will give Salem a place of amusement where one can spend a few hours of recreation each day during the summer months if he so desires. Last summer he invested over $30,000 in improving the driving park and he is again willing to spend that much more for an amusement park if the citizens and business men especially will encourage the move. If he attempts to build the park he will use the 24 acres of woodland east of the driving park, which can be transformed into a beautiful recreation ground. He intends to build an artificial lake sufficiently large for boating and bathing. That part of the lake for bathing will be concreted and made of sufficient depth that even children can bathe without the danger of going beyond their depth as was done in Baltimore, Md., when the large artificial lake was constructed in that city.

A fine dancing pavilion would also adorn the grounds and a number of cottages and a place given to all kinds of sports where picnics would be of untold advantage to the city.

BALDNESS DUE TO A SMALL GERM

A Massachusetts Man Puts Forth Several New Ideas About Contagious Diseases.

Boston, March 12.—Ideas about disease, bright as new coins from the mint, were given out by Dr. C. G. Carleton, of Lawrence, in a lecture before the Universalist club last night. "Baldness," the doctor said, "is due to germs, and is contagious. Boils, ringworms, and appendicitis are all contagious. So is pneumonia. Disease is spread by dogs and cats. It comes, sometimes, in even more indirect ways. For instance, immigrants are stung by mosquitoes laden with rare and vicious germs found only in the depths of foreign swamps. Then the victims come to this country and spread the germs in the land of the free.

"Consumption, you know, is caused by germs, and germs alone. Every person's throat and lungs contain consumption germs, but a rundown condition is essential for them to breed. Germs must have soil and environment to thrive."

MRS. PENNELL DIES AT HOSPITAL

Buffalo, N. Y., March 12.—Mrs. Arthur Pennell died at the Sisters of Charity hospital. For hours the surgeons worked over the unconscious form of the injured woman. A faint twitching of the eyelids or murmur of pain were the only signs of returning consciousness perceptible during the 24 hours the injured woman was in the hospital ward. Towards evening a rising temperature and a quickening pulse warned the surgeons that the end was near and word was sent to her brother, who arrived from New York. Before he reached the hospital Mrs. Pennell's pulse ceased to beat. Except for a few incoherent words uttered when she was first taken to the hospital, Mrs. Pennell's lips did not move.

The body of Mr. Pennell was removed from the morgue to an undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. It was decided that the remains of both Mr. and Mrs. Pennell would be taken to Mr. Pennell's former home in Brunswick, Me., for burial.

Mrs. Abbey Y. Pennell, J. Fred Pennell, mother and brother of the dead man, and Harry W. Lamb, a brother of Mrs. Pennell, arrived from New York. They were at once driven to the Sisters' hospital and admitted to the ward where Mrs. Pennell lay unconscious, and stood beside her for 15 minutes. During that time the injured woman did not move. They then left the ward and were taken to the Pennell home on Cleveland avenue. All callers at the Pennell house were denied admission.

At 8 o'clock J. Fred Pennell, Mr. Lamb and Thomas Penney, ex-district attorney and a former partner of Mr. Pennell, went to the Austin building and searched the desk of the dead man. A policeman, who has been on guard ever since the fatal accident occurred, stood by while the search was being made. A number of important documents were found, including a will of recent date. It is not known when the will was drawn up, but it is said to have been within the last year. What the provisions of the will were is not known, as none of the three men who saw it would discuss the matter.

The automobile which carried Mr. Pennell and his wife in the plunge to the bottom of the stone quarry on Kensington avenue was carefully examined. The brakes and levers were given particularly close attention. Experts in the construction and manufacture of automobiles were called in. The result of the examination left no doubt in the minds of any of the men present that Mr. Pennell did everything in his power to regain control of the vehicle when it careened. The brakes were tightly set, the power indicator pointed to "reverse" and the track of the wheels in the soft earth on the ridge between the street pavement and the quarry showed that the wheels were turning backward when the machine sped forward to destruction.

Does Not Believe Suicide Theory.

St. Louis, March 12.—Uninformed of the death at Buffalo of Mrs. Carrie Pennell, his daughter, Winslow M. Lamb started for Buffalo. When the tidings of the death of his son-in-law and the probably fatal injury of his daughter at Buffalo were told to him he almost collapsed. He was told the full particulars and of the rumor that the automobile was designedly steered into the stone quarry.

"I do not believe the suicide theory," Mr. Lamb exclaimed. "I believe that Arthur would have vindicated himself of any connection with the Burdick murder when the time came. My daughter has stood by him in this case, and had he been guilty she would not have done so. I have telegraphed for information as to my daughter's condition, but have received no reply. The legacy my daughter received was not $300,000, as has been stated, but about $143,000."

Mr. Lamb was accompanied to the train by friends and retired immediately. He could not be located until just before the train pulled out of the station, and his friends would not permit him to be aroused and informed of his daughter's death, which occurred earlier in the evening.

THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1903.

Country roads are reported in a frightful condition. One needs not to traverse them to know that this is true. He can form a fairly correct idea of what they are like by looking at some of the unpaved streets of East Liverpool. Now is an excellent time to preach the gospel of road reform. Improved highways are needed everywhere. The people of St. Clair township, taking a common-sense view of the matter, are arranging to have a road to this city that cannot be rendered useless by spring and fall rains. Their example might be followed with profit and advantage by every township in the county.

According to reports from Cleveland, the trolley lines which radiate from that city are going to do considerable branching out the coming season. When the East Liverpoool & Youngstown electric line shall have been completed it will not be long until people can ride on electric cars from this city to Cleveland, Buffalo, Toledo, Detroit and other points further east and west. There are many who will then discover that a summer trip by electric cars is a refreshing and enjoyable experience.

Possibly southerners can understand why southern senators are making such a hard fight against the Panama canal, which will be more beneficial to southern than to northern states, but nobody else can explain their motive unless it be that the canal is an administration measure and they are "agin the administration."

The antis are no longer claiming Aguinaldo as one of their number since they have discovered that he proposed to erect a monarchy in the Philippines, and had promised titles of nobility in profusion to his close adherents.

MRS. PENNELL DIES AT HOSPITAL

Buffalo, N. Y., March 12.—Mrs. Arthur Pennell died at the Sisters of Charity hospital. For hours the surgeons worked over the unconscious form of the injured woman. A faint twitching of the eyelids or murmur of pain were the only signs of returning consciousness perceptible during the 24 hours the injured woman was in the hospital ward. Towards evening a rising temperature and a quickening pulse warned the surgeons that the end was near and word was sent to her brother, who arrived from New York. Before he reached the hospital Mrs. Pennell's pulse ceased to beat. Except for a few incoherent words uttered when she was first taken to the hospital, Mrs. Pennell's lips did not move.

The body of Mr. Pennell was removed from the morgue to an undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. It was decided that the remains of both Mr. and Mrs. Pennell would be taken to Mr. Pennell's former home in Brunswick, Me., for burial.

Mrs. Abbey Y. Pennell, J. Fred Pennell, mother and brother of the dead man, and Harry W. Lamb, a brother of Mrs. Pennell, arrived from New York. They were at once driven to the Sisters' hospital and admitted to the ward where Mrs. Pennell lay unconscious, and stood beside her for 15 minutes. During that time the injured woman did not move. They then left the ward and were taken to the Pennell home on Cleveland avenue. All callers at the Pennell house were denied admission.

At 8 o'clock J. Fred Pennell, Mr. Lamb and Thomas Penney, ex-district attorney and a former partner of Mr. Pennell, went to the Austin building and searched the desk of the dead man. A policeman, who has been on guard ever since the fatal accident occurred, stood by while the search was being made. A number of important documents were found, including a will of recent date. It is not known when the will was drawn up, but it is said to have been within the last year. What the provisions of the will were is not known, as none of the three men who saw it would discuss the matter.

The automobile which carried Mr. Pennell and his wife in the plunge to the bottom of the stone quarry on Kensington avenue was carefully examined. The brakes and levers were given particularly close attention. Experts in the construction and manufacture of automobiles were called in. The result of the examination left no doubt in the minds of any of the men present that Mr. Pennell did everything in his power to regain control of the vehicle when it careened. The brakes were tightly set, the power indicator pointed to "reverse" and the track of the wheels in the soft earth on the ridge between the street pavement and the quarry showed that the wheels were turning backward when the machine sped forward to destruction.

Does Not Believe Suicide Theory.

St. Louis, March 12.—Uninformed of the death at Buffalo of Mrs. Carrie Pennell, his daughter, Winslow M. Lamb started for Buffalo. When the tidings of the death of his son-in-law and the probably fatal injury of his daughter at Buffalo were told to him he almost collapsed. He was told the full particulars and of the rumor that the automobile was designedly steered into the stone quarry.

"I do not believe the suicide theory," Mr. Lamb exclaimed. "I believe that Arthur would have vindicated himself of any connection with the Burdick murder when the time came. My daughter has stood by him in this case, and had he been guilty she would not have done so. I have telegraphed for information as to my daughter's condition, but have received no reply. The legacy my daughter received was not $300,000, as has been stated, but about $143,000."

Mr. Lamb was accompanied to the train by friends and retired immediately. He could not be located until just before the train pulled out of the station, and his friends would not permit him to be aroused and informed of his daughter's death, which occurred earlier in the evening.

WELLSVILLE

SEIZED BY THE THROAT BY A COLORED MAN

Wellsville Woman the Victim of a Brutal Attack Upon the Street.

Particulars have just come to light of a daring assault which occurred Monday evening. The victim was Mrs. J. M. Nelson, whose home is on Main street, near Tenth street. Miss Mackie, who had been at Nelson's for supper that evening, started to go home. The street being very dark and lonely, Mrs. Nelson accompanied her as far as Eighteenth street. As they passed the new house of Mr. Dowling they saw a man in the darkness, but paid no attention, passing on by the house toward the West End.

After they had walked on about three blocks the ladies noticed a man behind them a short distance. This did not frighten them, as they thought he was just returning home from town. When they arrived at Eighteenth street the ladies parted, Miss Mackie going to her home on Nevada street and Mrs. Nelson turned to return home. As she passed Schafer's restaurant she was surprised not to see the man who had been following her. Just as she reached Dowling's new residence she was seized by the throat and would have been choken unmercifully had it not been for the high stiff collar she was wearing. She screamed, and the man, a negro, took to his heels. No one answered her cries, but after she arrived at her home she notified several neighbors of the occurrence and a search was at once instituted, but the man could not be found, nor has he been seen since.

The affair was not reported to the police, but they will no doubt take the matter up at once. The description of the man given by Mrs. Nelson tallies precisely with that given by several young ladies of the city who have been followed in the same manner. If the negro is located he will no doubt be dealt with severely.

FALL OF ATLANTA

Interesting Performance to be Given to Help Soldiers' Monument Fund.

The rehearsals for the "Fall of Atlanta" have been faithfully attended by all who are to take part and each one has his respective lines perfectly committed. Mr. Connell, who is directing the play, has thoroughly drilled the actors in their different parts, and is greatly pleased with the interest all are taking to make the performance a success.

The play is to be given under the auspices of the Sons of Veterans, the proceeds to be used for the erection of a soldiers' monument. If the play itself is not a sufficient inducement to bring a large crowd, then the cause should call forth the liberal support of all. There will be three performances given, this evening, Friday evening and Saturday evening.

The following are the local people who will take part: G. M. Campbell, George Imbrie, Chas. R. McGregor, Thos. McClure, Richard Methenic, E. R. Cummings, William Morris, Ray Daugherty, Fred Dodge, Thomas Sheets, Jesse Davidson, Chas Hill, Gus Snider, Grace Parke, Helen Bailey Mary Noss and Lilliam Heakin.

DOG POISONERS IN WELLSVILLE

Five Animals, Some of Them Valuable, Found Dead This Morning.

The poisoning of dogs seems to be a fad recently adopted by several Wellsville people. Between Fifth and Sixth streets on Main street five dogs died this morning, all appearing to have received the same kind of poison. Among the dead is Jack, the valuable white bulldog of Edward Bunting. This dog was sent to Mr. Bunting from Boston by his daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Leybourne. C. V. Shoub's little dog was another of the poor brutes. The other three dogs as yet have not been claimed.

As far as is known all these dogs were perfectly harmless. An investigation will be made at once. Should the guilty parties be found they may receive rough treatment at the hands of some of the dog owners.

A fight occurred yesterday on Main street between Harry Kountz, of Wellsville, and William Smith, a gypsy who camps near Salineville. It arose over Smith having queered a horse deal between his father and Kountz some time ago. The fight had not progressed very long when Officer Davis appeared on the scene and arrested Smith and conveyed him to the city lockup. He was given a hearing before Mayor Fogo and fined the usual amount, $4.60, and ordered to leave town at once.

EGGS IN GREAT DEMAND AND PRICES GOING UP

A Jump From 18 to 22 Cents Per Dozen Has Taken Place Since Yesterday.

Already people are beginning to feel the effect of the observance of Lent. During that time there is a great demand for eggs, as meats of any kind are tabooed by the strict observers of that period. The price of eggs has been low for some time, but today it took a sudden jump skyward. Yesterday eggs could be purchased for 17 and 18 cents per dozen. Today it is different and in order to get them it is necessary to pay 22 cents.

The cause of this has been the failure of the packets to bring the quantity of eggs ordered by the local dealers. In fact, it seems that the boats brought less than the regular supply owing to the increase in the demand for eggs everywhere. Dealers who had ordered twenty cases received seven or eight. Just how long the egg famine will last is hard to tell. An extra effort will be made to secure a big supply to accommodate the demand.

Cards And Dancing.

A most enjoyable social event was the party given last evening by Miss Mayme Vincent, of Pleasant street, for about 20 of her young friends Cards and dancing were the chief amusements. Miss Helen Hales and Fred Howard excelled at the game and were awarded the prizes. Refreshments were served.

Court Will Meet Oftener.

A law was passed at the last session of the legislature that will assist in the disposition of the accumulated legal cases of the district. The circuit court will meet every three months instead of four. The dates set for the convening of court will be the fourth Monday in January and the second Mondays in May, July and November. The law does not go into effect until 1905.

Postoffice Business Better.

The report for the last quarter of the Chester postoffice, sent to Washington, showed a decided increase in the amount of mail matter handled, as well as largely increased receipts. The receipts from registered letters alone amounted to $227. This increases can be accounted for from the fact of the large amount of money sent to Europe by the foreigners employed about the mill.

Leased for Oil Drilling.

O. W. Harvey has leased his farm of 114 acres, back of Rock Springs park, to Murray & Miller, of New Cumberland. A clause in the lease binds the firm to drill in a well inside of three months, and operations will be commenced at once.

BE YOUR OWN JUDGE

Mi-o-na Costs You Nothing If It Does Not Cure, Says Druggist Will Reed.

Mi-o-na, the remarkable flesh-forming food and cure for dyspepsia, has won fame by the unusual way in which it is sold. It is the only remedy offered for the cure of dyspepsia which costs the user absolutely nothing unless it cures.

Will Reed, the popular druggist, is selling a great many packages of Mi-o-na and with every box is given his personal guarantee to refund the money if Mi-o-na does not give satisfaction, you to be your own judge as to whether the remedy helps or not.

Mi-o-na is an unusual combination, it is a flesh-forming food, combined with agents that regulate the digestive organs and remove irritation, congestion and inflammation from the stomash, liver and intestines. It enables those organs to extract from the food all that goes to make good, rich blood, firm muscle, steady nerves and a sound body. It does not contain any pepsin, pancreatin or other drugs that never effect a cure and rarely give even temporary relief.

Mi-o-na puts the digestive system into proper working order, gives health, strength and good flesh, and is the only natural cure for indigestion. Even in chronic cases, where life is one long drawn-out pain, this remedy will effect a cure. It is the simplest and most reliable of all remedies. Just one small tablet before or after meals and you can eat a hearty meal with no distress.

If Mi-o-na does not do all that is claimed for it, Druggist Will Reed will cheerfully return your money.

AN AUTOMOBILE FIRE ENGINE.

Oil is the fuel employed by this automobile fire engine and the steam it generates is used alike for the propulsion of the machine and for pumping the water through the hose. This particular engine is the invention of an Englishman, who has succeeded in having it adopted by the London fire brigade. It is said that Chicago will shortly experiment with a couple of these machines. If they should do all that is claimed for them, it may not be many years before horses as an adjunct of a fire department will be things of the past. These machines have under rather unfavorable conditions attained a speed in excess of fifteen miles an hour.

The Arizona Kicker

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

It is remarked in a St. Louis paper that the game of poker would never have been known in this town but for our efforts. We reply that it was here and in full swing when we arrived, and the only part we have played in the matter has been a losing one. We have never had an ace full that some one else hadn't fours to beat us.

We do not know the name of the man who waylaid us last Tuesday night on Cochise place as we were returning home from Mrs. McGee's high tea, but as he was limping when he disappeared in the darkness we are willing to pay a doctor for digging the bullet out of his leg.

HE WAS LIMPING WHEN HE DISAPPEARED IN THE DARKNESS.

It is stated in a Buffalo paper that we have made four different attempts to assassinate the editor of the other weekly paper published in this town. Here we laugh. It is a well known fact that our esteemed has pegged away at us about three times a week for the last five years, but up to date has not even cut a button from our coat.

We find in a Montana paper the statement that we make a practice of killing at least two Chinamen each month in the year. Sing Lee has been with us for the last five years as pressman and is alive and well today, and all communications on this subject can be addressed to him.

It was reserved for a Detroit newspaper to announce that we stood by and laughed in fiendish glee while a grizzly bear ate up a companion who was hunting with us. We have never hunted the grizzly. We have never seen one, dead or alive, in this territory. In fact, we have not seen a bear of any species, and, as for "fiendish glee," we couldn't come within forty rods of it if we tried ever so hard.

A Baltimore paper gives credence to the report that we shoot men dead in their tracks for refusing to subscribe to our paper. This is an original way of building up a circulation, and we call the attention of our contemporaries to it.

An Ohio editor has learned from a reliable source that we are constantly surrounded by a bodyguard of twelve desperate men and but for that fact we would be lynched within an hour. If that editor saw us strolling around town, with our hands clasped under our coattails, he'd probably invent some other canard.

We bought another mountain the other day, making five that we now own, and if any of our esteemed eastern contemporaries can spare a couple of weeks this winter we will give them no end of sliding down hill on the trail of grizzly bears. We believe we are the only editor in the world owning five mountains and each and all of them wild and untamable.

We proceeded to the general offices of the Giveadam Gulch Stage company the other day and leveled two guns on the president and demanded that our annual pass be renewed. After a bluff or two it was renewed. It always is, but we have to go through the same old programme year after year.

The fact that we now and then take a hand in a game of poker is not considered by the postmaster general to be against our usefulness as postmaster, and the people who are trying to make a handle of it might as well save their breath.

A Tucson paper announces that we have the cheek to aspire to the governorship of Arizona. 'Tis true, and we'll bet a hat that we get there; afterward—the presidency! We are a critter of such aims and ambitions that it makes our hair stand up now and then. M. QUAD.

What He Thought.

Old Gentleman (nearsighted)—Who is that stranger coming up the walk, daughter?

Daughter—Why, that is Reggie, papa! You know I told you he was coming to speak to you today.

Old Gentleman—Ah, yes! I see now. Don't you know, at first I thought it was a man.—Chicago News.

Knew How.

"Old Hunks told you more of his business secrets in five minutes than he has ever told anybody else in five years. How did you worm it out of him?"

"I didn't do any worming at all. I just patted him on the back and let him pur."—Chicago Tribune.

Softer.

"I have no doubt you have heard some stories to my discredit," he said.

"I don't like to put it in that way," she quietly replied.

"How then?" he hopefully asked.

"I have never heard any stories to your credit," said she.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Take Your Choice.

Student—What is pessimism?

Philosopher—The faith of cowards.

"Then what is optimism?"

"The faith of fools."—New York Weekly.

Imagination Needed.

Scribbler—It doesn't require much imagination or inventive ability to write a historical novel.

The Last Straw.

"Well, what do you want now?" queried old Growells as the insurance solicitor entered his office. "You have bullied me into insuring my life, my store and the title to my real estate. What is there left to insure?"

"I just dropped in," calmly replied the man with the adamantine cheek, "to see if you would like to insure your insurance policies."—Chicago News.

Wrong Address.

He—I want a wife that can cook.

She—Excuse me, but this is not an employment bureau.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Unreasonable Woman.

"This thermometer," complained the customer, "is no good. I can never tell by it how cold it is."

"Consider, my dear woman," replied the Boston shopkeeper, "the word 'thermometer' is derived from two Greek words meaning 'measure of heat.' The instrument is designed to measure heat, madam, not cold."—Philadelphia Press.

WELLSVILLE

Wellsville Woman the Victim of a Brutal Attack Upon the Street.

Particulars have just come to light of a daring assault which occurred Monday evening. The victim was Mrs. J. M. Nelson, whose home is on Main street, near Tenth street. Miss Mackie, who had been at Nelson's for supper that evening, started to go home. The street being very dark and lonely, Mrs. Nelson accompanied her as far as Eighteenth street. As they passed the new house of Mr. Dowling they saw a man in the darkness, but paid no attention, passing on by the house toward the West End.

After they had walked on about three blocks the ladies noticed a man behind them a short distance. This did not frighten them, as they thought he was just returning home from town. When they arrived at Eighteenth street the ladies parted, Miss Mackie going to her home on Nevada street and Mrs. Nelson turned to return home. As she passed Schafer's restaurant she was surprised not to see the man who had been following her. Just as she reached Dowling's new residence she was seized by the throat and would have been choken unmercifully had it not been for the high stiff collar she was wearing. She screamed, and the man, a negro, took to his heels. No one answered her cries, but after she arrived at her home she notified several neighbors of the occurrence and a search was at once instituted, but the man could not be found, nor has he been seen since.

The affair was not reported to the police, but they will no doubt take the matter up at once. The description of the man given by Mrs. Nelson tallies precisely with that given by several young ladies of the city who have been followed in the same manner. If the negro is located he will no doubt be dealt with severely.

FALL OF ATLANTA

Interesting Performance to be Given to Help Soldiers' Monument Fund.

The rehearsals for the "Fall of Atlanta" have been faithfully attended by all who are to take part and each one has his respective lines perfectly committed. Mr. Connell, who is directing the play, has thoroughly drilled the actors in their different parts, and is greatly pleased with the interest all are taking to make the performance a success.

The play is to be given under the auspices of the Sons of Veterans, the proceeds to be used for the erection of a soldiers' monument. If the play itself is not a sufficient inducement to bring a large crowd, then the cause should call forth the liberal support of all. There will be three performances given, this evening, Friday evening and Saturday evening.

The following are the local people who will take part: G. M. Campbell, George Imbrie, Chas. R. McGregor, Thos. McClure, Richard Methenic, E. R. Cummings, William Morris, Ray Daugherty, Fred Dodge, Thomas Sheets, Jesse Davidson, Chas Hill, Gus Snider, Grace Parke, Helen Bailey Mary Noss and Lilliam Heakin.

DOG POISONERS IN WELLSVILLE

Five Animals, Some of Them Valuable, Found Dead This Morning.

The poisoning of dogs seems to be a fad recently adopted by several Wellsville people. Between Fifth and Sixth streets on Main street five dogs died this morning, all appearing to have received the same kind of poison. Among the dead is Jack, the valuable white bulldog of Edward Bunting. This dog was sent to Mr. Bunting from Boston by his daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Leybourne. C. V. Shoub's little pug dog was another of the poor brutes. The other three dogs as yet have not been claimed.

As far as is known all these dogs were perfectly harmless. An investigation will be made at once. Should the guilty parties be found they may receive rough treatment at the hands of some of the dog owners.

EGGS IN GREAT DEMAND AND PRICES GOING UP

A Jump From 18 to 22 Cents Per Dozen Has Taken Place Since Yesterday.

Already people are beginning to feel the effect of the observance of Lent. During that time there is a great demand for eggs, as meats of any kind are tabooed by the strict observers of that period. The price of eggs has been low for some time, but today it took a sudden jump skyward. Yesterday eggs could be purchased for 17 and 18 cents per dozen. Today it is different and in order to get them it is necessary to pay 22 cents.

The cause of this has been the failure of the packets to bring the quantity of eggs ordered by the local dealers. In fact, it seems that the boats brought less than the regular supply owing to the increase in the demand for eggs everywhere. Dealers who had ordered twenty cases received seven or eight. Just how long the egg famine will last is hard to tell. An extra effort will be made to secure a big supply to accommodate the demand.

Cards And Dancing.

A most enjoyable social event was the party given last evening by Miss Mayme Vincent, of Pleasant street, for about 20 of her young friends Cards and dancing were the chief amusements. Miss Helen Hales and Fred Howard excelled at the game and were awarded the prizes. Refreshments were served

Cunningham, assisting the carpenters on the house of Richard Allison, of Middle Run, missed his footing while walking the joists of the second story, and fell heavily to the ground, badly bruising his legs. No bones were broken, and Mr. Cunningham was able to reach his home, near Asbury chapel, unassisted.

Court Will Meet Oftener.

A law was passed at the last session of the legislature that will assist in the disposition of the accumulated legal cases of the district. The circuit court will meet every three months instead of four. The dates set for the convening of court will be the fourth Monday in January and the second Mondays in May, July and November. The law does not go into effect until 1905.

Postoffice Business Better.

The report for the last quarter of the Chester postoffice, sent to Washington, showed a decided increase in the amount of mail matter handled, as well as largely increased receipts. The receipts from registered letters alone amounted to $227. This increases can be accounted for from the fact of the large amount of money sent to Europe by the foreigners employed about the mill.

Leased for Oil Drilling.

O. W. Harvey has leased his farm of 114 acres, back of Rock Springs park, to Murray & Miller, of New Cumberland. A clause in the lease binds the firm to drill in a well inside of three months, and operations will be commenced at once.

A wagon belonging to John Schleiter got stuck in the mud at Carolina avenue and Second street. The mud was of such depth that the horse in trying to extricate the wagon, broke the single tree and broke the tongue of the wagon off.

BE YOUR OWN JUDGE

Mi-o-na, the remarkable flesh-forming food and cure for dyspepsia, has won fame by the unusual way in which it is sold. It is the only remedy offered for the cure of dyspepsia which costs the user absolutely nothing unless it cures.

Will Reed, the popular druggist, is selling a great many packages of Mi-o-na and with every box is given his personal guarantee to refund the money if Mi-o-na does not give satisfaction, you to be your own judge as to whether the remedy helps or not.

Mi-o-na is an unusual combination, it is a flesh-forming food, combined with agents that regulate the digestive organs and remove irritation, congestion and inflammation from the stomach, liver and intestines. It enables those organs to extract from the food all that goes to make good, rich blood, firm muscle, steady nerves and a sound body. It does not contain any pepsin, pancreatin or other drugs that never effect a cure and rarely give even temporary relief.

Mi-o-na puts the digestive system into proper working order, gives health, strength and good flesh, and is the only natural cure for indigestion. Even in chronic cases, where life is one long drawn-out pain, this remedy will effect a cure. It is the simplest and most reliable of all remedies. Just one small tablet before or after meals and you can eat a hearty meal with no distress.

If Mi-o-na does not do all that is claimed for it, Druggist Will Reed will cheerfully return your money.

AN AUTOMOBILE FIRE ENGINE.

Oil is the fuel employed by this automobile fire engine and the steam it generates is used alike for the propulsion of the machine and for pumping the water through the hose. This particular engine is the invention of an Englishman, who has succeeded in having it adopted by the London fire brigade. It is said that Chicago will shortly experiment with a couple of these machines. If they should do all that is claimed for them, it may not be many years before horses as an adjunct of a fire department will be things of the past. These machines have under rather unfavorable conditions attained a speed in excess of fifteen miles an hour.

The ARIZONA KICKER

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

It is remarked in a St. Louis paper that the game of poker would never have been known in this town but for our efforts. We reply that it was here and in full swing when we arrived, and the only part we have played in the matter has been a losing one. We have never had an ace full that some one else hadn't fours to beat us.

We do not know the name of the man who waylaid us last Tuesday night on Cochise place as we were returning home from Mrs. McGee's high tea, but as he was limping when he disappeared in the darkness we are willing to pay a doctor for digging the bullet out of his leg.

HE WAS LIMPING WHEN HE DISAPPEARED IN THE DARKNESS.

It is stated in a Buffalo paper that we have made four different attempts to assassinate the editor of the other weekly paper published in this town. Here we laugh. It is a well known fact that our esteemed has pegged away at us about three times a week for the last five years, but up to date has not even cut a button from our coat.

We find in a Montana paper the statement that we make a practice of killing at least two Chinamen each month in the year. Sing Lee has been with us for the last five years as pressman and is alive and well today, and all communications on this subject can be addressed to him.

It was reserved for a Detroit newspaper to announce that we stood by and laughed in fiendish glee while a grizzly bear ate up a companion who was hunting with us. We have never hunted the grizzly. We have never seen one, dead or alive, in this territory. In fact, we have not seen a bear of any species, and, as for "fiendish glee," we couldn't come within forty rods of it if we tried ever so hard.

A Baltimore paper gives credence to the report that we shoot men dead in their tracks for refusing to subscribe to our paper. This is an original way of building up a circulation, and we call the attention of our contemporaries to it.

An Ohio editor has learned from a reliable source that we are constantly surrounded by a bodyguard of twelve desperate men and but for that fact we would be lynched within an hour. If that editor saw us strolling around town, with our hands clasped under our coattails, he'd probably invent some other canard.

We bought another mountain the other day, making five that we now own, and if any of our esteemed eastern contemporaries can spare a couple of weeks this winter we will give them no end of sliding down hill on the trail of grizzly bears. We believe we are the only editor in the world owning five mountains and each and all of them wild and untamable.

We proceeded to the general offices of the Giveadam Gulch Stage company the other day and leveled two guns on the president and demanded that our annual pass be renewed. After a bluff or two it was renewed. It always is, but we have to go through the same old programme year after year.

The fact that we now and then take a hand in a game of poker is not considered by the postmaster general to be against our usefulness as postmaster, and the people who are trying to make a handle of it might as well save their breath.

A Tucson paper announces that we have the cheek to aspire to the governorship of Arizona. 'Tis true, and we'll bet a hat that we get there; afterward—the presidency! We are a critter of such aims and ambitions that it makes our hair stand up now and then. M. QUAD.

Daughter—Why, that is Reggie, papa! You know I told you he was coming to speak to you today.

Knew How.

"Old Hanks told you more of his business secrets in five minutes than he has ever told anybody else in five years. How did you worm it out of him?"

"I didn't do any worming at all. I just patted him on the back and let him purr."—Chicago Tribune.

Softer.

"I have no doubt you have heard some stories to my discredit," he said.

"I don't like to put it in that way," she quietly replied.

"How then?" he hopefully asked.

"I have never heard any stories to your credit," said she.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Consider, my dear woman," replied the Boston shopkeeper, "the word 'thermometer' is derived from two Greek words meaning 'measure of heat.' The instrument is designed to measure heat, madam, not cold."—Philadelphia Press.

Mrs. Thomas McIntosh went to Richmond, Ind., to visit her father, Lewis Olliger, of that city.

Miss Mary Snider, of Akron, has returned home after a visit with Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Vandersall.

Mrs. Stitz, of Fourth street, is seriously ill with catarrhal fever. There is little hope for her recovery.

W. R. Bilkey, who has been employed with H. G. Conn, the harnessmaker, for several years, left today for Warren, where he will be engaged in the harness business.

EGGS IN GREAT DEMAND AND PRICES GOING UP

A Jump From 18 to 22 Cents Per Dozen Has Taken Place Since Yesterday.

Already people are beginning to feel the effect of the observance of Lent. During that time there is a great demand for eggs, as meats of any kind are tabooed by the strict observers of that period. The price of eggs has been low for some time, but today it took a sudden jump skyward. Yesterday eggs could be purchased for 17 and 18 cents per dozen. Today it is different and in order to get them it is necessary to pay 22 cents.

The cause of this has been the failure of the packets to bring the quantity of eggs ordered by the local dealers. In fact, it seems that the boats brought less than the regular supply owing to the increase in the demand for eggs everywhere. Dealers who had ordered twenty cases received seven or eight. Just how long the egg famine will last is hard to tell. An extra effort will be made to secure a big supply to accommodate the demand.

Cards And Dancing.

A most enjoyable social event was the party given last evening by Miss Mayme Vincent, of Pleasant street, for about 20 of her young friends Cards and dancing were the chief amusements. Miss Helen Hales and Fred Howard excelled at the game and were awarded the prizes. Refreshments were served.

SOUTH SIDE

FELL FROM SECOND STORY

R. M. Cunningham Meets With an Accident While Assisting Carpenters.

R. M. Cunningham, assisting the carpenters on the house of Richard Allison, of Middle Run, missed his footing while walking the joists of the second story, and fell heavily to the ground, badly bruising his legs. No bones were broken, and Mr. Cunningham was able to reach his home, near Asbury chapel, unassisted.

Court Will Meet Oftener.

A law was passed at the last session of the legislature that will assist in the disposition of the accumulated legal cases of the district. The circuit court will meet every three months instead of four. The dates set for the convening of court will be the fourth Monday in January and the second Mondays in May, July and November. The law does not go into effect until 1905.

Postoffice Business Better.

The report for the last quarter of the Chester postoffice, sent to Washington, showed a decided increase in the amount of mail matter handled, as well as largely increased receipts. The receipts from registered letters alone amounted to $227. This increases can be accounted for from the fact of the large amount of money sent to Europe by the foreigners employed about the mill.

Leased for Oil Drilling.

O. W. Harvey has leased his farm of 114 acres, back of Rock Springs park, to Murray & Miller, of New Cumberland. A clause in the lease binds the firm to drill in a well inside of three months, and operations will be commenced at once.

Wagon Wrecked in Mud.

A wagon belonging to John Schleiter got stuck in the mud at Carolina avenue and Second street. The mud was of such depth that the horse in trying to extricate the wagon, broke the single tree and broke the tongue of the wagon off.

CHESTER NOTES.

Miss Abbie Rowley, of Carolina avenue, is recovering from her illness.

Mrs. Hardy Snyder, of Cunningham street, is recovering from her recent illness.

Clark T. McCutcheon has gone on a business trip to Parkersburg for a few days.

Mrs. J. B. Shaw, of McKee's Rocks, Pa., is moving into a house in the mill addition.

John Gill, who broke his leg at the mill some weeks ago, is able to be out of the house.

Joseph B. McDonald, who has been confined to the house with an attack of mumps, is recovering.

Asa H. Geon has purchased a lot on Third and Indiana avenue and will erect a house on it.

Rev. Dr. J. C. Taggart, D. D., of East Liverpool, will preach at the U. P. chapel on Saturday night. On Sunday morning communion services will be held

BE YOUR OWN JUDGE

Mi-o-na, the remarkable flesh-forming food and cure for dyspepsia, has won fame by the unusual way in which it is sold. It is the only remedy offered for the cure of dyspepsia which costs the user absolutely nothing unless it cures.

Will Reed, the popular druggist, is selling a great many packages of Mi-o-na and with every box is given his personal guarantee to refund the money if Mi-o-na does not give satisfaction, you to be your own judge as to whether the remedy helps or not.

Mi-o-na is an unusual combination, it is a flesh-forming food, combined with agents that regulate the digestive organs and remove irritation, congestion and inflammation from the stomach, liver and intestines. It enables those organs to extract from the food all that goes to make good, rich blood, firm muscle, steady nerves and a sound body. It does not contain any pepsin, pancreatin or other drugs that never effect a cure and rarely give even temporary relief.

Mi-o-na puts the digestive system into proper working order, gives health, strength and good flesh, and is the only natural cure for indigestion. Even in chronic cases, where life is one long drawn-out pain, this remedy will effect a cure. It is the simplest and most reliable of all remedies. Just one small tablet before or after meals and you can eat a hearty meal with no distress.

If Mi-o-na does not do all that is claimed for it, Druggist Will Reed will cheerfully return your money.

AN AUTOMOBILE FIRE ENGINE.

Oil is the fuel employed by this automobile fire engine and the steam it generates is used alike for the propulsion of the machine and for pumping the water through the hose. This particular engine is the invention of an Englishman, who has succeeded in having it adopted by the London fire brigade. It is said that Chicago will shortly experiment with a couple of these machines. If they should do all that is claimed for them, it may not be many years before horses as an adjunct of a fire department will be things of the past. These machines have under rather unfavorable conditions attained a speed in excess of fifteen miles an hour.

The ARIZONA KICKER

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

It is remarked in a St. Louis paper that the game of poker would never have been known in this town but for our efforts. We reply that it was here and in full swing when we arrived, and the only part we have played in the matter has been a losing one. We have never had an ace full that some one else hadn't fours to beat us.

We do not know the name of the man who waylaid us last Tuesday night on Cochise place as we were returning home from Mrs. McGee's high tea, but as he was limping when he disappeared in the darkness we are willing to pay a doctor for digging the bullet out of his leg.

HE WAS LIMPING WHEN HE DISAPPEARED IN THE DARKNESS.

It is stated in a Buffalo paper that we have made four different attempts to assassinate the editor of the other weekly paper published in this town. Here we laugh. It is a well known fact that our esteemed has pegged away at us about three times a week for the last five years, but up to date has not even cut a button from our coat.

We find in a Montana paper the statement that we make a practice of killing at least two Chinamen each month in the year. Sing Lee has been with us for the last five years as pressman and is alive and well today, and all communications on this subject can be addressed to him.

It was reserved for a Detroit newspaper to announce that we stood by and laughed in fiendish glee while a grizzly bear ate up a companion who was hunting with us. We have never hunted the grizzly. We have never seen one, dead or alive, in this territory. In fact, we have not seen a bear of any species, and, as for "fiendish glee," we couldn't come within forty rods of it if we tried ever so hard.

A Baltimore paper gives credence to the report that we shoot men dead in their tracks for refusing to subscribe to our paper. This is an original way of building up a circulation, and we call the attention of our contemporaries to it.

An Ohio editor has learned from a reliable source that we are constantly surrounded by a bodyguard of twelve desperate men and but for that fact we would be lynched within an hour. If that editor saw us strolling around town, with our hands clasped under our coattails, he'd probably invent some other canard.

We bought another mountain the other day, making five that we now own, and if any of our esteemed eastern contemporaries can spare a couple of weeks this winter we will give them no end of sliding down hill on the trail of grizzly bears. We believe we are the only editor in the world owning five mountains and each and all of them wild and untamable.

We proceeded to the general offices of the Giveadam Gulch Stage company the other day and leveled two guns on the president and demanded that our annual pass be renewed. After a bluff or two it was renewed. It always is, but we have to go through the same old programme year after year.

The fact that we now and then take a hand in a game of poker is not considered by the postmaster general to be against our usefulness as postmaster, and the people who are trying to make a handle of it might as well save their breath.

A Tucson paper announces that we have the cheek to aspire to the governorship of Arizona. 'Tis true, and we'll bet a hat that we get there; afterward—the presidency! We are a critter of such aims and ambitions that it makes our hair stand up now and then. M. QUAD.

Rubbing It In.

"An' de text say," remarked the old colored parson, "'An' he shall sep'rate de sheep from de goats.' Now, brudren an' sistern, Ah ain't castin' no 'flections on dis congregashun; but, knowin' hit as Ah does, Ah's willin' to bet fouh dollahs dat when de day ob judgment done rolls eround dar will be somethin' doin' in de goat market."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

What He Thought.

Old Gentleman (nearsighted)—Who is that stranger coming up the walk, daughter?

Daughter—Why, that is Reggie, papa! You know I told you he was coming to speak to you today.

Old Gentleman—Ah, yes! I see now. Don't you know, at first I thought it was a man.—Chicago News.

Knew How.

"Old Hunks told you more of his business secrets in five minutes than he has ever told anybody else in five years. How did you worm it out of him?"

"I didn't do any worming at all. I just patted him on the back and let him purr."—Chicago Tribune.

Softer.

"I have no doubt you have heard some stories to my discredit," he said.

"I don't like to put it in that way," she quietly replied.

"How then?" he hopefully asked.

"I have never heard any stories to your credit," said she.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Take Your Choice.

Student—What is pessimism?

Philosopher—The faith of cowards.

"Then what is optimism?"

"The faith of fools."—New York Weekly.

Persevering.

"Jimmie Brown will be jealous when he sees you puttin' on my skates."

"That's what I'm doin' it for. I've been tryin' to get a fight with him for three weeks."—New York Journal.

Handles All the Microbes.

The doctor made a careful examination of the patient's symptoms.

"You have what I call the cashier's disease," he said.

"What is that?" asked the patient.

"Well, that is a mixture of all the diseases."—Chicago Tribune.

Imagination Needed.

Scribbler—It doesn't require much imagination or inventive ability to write a historical novel.

The Last Straw.

"Well, what do you want now?" queried old Growells as the insurance solicitor entered his office. "You have bullied me into insuring my life, my store and the title to my real estate. What is there left to insure?"

"I just dropped in," calmly replied the man with the adamantine cheek, "to see if you would like to insure your insurance policies."—Chicago News.

Wrong Address.

He—I want a wife that can cook.

She—Excuse me, but this is not an employment bureau.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Unreasonable Woman.

"This thermometer," complained the customer, "is no good. I can never tell by it how cold it is."

"Consider, my dear woman," replied the Boston shopkeeper, "the word 'thermometer' is derived from two Greek words meaning 'measure of heat.' The instrument is designed to measure heat, madam, not cold."—Philadelphia Press.

REALM OF SPORTS

BOB'S WIFE BACKS HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Fitzsimmons Bets $5,000 That the Ex-Champion Will Beat Jeffries.

Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons has always been under the belief that her husband was the peer of any pugilist in the world. In only two instances has she been mistaken. They were when the Cornishman went down to defeat at the hands of James J. Jeffries.

Always preferring that Bob should retire from the ring and settle down with his family, she has never failed to give the former champion advice and encouragement when matched to fight. Now, Mrs. Fitzsimmons has assumed a different role. She has placed herself in the position of her husband's backer and urges him on to fight.

This change of feeling was chiefly caused by the attitude of Tommy Ryan, who challenged the Australian to fight at the middleweight limit, and when the latter had expressed his willingness to accept, gave up fighting to become an instructor in a St. Louis athletic club. Subsequently, "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien issued a defi to Bob to battle for the middleweight championship of the world, and for fear that the Quaker may follow in the footsteps of Ryan, Mrs. Fitzsimmons has stepped to the front and invited O'Brien to make good.

As showing her absolute confidence in her husband that he can beat the Philadelphian, in company with Bob, she called on Al. Smith, the well known stakeholder, in New York, and gave him a check, signed by herself, and calling for $5,000, which is put up as a side bet, and will be forfeited if Fitz does not make the weight—158 pounds.

FOUL STRIKE RULE

Bitterly Opposed by the Baseball Fans of the Forest City.

The Cleveland patrons of the American Baseball club are a unit in opposition to the foul strike which has been forced upon the Amercan League by the minor leagues under the leadership of President Powers. They saw it tried last fall, when the All-Americans and Pittsburgs played, then and there registering abhorrence of the rules in tones by no means mild. It is learned that at a meeting of a few "fans" a few nights ago, it was decided to start an endless chain of letters to Ban Johnson protesting against the American League putting the obnoxious rule in force.

The originators of the novel scheme say that they are sure at least 100 letters have gone to Johnson already, and that the plan is but in its infancy, and that they expect that Cleveland patrons of baseball will respond to the number of 1,000 a week. Each man writes to three friends asking each to write a protest to Johnson and to enlist three others in the cause. They argue that the fans are the ones who pay for baseball and make the national game the success it is, and their wishes should be regarded in formulating rules.

SO DECEPTIVE

Many East Liverpool People Fail to Realize the Serious.

Backache is so deceptive.

It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it.

Nine times out of ten it comes from the kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Cure every kidney ill from backache to diabetes.

Here's an East Liverpool case to prove it:

Mr. C. S. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across the back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact; before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation, I have since purchased for a neighbor of mine three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool, that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it—when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected—or any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbor's experience and profit by his opinions."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Sold by W. & W. Pharmacy.

By Rev. MINOT J. SAVAGE, Pastor of the Church of the Messiah, New York

WE thought the ballot was going to be an instrument by which the colored man should become civilized, educated, prosperous, and we imagined that he and the whites of the south were going to live together in harmony and good will.

* * *

But I wish to say, so that we may be humble and enter upon this great task with a proper spirit, that I do not believe that most of us would have done much better than they have done down south if the conditions had been reversed. We cannot plume ourselves on superior virtue. The thing that we need to do is to help the country out of this great difficulty, and in order to do that we need sympathy and comprehension of the problem; we need tenderness toward those who are struggling with it, bitterly, fiercely perhaps sometimes, in the south; we need to know what it means to them, what their hopes and fears are, and we need to remember that the colored man did not come here himself, and we, havi brought him here, are under the highest of all conceivable respo sibility to do for him the very best thing we can.

* * *

We need his labor. Let us do all we can to educate, to develop him; to give him a free opportunity to become the best and highest possible, and at the same time let us deal with the problem so that there may be no bitterness, antagonism; so that there may be no degradation of the white people as they stand face to face with these masses of the black.

Will Get 20 Per Cent.

Attorneys for John J. Ryan & Co., the defunct "get-rich-quick" turf investment company, have come to an agreement with United States Marshal W. L. Morsey whereby the latter will make a settlement with the Ryan creditors on or about March 25. Under the term of the agreement investors will get about 20 per cent, it is expected.

A $10,000 Dog Poisoned.

Floyd Courtwright's $10,000 pointer dog, Hawkeye, died at Coshocton ten minutes after arriving from the Pittsburg bench show, where it had taken four first prizes. An autopsy is said to have shown that the dog was poisoned.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Conny Mack's Athletics have divided into teams called the "Never Sweats" and "Easy Marks."

Leech Maskrey will again manage the Warren (Ohio) team. In the old days Leech stuck to Louisville.

Vancouver, B. C., wants Jeffries and Jim Corbett to fight in that city. The Vancouver base ball club has wired both pugilists that it will offer a purse of $25,000, the battle to take place in July.

The Sharon (Pa.) Matinee Driving club has been organized with 24 members. The membership is open to all horse lovers within three miles of Sharon. The half-mile track at the Sharon fair grounds will be repaired and placed in first-class condition.

Last week the announcement was sent out from 'Frisco that Joe Corbett had announced his permanent retirement from base ball. Later dispatches say that he has signed with Los Angeles, of the California league, and will get a salary of $5,000 a season.

If Tommy Ryan keeps his word he will not be seen in the ring after May 1 of the current year. According to a dispatch from Hot Springs the middleweight champion has made a dicker with the Missouri Athletic club of St. Louis to become that organization's boxing instructor.

BEGAN TO FLOAT DOWN THE STREAM

Deputy Sheriff and Attorney Had An Exciting Time in a Flooded Creek.

Steubenville, March 12.—Deputy Sheriff Voorhees and Attorney Ira Blackburn drove to Cross creek on Tuesday to serve injunction papers on the Spruens Oil company, which was enjoined from drilling by the McIntire Oil company, of Mingo. The trip out was made without much difficulty and the papers served on the oil company, but on the return trip the deputy sheriff and attorney had a thrilling experience. Cross creek had reached a flood stage, but believing it could be crossed safely, the horses were driven into the water.

In the middle of the stream the animals began to go down with the current and Blackburn becoming frightened, proceeded to climb towards the top of the buggy, the water being over the seat. Voorhees knew it was a case of either drowning or ducking, so he chose the latter, and kept his seat in the water. He urged the horses through the strong current, and finally their backs began to show up. This was enccuragement and it was not long until the good old mud road was reached. It was a thrilling experience.

Epidemic of Smallpox.

St. Johns, D. W. I., March 12.—Dr. Bridger, who has been commissioned by the authorities of the island of Barbados to investigate the eruptive fever prevailing in the island of Trinidad, reports that it is a widespread and rapidly increasing epidemic of smallpox, and bases his statement on evidence obtained and on observations made. The Trinidad medical board, however, declares that smallpox does not prevail there epidemically and that the eruptive fever referred to is not smallpox.

Distinguished Guests on Board.

San Juan, Porto Rico, March 12.—The American steam yacht Lysistrata, with James Gordon Bennett and party on board, has arrived. Mr. Bennett's guests include Prince and Princess Murat, the Count of Janville, of Paris, and the Duke of Sasso, of Naples. The Lysistrata will sail shortly for Cuba.

Killed by Fast Train.

Philadelphia, March 12.—Charles Zeigler, freight agent at Devon station, was struck and instantly killed by the Pennsylvania flyer. Zeigler, whose home is in Parkersburg, had just stepped from a pay train onto the track and was unable to get out of the way of the express.

$1.00 REWARD, $1.00.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that their is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Practical Politics

..By..

WILLIAM H. HINRICHSEN

II.—Civil Government.

THE study of civil government is best carried on through means of the ordinary textbooks to be obtained in the bookstores, but in connection with the theoretical work the student should visit the public offices of his city, town, county and state if possible and make such inquiries of the officials as will fix thoroughly in his mind the information gained from his reading.

He should apply himself to learning the following:

First.—The name, the destination and term of office of every public official elected by the people in his township, town, ward, district or precinct, as the case may be.

Second.—The duties of these officers.

Third.—The name and designation of each public official elected by the people in his city and county.

Fourth.—The duties in a general way of each.

Fifth.—The names and duties in general of every state officer elected by the people.

Sixth.—The names of the members of both houses of the legislature for his district and the names of the judges of the courts in his district.

Eighth.—The names and duties of the principal appointive offices in his county and state.

Ninth.—The names of the president, vice president, members of the cabinet, speaker of the house and judges of the supreme court, with the state in which each lives.

It is not such a great task as it may appear, and it should be gone over carefully again and again. Information regarding local officers may be obtained in the offices of the county and city clerks, and that regarding state and national affairs may be found in any political almanac, which may be purchased at a bookstore. Some states issue blue books containing all this information. Obtain one if possible.

Election Laws.

The study of the election laws is the next thing to be taken up. These laws are usually issued in pamphlet form and may be obtained from the county officer having supervision of the elections.

The same officer will furnish information that will make clear any points left dark by the books. And the chairman or other member of your local committee will always furnish you information as to the practical workings of the laws.

You should attend every local election, every primary election and every caucus and should watch carefully how they are carried on. If you get an opportunity to serve as an officer of election, do so. The experience will be valuable to you.

Apply yourself to learning the following and do not desist until all facts are firmly fixed in your mind:

First.—The date fixed by law for each regular election in the territory in which you are entitled to vote.

Second.—The date of registration (if required) for each of these elections and how an elector may be registered.

Third.—The qualifications of a voter.

Fourth.—The marking of the ballot.

Fifth.—The hours of opening and closing the polls.

Sixth.—The rules of the polls.

Seventh.—The rules governing naturalization.

Eighth.—The rules governing primary elections or conventions in each civil division in the territory in whicl you vote.

Ninth.—The rules governing election returns.

Political Geography.

You may have studied geography very thoroughly at school, and much of what you have learned there will prove useful to you, but you will find much more to learn before you have acquired the information you require in political matters.

You should procure a good map of your city if you live in one or if there is a city in your county. You should also procure a map of your county and one of your state.

If you can find city and county maps showing the civil divisions each contains, they are the best, and maps of the state showing the legislative, congressional and judicial districts or circuits will make your work somewhat easier.

If not, you can mark off the divisions with a pen on ordinary maps, which will serve your purpose.

Where the records of these apportionments are not printed in book form they may be found in the records of the city, county and state offices. They may also be found in any good political almanac, provided it be printed in your state.

You should fix the political geography of your locality firmly in your mind. First, take your voting district or precinct, whether in the city or county. Fix its boundaries firmly in your mind and walk or ride over it until you are thoroughly familiar with its streets or roads, as the case may be.

You should draw a map of it on a convenient scale, noting thereon all objects that attract your attention, such as public buildings, churches, schoolhouses, large factories, etc. If in the country, of course every village should also be noted. Every street, alley, boulevard, avenue, road or cartway should appear. This map should be kept convenient for reference, and it should be studied until its features are fully stamped upon your mind.

In City and Country.

In a large city you should continue your study in this direction until you are well acquainted with the boundaries, the principal streets and the salient landmarks of the ward in which you live and until you have a general knowledge of each ward in the city.

If living in the country, you should, in addition to learning your town, township, voting precinct or district, thoroughly make yourself familiar with the geography of your county.

In all this work you should draw maps for yourself, correct them from time to time and note every new feature that comes under your observation.

Having gained a fair knowledge of the geography of your county, you should extend your study until you are familiar with the location, general appearance on the map and population of each county in the state and the number of the legislative, congressional, judicial and other districts in which it is situated. You should also study the location of each county seat and large city and should get a general idea of all the railroads running into each.

You should extend your studies to cover all the states and territories in a general way, giving attention to population, the relative strength of political parties, area and growth.

You should when through your geographical studies be able to state:

First.—The boundaries of your voting precinct or district.

Second.—Its approximate population.

Third.—The strength of the different political parties at the last national election.

Fourth.—The same concerning your ward, town or township, as the case may be.

Fifth.—The same concerning your city or county or both.

Sixth.—The name of each town, township, village or city in your county, with the approximate population of each and the approximate strength of the political parties in each as shown by the returns of the last national election.

Seventh.—The names of each county in the state, its county seat and other large towns and cities; also the approximate population of each county and the usual majority for the dominant party.

Eighth.—The counties or city wards comprising each legislative, congressional, judicial or other district in the state.

Ninth.—The population of the state and its approximate vote by parties at the last three national elections.

Tenth.—The name, approximate population and area of each state and territory.

Twelfth.—The usual strength of the political parties in each state.

Thirteenth.—The present governor and United States senators of each state.

Fourteenth.—The number of congressmen to which each state is entitled.

All this information will prove almost a necessity in the further worl before the student, not only for hi own use, but to enable him to answer readily questions which will be asked him in his succeeding work.

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

BOB'S WIFE BACKS HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Fitzsimmons Bets $5,000 That the Ex-Champion Will Beat Jeffries.

Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons has always been under the belief that her husband was the peer of any pugilist in the world. In only two instances has she been mistaken. They were when the Cornishman went down to defeat at the hands of James J. Jeffries.

Always preferring that Bob should retire from the ring and settle down with his family, she has never failed to give the former champion advice and encouragement when matched to fight. Now, Mrs. Fitzsimmons has assumed a different role. She has placed herself in the position of her husband's backer and urges him on to fight.

This change of feeling was chiefly caused by the attitude of Tommy Ryan, who challenged the Australian to fight at the middleweight limit, and when the latter had expressed his willingness to accept, gave up fighting to become an instructor in a St. Louis athletic club. Subsequently, "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien issued a defi to Bob to battle for the middleweight championship of the world, and for fear that the Quaker may follow in the footsteps of Ryan, Mrs. Fitzsimmons has stepped to the front and invited O'Brien to make good.

As showing her absolute confidence in her husband that he can beat the Philadelphian, in company with Bob, she called on Al. Smith, the well known stakeholder, in New York, and gave him a check, signed by herself, and calling for $5,000, which is put up as a side bet, and will be forfeited if Fitz does not make the weight—158 pounds.

FOUL STRIKE RULE

Bitterly Opposed by the Baseball Fans of the Forest City.

The Cleveland patrons of the American Baseball club are a unit in opposition to the foul strike which has been forced upon the Amercan League by the minor leagues under the leadership of President Powers. They saw it tried last fall, when the All-Americans and Pittsburgs played, then and there registering abhorrence of the rules in tones by no means mild. It is learned that at a meeting of a few "fans" a few nights ago, it was decided to start an endless chain of letters to Ban Johnson protesting against the American League putting the obnoxious rule in force.

The originators of the novel scheme say that they are sure at least 100 letters have gone to Johnson already, and that the plan is but in its infancy, and that they expect that Cleveland patrons of baseball will respond to the number of 1,000 a week. Each man writes to three friends asking each to write a protest to Johnson and to enlist three others in the cause. They argue that the fans are the ones who pay for baseball and make the national game the success it is, and their wishes should be regarded in formulating rules.

SO DECEPTIVE

Many East Liverpool People Fail to Realize the Serious ness.

Backache is so deceptive.

Learn the cause—then cure it.

Nine times out of ten it comes from the kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Cure every kidney ill from backache to diabetes.

Here's an East Liverpool case to prove it:

Mr. C. S. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across the back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact; before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation, I have since purchased for a neighbor of mine three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool, that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it—when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected—or any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbor's experience and profit by his opinions."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

We thought the ballot was going to be an instrument by which the colored man should become civilized, educated, prosperous, and we imagined that he and the whites of the south were going to live together in harmony and good will.

* * *

But I wish to say, so that we may be humble and enter upon this great task with a proper spirit, that I do not believe that most of us would have done much better than they have done down south if the conditions had been reversed. We cannot plume ourselves on superior virtue. The thing that we need to do is to help the country out of this great difficulty, and in order to do that we need sympathy and comprehension of the problem; we need tenderness toward those who are struggling with it, bitterly, fiercely perhaps sometimes, in the south; we need to know what it means to them, what their hopes and fears are, and we need to remember that the colored man did not come here himself, and we, havi brought him here, are under the highest of all conceivable respo sibility to do for him the very best thing we can.

* * *

We need his labor. Let us do all we can to educate, to develop him; to give him a free opportunity to become the best and highest possible, and at the same time let us deal with the problem so that there may be no bitterness, antagonism; so that there may be no degradation of the white people as they stand face to face with these masses of the black.

Will Get 20 Per Cent.

Attorneys for John J. Ryan & Co., the defunct "get-rich-quick" turf investment company, have come to an agreement with United States Marshal W. L. Morsey whereby the latter will make a settlement with the Ryan creditors on or about March 25. Under the term of the agreement investors will get about 20 per cent, it is expected.

A $10,000 Dog Poisoned.

Floyd Courtwright's $10,000 pointer dog, Hawkeye, died at Coshocton ten minutes after arriving from the Pittsburg bench show, where it had taken four first prizes. An autopsy is said to have shown that the dog was poisoned.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Conny Mack's Athletics have divided into teams called the "Never Sweats" and "Easy Marks."

Leech Maskrey will again manage the Warren (Ohio) team. In the old days Leech stuck to Louisville.

Vancouver, B. C., wants Jeffries and Jim Corbett to fight in that city. The Vancouver base ball club has wired both pugilists that it will offer a purse of $25,000, the battle to take place in July.

The Sharon (Pa.) Matinee Driving club has been organized with 24 members. The membership is open to all horse lovers within three miles of Sharon. The half-mile track at the Sharon fair grounds will be repaired and placed in first-class condition.

Last week the announcement was sent out from 'Frisco that Joe Corbett had announced his permanent retirement from base ball. Later dispatches say that he has signed with Los Angeles, of the California league, and will get a salary of $5,000 a season.

If Tommy Ryan keeps his word he will not be seen in the ring after May 1 of the current year. According to a dispatch from Hot Springs the middleweight champion has made a dicker with the Missouri Athletic club of St. Louis to become that organization's boxing instructor.

BEGAN TO FLOAT DOWN THE STREAM

Deputy Sheriff and Attorney Had An Exciting Time in a Flooded Creek.

Steubenville, March 12.—Deputy Sheriff Voorhees and Attorney Ira Blackburn drove to Cross creek on Tuesday to serve injunction papers on the Spruens Oil company, which was enjoined from drilling by the McIntire Oil company, of Mingo. The trip out was made without much difficulty and the papers served on the oil company, but on the return trip the deputy sheriff and attorney had a thrilling experience. Cross creek had reached a flood stage, but believing it could be crossed safely, the horses were driven into the water.

In the middle of the stream the animals began to go down with the current and Blackburn becoming frightened, proceeded to climb towards the top of the buggy, the water being over the seat. Voorhees knew it was a case of either drowning or ducking, so he chose the latter, and kept his seat in the water. He urged the horses through the strong current, and finally their backs began to show up. This was encouragement and it was not long until the good old mud road was reached. It was a thrilling experience.

Epidemic of Smallpox.

St. Johns, D. W. I., March 12.—Dr. Bridger, who has been commissioned by the authorities of the island of Barbados to investigate the eruptive fever prevailing in the island of Trinidad, reports that it is a widespread and rapidly increasing epidemic of smallpox, and bases his statement on evidence obtained and on observations made. The Trinidad medical board, however, declares that smallpox does not prevail there epidemically and that the eruptive fever referred to is not smallpox.

Distinguished Guests on Board.

San Juan, Porto Rico, March 12.—The American steam yacht Lysistrata, with James Gordon Bennett and party on board, has arrived. Mr. Bennett's guests include Prince and Princess Murat, the Count of Janville, of Paris, and the Duke of Sasso, of Naples. The Lysistrata will sail shortly for Cuba.

Killed by Fast Train.

Self Education Through the Medium of Specially Prepared Articles by Prominent Instructors

..By..
WILLIAM H. HINRICHSEN

II.—Civil Government.

The study of civil government is best carried on through means of the ordinary textbooks to be obtained in the bookstores, but in connection with the theoretical work the student should visit the public offices of his city, town, county and state if possible and make such inquiries of the officials as will fix thoroughly in his mind the information gained from his reading.

He should apply himself to learning the following:

First.—The name, the destination and term of office of every public official elected by the people in his township, town, ward, district or precinct, as the case may be.

Second.—The duties of these officers.

Third.—The name and designation of each public official elected by the people in his city and county.

Fourth.—The duties in a general way of each.

Fifth.—The names and duties in general of every state officer elected by the people.

Sixth.—The names of the members of both houses of the legislature for his district and the names of the judges of the courts in his district.

Eighth.—The names and duties of the principal appointive offices in his county and state.

Ninth.—The names of the president, vice president, members of the cabinet, speaker of the house and judges of the supreme court, with the state in which each lives.

It is not such a great task as it may appear, and it should be gone over carefully again and again. Information regarding local officers may be obtained in the offices of the county and city clerks, and that regarding state and national affairs may be found in any political almanac, which may be purchased at a bookstore. Some states issue blue books containing all this information. Obtain one if possible.

Election Laws.

The study of the election laws is the next thing to be taken up. These laws are usually issued in pamphlet form and may be obtained from the county officer having supervision of the elections.

The same officer will furnish information that will make clear any points left dark by the books. And the chairman or other member of your local committee will always furnish you information as to the practical workings of the laws.

You should attend every local election, every primary election and every caucus and should watch carefully how they are carried on. If you get an opportunity to serve as an officer of election, do so. The experience will be valuable to you.

Apply yourself to learning the following and do not desist until all facts are firmly fixed in your mind:

First.—The date fixed by law for each regular election in the territory in which you are entitled to vote.

Second.—The date of registration (if required) for each of these elections and how an elector may be registered.

Third.—The qualifications of a voter.

Fourth.—The marking of the ballot.

Sixth.—The rules of the polls.

Seventh.—The rules governing naturalization.

Eighth.—The rules governing primary elections or conventions in each civil division in the territory in which you vote.

Ninth.—The rules governing election returns.

Tenth.—The forms of nominating certificates where required.

Eleventh.—Eligibility of candidates.

Twelfth.—Rules governing cumulative voting where practiced.

Political Geography.

You may have studied geography very thoroughly at school, and much of what you have learned there will prove useful to you, but you will find much more to learn before you have acquired the information you require in political matters.

You should procure a good map of your city if you live in one or if there is a city in your county. You should also procure a map of your county and one of your state.

If you can find city and county maps showing the civil divisions each contains, they are the best, and maps of the state showing the legislative, congressional and judicial districts or circuits will make your work somewhat easier.

If not, you can mark off the divisions with a pen on ordinary maps, which will serve your purpose.

Where the records of these apportionments are not printed in book form they may be found in the records of the city, county and state offices. They may also be found in any good political almanac, provided it be printed in your state.

You should fix the political geography of your locality firmly in your mind. First, take your voting district or precinct, whether in the city or county. Fix its boundaries firmly in your mind and walk or ride over it until you are thoroughly familiar with its streets or roads, as the case may be.

You should draw a map of it on a convenient scale, noting thereon all objects that attract your attention, such as public buildings, churches, schoolhouses, large factories, etc. If in the country, of course every village should also be noted. Every street, alley, boulevard, avenue, road or cartway should appear. This map should be kept convenient for reference, and it should be studied until its features are fully stamped upon your mind.

In City and Country.

In a large city you should continue your study in this direction until you are well acquainted with the boundaries, the principal streets and the salient landmarks of the ward in which you live and until you have a general knowledge of each ward in the city.

If living in the country, you should, in addition to learning your town, township, voting precinct or district, thoroughly make yourself familiar with the geography of your county.

In all this work you should draw maps for yourself, correct them from time to time and note every new feature that comes under your observation.

Having gained a fair knowledge of the geography of your county, you should extend your study until you are familiar with the location, general appearance on the map and population of each county in the state and the number of the legislative, congressional, judicial and other districts in which it is situated. You should also study the location of each county seat and large city and should get a general idea of all the railroads running into each.

You should extend your studies to cover all the states and territories in a general way, giving attention to population, the relative strength of political parties, area and growth.

You should when through your geographical studies be able to state:

First.—The boundaries of your voting precinct or district.

Second.—Its approximate population.

Third.—The strength of the different political parties at the last national election.

Fourth.—The same concerning your ward, town or township, as the case may be.

Fifth.—The same concerning your city or county or both.

Sixth.—The name of each town, township, village or city in your county, with the approximate population of each and the approximate strength of the political parties in each as shown by the returns of the last national election.

Seventh.—The names of each county in the state, its county seat and other large towns and cities; also the approximate population of each county and the usual majority for the dominant party.

Eighth.—The counties or city wards comprising each legislative, congressional, judicial or other district in the state.

Twelfth.—The usual strength of the political parties in each state.

Thirteenth.—The present governor and United States senators of each state.

Fourteenth.—The number of congressmen to which each state is entitled.

All this information will prove almost a necessity in the further work before the student, not only for his own use, but to enable him to answer readily questions which will be asked him in his succeeding work.

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

P. Sollinger, of Sandusky, as trustee, in the sum of $2,500,000. This line is the one that is projected from Lake Erie through the coal and furnace districts of Eastern Ohio to the river by way of Norwalk, Ashland, Wooster, Canton and Massillon.

REALM OF SPORTS

BOB'S WIFE BACKS HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Fitzsimmons Bets $5,000 That the Ex-Champion Will Beat Jeffries.

Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons has always been under the belief that her husband was the peer of any pugilist in the world. In only two instances has she been mistaken. They were when the Cornishman went down to defeat at the hands of James J. Jeffries.

Always preferring that Bob should retire from the ring and settle down with his family, she has never failed to give the former champion advice and encouragement when matched to fight. Now, Mrs. Fitzsimmons has assumed a different role. She has placed herself in the position of her husband's backer and urges him on to fight.

This change of feeling was chiefly caused by the attitude of Tommy Ryan, who challenged the Australian to fight at the middleweight limit, and when the latter had expressed his willingness to accept, gave up fighting to become an instructor in a St. Louis athletic club. Subsequently, "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien issued a defi to Bob to battle for the middleweight championship of the world, and for fear that the Quaker may follow in the footsteps of Ryan, Mrs. Fitzsimmons has stepped to the front and invited O'Brien to make good.

As showing her absolute confidence in her husband that he can beat the Philadelphian, in company with Bob, she called on Al. Smith, the well known stakeholder, in New York, and gave him a check, signed by herself, and calling for $5,000, which is put up as a side bet, and will be forfeited if Fitz does not make the weight—158 pounds.

FOUL STRIKE RULE

Bitterly Opposed by the Baseball Fans of the Forest City.

The Cleveland patrons of the American Baseball club are a unit in opposition to the foul strike which has been forced upon the Amercan League by the minor leagues under the leadership of President Powers. They saw it tried last fall, when the All-Americans and Pittsburgs played, then and there registering abhorrence of the rules in tones by no means mild. It is learned that at a meeting of a few "fans" a few nights ago, it was decided to start an endless chain of letters to Ban Johnson protesting against the American League putting the obnoxious rule in force.

The originators of the novel scheme say that they are sure at least 100 letters have gone to Johnson already, and that the plan is but in its infancy, and that they expect that Cleveland patrons of baseball will respond to the number of 1,000 a week. Each man writes to three friends asking each to write a protest to Johnson and to enlist three others in the cause. They argue that the fans are the ones who pay for baseball and make the national game the success it is, and their wishes should be regarded in formulating rules.

SO DECEPTIVE

Many East Liverpool People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive.

It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it.

Nine times out of ten it comes from the kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Cure every kidney ill from backache to diabetes.

Here's an East Liverpool case to prove it:

Mr. C. S. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across the back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact; before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation, I have since purchased for a neighbor of mine three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool, that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it—when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected—or any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbor's experience and profit by his opinions."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Sold by W. & W. Pharmacy.

WE thought the ballot was going to be an instrument by which the colored man should become civilized, educated, prosperous, and we imagined that he and the whites of the south were going to live together in harmony and good will.

* * *

But I wish to say, so that we may be humble and enter upon this great task with a proper spirit, that I do not believe that most of us would have done much better than they have done down south if the conditions had been reversed. We cannot plume ourselves on superior virtue. The thing that we need to do is to help the country out of this great difficulty, and in order to do that we need sympathy and comprehension of the problem; we need tenderness toward those who are struggling with it, bitterly, fiercely perhaps sometimes, in the south; we need to know what it means to them, what their hopes and fears are, and we need to remember that the colored man did not come here himself, and we, havi brought him here, are under the highest of all conceivable respo sibility to do for him the very best thing we can.

* * *

We need his labor. Let us do all we can to educate, to develop him; to give him a free opportunity to become the best and highest possible, and at the same time let us deal with the problem so that there may be no bitterness, antagonism; so that there may be no degradation of the white people as they stand face to face with these masses of the black.

Will Get 20 Per Cent.

Attorneys for John J. Ryan & Co., the defunct "get-rich-quick" turf investment company, have come to an agreement with United States Marshal W. L. Morsey whereby the latter will make a settlement with the Ryan creditors on or about March 25. Under the term of the agreement investors will get about 20 per cent, it is expected.

A $10,000 Dog Poisoned.

Floyd Courtwright's $10,000 pointer dog, Hawkeye, died at Coshocton ten minutes after arriving from the Pittsburg bench show, where it had taken four first prizes. An autopsy is said to have shown that the dog was poisoned.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Conny Mack's Athletics have divided into teams called the "Never Sweats" and "Easy Marks."

Leech Maskrey will again manage the Warren (Ohio) team. In the old days Leech stuck to Louisville.

Vancouver, B. C., wants Jeffries and Jim Corbett to fight in that city. The Vancouver base ball club has wired both pugilists that it will offer a purse of $25,000, the battle to take place in July.

The Sharon (Pa.) Matinee Driving club has been organized with 24 members. The membership is open to all horse lovers within three miles of Sharon. The half-mile track at the Sharon fair grounds will be repaired and placed in first-class condition.

Last week the announcement was sent out from 'Frisco that Joe Corbett had announced his permanent retirement from base ball. Later dispatches say that he has signed with Los Angeles, of the California league, and will get a salary of $5,000 a season.

If Tommy Ryan keeps his word he will not be seen in the ring after May 1 of the current year. According to a dispatch from Hot Springs the middleweight champion has made a dicker with the Missouri Athletic club of St. Louis to become that organization's boxing instructor.

BEGAN TO FLOAT DOWN THE STREAM

Deputy Sheriff and Attorney Had An Exciting Time in a Flooded Creek.

Steubenville, March 12.—Deputy Sheriff Voorhees and Attorney Ira Blackburn drove to Cross creek on Tuesday to serve injunction papers on the Spruens Oil company, which was enjoined from drilling by the McIntire Oil company, of Mingo. The trip out was made without much difficulty and the papers served on the oil company, but on the return trip the deputy sheriff and attorney had a thrilling experience. Cross creek had reached a flood stage, but believing it could be crossed safely, the horses were driven into the water.

In the middle of the stream the animals began to go down with the current and Blackburn becoming frightened, proceeded to climb towards the top of the buggy, the water being over the seat. Voorhees knew it was a case of either drowning or ducking, so he chose the latter, and kept his seat in the water. He urged the horses through the strong current, and finally their backs began to show up. This was enccuragement and it was not long until the good old mud road was reached. It was a thrilling experience.

Epidemic of Smallpox.

St. Johns, D. W. I., March 12.—Dr. Bridger, who has been commissioned by the authorities of the island of Barbados to investigate the eruptive fever prevailing in the island of Trinidad, reports that it is a widespread and rapidly increasing epidemic of smallpox, and bases his statement on evidence obtained and on observations made. The Trinidad medical board, however, declares that smallpox does not prevail there epidemically and that the eruptive fever referred to is not smallpox.

Distinguished Guests on Board.

San Juan, Porto Rico, March 12.—The American steam yacht Lysistrata, with James Gordon Bennett and party on board, has arrived. Mr. Bennett's guests include Prince and Princess Murat, the Count of Janville, of Paris, and the Duke of Sasso, of Naples. The Lysistrata will sail shortly for Cuba.

Killed by Fast Train.

Philadelphia, March 12.—Charles Zeigler, freight agent at Devon station, was struck and instantly killed by the Pennsylvania flyer. Zeigler, whose home is in Parkersburg, had just stepped from a pay train onto the track and was unable to get out of the way of the express.

$1.00 REWARD, $1.00.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that their is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. HOME STUDY COURSE

..By..
WILLIAM H. HINRICHSEN

II.—Civil Government.

THE study of civil government is best carried on through means of the ordinary textbooks to be obtained in the bookstores, but in connection with the theoretical work the student should visit the public offices of his city, town, county and state if possible and make such inquiries of the officials as will fix thoroughly in his mind the information gained from his reading.

He should apply himself to learning the following:

First.—The name, the destination and term of office of every public official elected by the people in his township, town, ward, district or precinct, as the case may be.

Second.—The duties of these officers.

Third.—The name and designation of each public official elected by the people in his city and county.

Fourth.—The duties in a general way of each.

Fifth.—The names and duties in general of every state officer elected by the people.

Sixth.—The names of the members of both houses of the legislature for his district and the names of the judges of the courts in his district.

Eighth.—The names and duties of the principal appointive offices in his county and state.

Ninth.—The names of the president, vice president, members of the cabinet, speaker of the house and judges of the supreme court, with the state in which each lives.

It is not such a great task as it may appear, and it should be gone over carefully again and again. Information regarding local officers may be obtained in the offices of the county and city clerks, and that regarding state and national affairs may be found in any political almanac, which may be purchased at a bookstore. Some states issue blue books containing all this information. Obtain one if possible.

Election Laws.

The study of the election laws is the next thing to be taken up. These laws are usually issued in pamphlet form and may be obtained from the county officer having supervision of the elections.

The same officer will furnish information that will make clear any points left dark by the books. And the chairman or other member of your local committee will always furnish you information as to the practical workings of the laws.

You should attend every local election, every primary election and every caucus and should watch carefully how they are carried on. If you get an opportunity to serve as an officer of election, do so. The experience will be valuable to you.

Apply yourself to learning the following and do not desist until all facts are firmly fixed in your mind:

First.—The date fixed by law for each regular election in the territory in which you are entitled to vote.

Second.—The date of registration (if required) for each of these elections and how an elector may be registered.

Third.—The qualifications of a voter.

Fourth.—The marking of the ballot.

Sixth.—The rules of the polls.

Seventh.—The rules governing naturalization.

Eighth.—The rules governing primary elections or conventions in each civil division in the territory in which you vote.

Ninth.—The rules governing election returns.

Tenth.—The forms of nominating certificates where required.

Eleventh.—Eligibility of candidates.

Twelfth.—Rules governing cumulative voting where practiced.

Political Geography.

You may have studied geography very thoroughly at school, and much of what you have learned there will prove useful to you, but you will find much more to learn before you have acquired the information you require in political matters.

You should procure a good map of your city if you live in one or if there is a city in your county. You should also procure a map of your county and one of your state.

If you can find city and county maps showing the civil divisions each contains, they are the best, and maps of the state showing the legislative, congressional and judicial districts or circuits will make your work somewhat easier.

If not, you can mark off the divisions with a pen on ordinary maps, which will serve your purpose.

Where the records of these apportionments are not printed in book form they may be found in the records of the city, county and state offices. They may also be found in any good political almanac, provided it be printed in your state.

You should fix the political geography of your locality firmly in your mind. First, take your voting d'strict or precinct, whether in the city or county. Fix its boundaries firmly in your mind and walk or ride over it until you are thoroughly familiar with its streets or roads, as the case may be.

You should draw a map of it on a convenient scale, noting thereon all objects that attract your attention, such as public buildings, churches, schoolhouses, large factories, etc. If in the country, of course every village should also be noted. Every street, alley, boulevard, avenue, road or cartway should appear. This map should be kept convenient for reference, and it should be studied until its features are fully stamped upon your mind.

In City and Country.

In a large city you should continue your study in this direction until you are well acquainted with the boundaries, the principal streets and the salient landmarks of the ward in which you live and until you have a general knowledge of each ward in the city.

If living in the country, you should, in addition to learning your town, township, voting precinct or district, thoroughly make yourself familiar with the geography of your county.

In all this work you should draw maps for yourself, correct them from time to time and note every new feature that comes under your observation.

Having gained a fair knowledge of the geography of your county, you should extend your study until you are familiar with the location, general appearance on the map and population of each county in the state and the number of the legislative, congressional, judicial and other districts in which it is situated. You should also study the location of each county seat and large city and should get a general idea of all the railroads running into each.

You should extend your studies to cover all the states and territories in a general way, giving attention to population, the relative strength of political parties, area and growth.

You should when through your geographical studies be able to state:

First.—The boundaries of your voting precinct or district.

Second.—Its approximate population.

Third.—The strength of the different political parties at the last national election.

Fourth.—The same concerning your ward, town or township, as the case may be.

Fifth.—The same concerning your city or county or both.

Sixth.—The name of each town, township, village or city in your county, with the approximate population of each and the approximate strength of the political parties in each as shown by the returns of the last national election.

Seventh.—The names of each county in the state, its county seat and other large towns and cities; also the approximate population of each county and the usual majority for the dominant party.

Eighth.—The counties or city wards comprising each legislative, congressional, judicial or other district in the state.

Twelfth.—The usual strength of the political parties in each state.

Thirteenth.—The present governor and United States senators of each state.

Fourteenth.—The number of congressmen to which each state is entitled.

All this information will prove almost a necessity in the further work before the student, not only for his own use, but to enable him to answer readily questions which will be asked him in his succeeding work.

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Stockholders Hold First Meeting.

Cleveland, March 12.—The first stockholders' meeting of the Lake and River Railway company (the consolidated French system) was held and directors and officers elected. The board also authorized the issue of five-year script gold first mortgage bonds on that portion of the line between Sandusky and a point on the Ohio river at the east boundary line of the state ir Columbiana county to F. P. Sollinger, of Sandusky, as trustee, in the sum of $2,500,000. This line is the one that is projected from Lake Erie through the coal and furnace districts of Eastern Ohio to the river by way of Norwalk, Ashland, Wooster, Canton and Massillon.

Why can't we come over to your house and play any more?

Because papa gets so mad when we make a little bit of noise.

What makes him that way?

Mamma says it's dyspepsia makes him act so crazy.

That's about the way it strikes the small boy. The dyspeptic has no idea of his own unreasonableness or harshness. Little things are magnified and seem to justify his quick anger.

There's health for the dyspeptic and happiness for the family by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and restores perfect health and strength, by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

"I have taken one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for indigestion and liver complaint," writes Mr. C. M. Wilson, of Yadkin College, Davidson Co., N. C. "Have had no bad spells since I commenced taking your medicine—in fact, have not felt like the same man. Before I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I could not eat anything without awful distress, but now I can eat anything I wish without having unpleasant feelings."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse and regulate the bowels.

A Little Common Sense

Rheumatism, Eczema, Hives, Tetter, Scrofula, Erysipelas, etc., are caused by impure blood. Purify the blood, and you have removed the cause, and cured the disease.

To purify the blood you must have perfect digestion on the one hand, that the blood may be supplied with healthy nutrition, and perfect excretion on the other that all the impurities may be thrown off.

Life Plant insures perfect digestion and perfect excretions, because it contains ingredients that perform those functions, acting together in perfect harmony. Life Plant is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism, Eczema, Catarrh, Hives, Tetter, Scrofula, Stomach and Liver troubles—and all forms of blood diseases.

Catarrh.

Mr. F. Hurst, Father of Hurst Brothers, Grocers, New Philadelphia, Ohio, says:

A member of my family for six years or more, has had a severe case of Catarrh in the head and throat causing nervous prostration, with so much pain and roaring in head, that the hearing had become materially affected, the stomach deranged and the appetite gone, and with a feeling of prostration and lassitude. Was cured by the use of Life Plant more than a year ago and the trouble has not returned.

In winter time many people do not get the proper exercise necessary to promote good health.

The blood becomes thick, circulation slow; eliminating organs inactive; the system retains for longer time excretive matter, and disease naturally ensues. It may develop in indigestion, fevers, malassimilation, rheumatism, general debility, nervousness, coughs, colds, bronchitis. For these conditions Hagee's Cordial of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda is unequalled. The New Arabian Nights

By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

One fine morning he came into the drawing room and began to arrange some music on the top of the piano. Lady Vandeleur, at the other end of the apartment, was speaking somewhat eagerly with her brother, Charlie Pendragon, an elderly young man, much broken with dissipation and very lame of one foot. The private secretary, to whose entrance they paid no regard, could not avoid overhearing a part of their conversation.

"Today or never," said the lady. "Once and for all, it shall be done today."

"Today, if it must be," replied the brother, with a sigh. "But it is a false step, a ruinous step, Clara, and we shall live to repent it dismally."

Lady Vandeleur looked her brother steadily and somewhat strangely in the face.

"You forget," she said. "The man must die at last."

"Upon my word, Clara," said Pendragon, "I believe you are the most heartless rascal in England."

"You men," she returned, "are so coarsely built that you can never appreciate a shade of meaning. You are yourselves rapacious, violent, immodest, careless of distinction, and yet the least thought for the future shocks you in a woman. I have no patience with such stuff. You would despise in a common banker the imbecility that you expect to find in us."

HARRY GAVE HIMSELF UP FOR LOST.

"You are very likely right," replied her brother. "You were always cleverer than I. And, anyway, you know my motto, 'The family before all.'"

"Yes, Charlie," she returned, taking his hand in hers, "I know your motto better than you know it yourself. 'And Clara before the family.' Is not that the second part of it? Indeed you are the best of brothers, and I love you dearly."

Mr. Pendragon got up, looking a little confused by these family endearments. "I had better not be seen," said he. "I understand my part to a miracle, and I'll keep an eye on the Tame Cat."

"Do," she replied. "He is an abject creature and might ruin all."

She kissed the tips of her fingers to him daintily, and the brother withdrew by the boudoir and the back stair.

"Harry," said Lady Vandeleur, turning toward the secretary as soon as they were alone, "I have a commission for you this morning. But you shall take a cab. I cannot have my secretary freckled."

She spoke the last words with emphasis and a look of half motherly pride that caused great contentment to poor Harry, and he professed himself charmed to find an opportunity of serving her.

"It is another of our great secrets," she went on archly, "and no one must know of it but my secretary and me. Sir Thomas would make the saddest disturbance, and if you only knew how weary I am of these scenes! Oh, Harry, Harry, can you explain to me what makes you men so violent and unjust? But, indeed, I know you cannot. You are the only man in the world who knows nothing of these shameful passions. You are so good, Harry, and so kind! You, at least, can be a woman's friend. And, do you know, I think you make the others more ugly by comparison."

"It is you," said Harry gallantly, "who are so kind to me. You treat me like"—

"Like a mother," interposed Lady Vandeleur. "I try to be a mother to you, or at least," she corrected herself, with a smile, "almost a mother. I am afraid I am too young to be your mother really. Let us say a friend—a dear friend."

She paused long enough to let her words take effect in Harry's sentimental quarters, but not long enough to allow him a reply.

"But all this is beside our purpose," she resumed. "You will find a bandbox in the left hand side of the oak wardrobe. It is underneath the pink slip that I wore on Wednesday with my mechlin. You will take it immediately to this address," and she gave him a paper, "but do not on any account let it out of your hands until you have received a receipt written by myself. Do you understand? Answer, if you please—answer! This is extremely important, and I must ask you to pay some attention."

Harry pacified her by repeating her instructions perfectly, and she was just going to tell him more when General Vandeleur flung into the apartment, scarlet with anger and holding a long and elaborate milliner's bill in his hand.

"Will you look at this, madame?" cried he. "Will you have the goodness to look at this document? I know well enough you married me for my money, and I hope I can make as great allowances as any other man in the service; but, as sure as God made me, I mean to put a period to this disreputable prodigality!"

"Mr. Hartley," said Lady Vandeleur, "I think you understand what you have to do. May I ask you to see to it at once?"

"Stop," said the general, addressing Harry. "One word before you go." And then, turning again to Lady Vandeleur, "What is this precious fellow's errand?" he demanded. "I trust him no further than I do yourself, let me tell you. If he had as much as the rudiments of honesty, he would scorn to stay in this house, and what he does for his wages is a mystery to all the world. What is his errand, madam, and why are you hurrying him away?"

"I supposed you had something to say to me in private," replied the lady.

"You spoke about an errand," insisted the general. "Do not attempt to deceive me in my present state of temper. You certainly spoke about an errand."

"If you insist on making your servants privy to our humiliating dissensions," replied Lady Vandeleur, "perhaps I had better ask Mr. Hartley to sit down. No?" she continued. "Then you may go, Mr. Hartley. I trust you may remember all that you have heard in this room. It may be useful to you."

Harry at once made his escape from the drawing room, and as he ran upstairs he could hear the general's voice upraised in declamation and the thin tones of Lady Vandeleur planting icy repartees at every opening. How cordially he admired the wife! How skillfully she could evade an awkward question! And with what secure effrontery she repeated her instructions under the very guns of the enemy! And, on the other hand, how he detested the husband!

There had been nothing unfamiliar in the morning's events, for he was continually in the habit of serving Lady Vandeleur on secret missions, principally connected with the millinery. There was a skeleton in the house, as he well knew. The bottomless extravagance and the unknown liabilities of the wife had long since swallowed her own fortune and threatened day by day to engulf that of the husband. Once or twice in every year exposure and ruin seemed imminent, and Harry kept trotting round to all sorts of furnishers' shops telling small fibs and paying small advances on the gross amount until another term was tided over, and the lady and her faithful secretary breathed again. For Harry, in a double capacity, was heart and soul upon that side of the war. Not only did he adore Lady Vandeleur and fear and dislike her husband, but he naturally sympathized with the love of finery, and his own single extravagance was at the tailor's.

He found the bandbox where it had been described, arranged his toilet with care and left the house. The sun shone brightly. The distance he had to travel was considerable, and he remembered with dismay that the general's sudden irruption had prevented Lady Vandeleur from giving him money for a cab. On this sultry day there was every chance that his complexion would suffer severely, and to walk through so much of London with a bandbox on his arm was a humiliation almost insupportable to a youth of his character. He paused and took counsel with himself. The Vandeleurs lived in Eaton place. His destination was near Notting Hill. Plainly he might cross the park by keeping well in the open and avoiding populous alleys, and he thanked his stars when he reflected that it was still comparatively early in the day.

Anxious to be rid of his incubus, he walked somewhat faster than his ordinary, and he was already some way through Kensington gardens when in a solitary spot among trees he found himself confronted by the general.

"I beg your pardon, Sir Thomas," observed Harry politely, falling on one side, for the other stood directly in his path.

"Where are you going, sir?" asked the general.

"I am taking a little walk among the trees," replied the lad.

The general struck the bandbox with his cane.

"With that thing?" he cried. "You lie, sir, and you know you lie!"

"Indeed, Sir Thomas," returned Harry, "I am not accustomed to be questioned in so high a key."

"You do not understand your position," said the general. "You are my servant, and a servant of whom I have conceived the most serious suspicions. How do I know but that your box is full of teaspoons?"

"It contains a silk hat belonging to a friend," said Harry.

"Very well," replied General Vandeleur. "Then I want to see your friend's silk hat. I have," he added grimly, "a singular curiosity for hats, and I believe you know me to be somewhat positive."

"I beg your pardon, Sir Thomas, I am exceedingly grieved," Harry apologized, "but indeed this is a private affair."

The general caught him roughly by the shoulder with one hand while he raised his cane in the most menacing manner with the other. Harry gave himself up for lost, but at the same moment heaven vouchsafed him an unexpected defender in the person of Charlie Pendragon, who now strode forward from behind the trees.

"Come, come, general; hold your hand," said he. "This is neither courteous nor manly."

"Aha!" cried the general, wheeling round upon his new antagonist. "Mr. Pendragon! And do you suppose, Mr. Pendragon, that because I have had the misfortune to marry your sister I shall suffer myself to be dogged and thwarted by a discredited and bankrupt libertine like you? My acquaintance with Lady Vandeleur, sir, has taken away all my appetite for the other members of her family."

"And do you fancy, General Vandeleur," retorted Charlie, "that because my sister has had the misfortune to marry you she there and then forfeited her rights and privileges as a lady? I own, sir, that by that action she did as much as anybody could to derogate from her position, but to me she is still a Pendragon. I make it my business to protect her from ungentlemanly outrage, and if you were ten times her husband I would not permit her liberty to be restrained nor her private messengers to be violently arrested."

"How is that, Mr. Hartley?" interrogated the general. "Mr. Pendragon is of my opinion, it appears. He, too, suspects that Lady Vandeleur has something to do with your friend's silk hat."

Charlie saw that he had committed an unpardonable blunder, which he hastened to repair.

"How, sir?" he cried. "I suspect, do you say? I suspect nothing. Only where I find strength abused and a man brutalizing his inferiors I take the liberty to interfere."

As he said these words he made a sign to Harry, which the latter was too dull or too much troubled to understand.

"In what way am I to construe your attitude, sir?" demanded Vandeleur.

"Why, sir, as you please," returned Pendragon.

The general once more raised his cane and made a cut for Charlie's head, but the latter, lame foot and all, evaded the blow with his umbrella, ran in and immediately closed with his formidable adversary.

"Run, Harry; run!" he cried. "Run, you dolt!"

Harry stood petrified for a moment, watching the two men sway together in this fierce embrace; then he turned and took to his heels. When he cast a glance over his shoulder, he saw the general prostrate under Charlie's knee, but still making desperate efforts to reverse the situation, and the gardens seemed to have filled with people, who were running from all directions toward the scene of fight. This spectacle lent the secretary wings, and he did not relax his pace until he had gained the Bayswater road and plunged at random into an unfrequented bystreet.

To see two gentlemen of his acquaintance thus brutally mauling each other was deeply shocking to Harry. He desired to forget the sight; he desired, above all, to put as great a distance as possible between himself and General Vandeleur, and in his earnestness for this he forgot everything about his destination and hurried before him headlong and trembling. When he remembered that Lady Vandeleur was the wife of one and the sister of the other of these gladiators, his heart was touched with sympathy for a woman so distressingly misplaced in life. Even his own situation in the general's household looked hardly so pleasing as usual in the light of these violent transactions.

He had walked some little distance, busied with these meditations, before a slight collision with another passenger reminded him of the bandbox on his arm.

"Heavens!" cried he. "Where was my head, and whither have I wandered?"

Why can't we come over to your house and play any more?

Because papa gets so mad when we make a little bit of noise.

What makes him that way?

Mamma says it's dyspepsia makes him act so crazy.

That's about the way it strikes the small boy. The dyspeptic has no idea of his own unreasonableness or harshness. Little things are magnified and seem to justify his quick anger.

There's health for the dyspeptic and happiness for the family by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and restores perfect health and strength, by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

"I have taken one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for indigestion and liver complaint," writes Mr. C. M. Wilson, of Yadkin College, Davidson Co., N. C. "Have had no bad spells since I commenced taking your medicine—in fact, have not felt like the same man. Before I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I could not eat anything without awful distress, but now I can eat anything I wish without having unpleasant feelings."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse and regulate the bowels.

Rheumatism, Eczema, Hives, Tetter, Scrofula, Erysipelas, etc., are caused by impure blood. Purify the blood, and you have removed the cause, and cured the disease.

To purify the blood you must have perfect digestion on the one hand, that the blood may be supplied with healthy nutrition, and perfect excretion on the other that all the impurities may be thrown off.

Life Plant insures perfect digestion and perfect excretions, because it contains ingredients that perform those functions, acting together in perfect harmony. Life Plant is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism, Eczema, Catarrh, Hives, Tetter, Scrofula, Stomach and Liver troubles—and all forms of blood diseases.

Catarrh.

Mr. F Hurst, Father of Hurst Brothers, Grocers, New Philadelphia, Ohio, says:

A member of my family for six years or more, has had a severe case of Catarrh in the head and throat causing nervous prostration, with so much pain and roaring in head, that the hearing had become materially affected, the stomach deranged and the appetite gone, and with a feeling of prostration and lassitude. Was cured by the use of Life Plant more than a year ago and the trouble has not returned.

In winter time many people do not get the proper exercise necessary to promote good health.

The blood becomes thick, circulation slow; eliminating organs inactive; the system retains for longer time excretive matter, and disease naturally ensues. It may develop in indigestion, fevers, malassimilation, rheumatism, general debility, nervousness, coughs, colds, bronchitis. For these conditions Hagee's Cordial of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda is unequalled. It's a revitalizer, purifier and reconstructor—contains all the active principles of cod liver oil, without the nauseating grease, fishy odor, or unpleasant taste. Pleasant to take. A fine tonic food for puny children.

The New Arabian Nights

One fine morning he came into the drawing room and began to arrange some music on the top of the piano. Lady Vandeleur, at the other end of the apartment, was speaking somewhat eagerly with her brother, Charlie Pendragon, an elderly young man, much broken with dissipation and very lame of one foot. The private secretary, to whose entrance they paid no regard, could not avoid overhearing a part of their conversation.

"Today or never," said the lady. "Once and for all, it shall be done today."

"Today, if it must be," replied the brother, with a sigh. "But it is a false step, a ruinous step, Clara, and we shall live to repent it dismally."

Lady Vandeleur looked her brother steadily and somewhat strangely in the face.

"You forget," she said. "The man must die at last."

"Upon my word, Clara," said Pendragon, "I believe you are the most heartless rascal in England."

"You men," she returned, "are so coarsely built that you can never appreciate a shade of meaning. You are yourselves rapacious, violent, immodest, careless of distinction, and yet the least thought for the future shocks you in a woman. I have no patience with such stuff. You would despise in a common banker the imbecility that you expect to find in us."

"You are very likely right," replied her brother. "You were always cleverer than I. And, anyway, you know my motto, 'The family before all.'"

"Yes, Charlie," she returned, taking his hand in hers, "I know your motto better than you know it yourself. 'And Clara before the family.' Is not that the second part of it? Indeed you are the best of brothers, and I love you dearly."

Mr. Pendragon got up, looking a little confused by these family endearments.

"I had better not be seen," said he. "I understand my part to a miracle, and I'll keep an eye on the Tame Cat."

"Do," she replied. "He is an abject creature and might ruin all."

She kissed the tips of her fingers to him daintily, and the brother withdrew by the boudoir and the back stair.

"Harry," said Lady Vandeleur, turning toward the secretary as soon as they were alone, "I have a commission for you this morning. But you shall take a cab. I cannot have my secretary freckled."

She spoke the last words with emphasis and a look of half motherly pride that caused great contentment to poor Harry, and he professed himself charmed to find an opportunity of serving her.

"It is another of our great secrets," she went on archly, "and no one must know of it but my secretary and me. Sir Thomas would make the saddest disturbance, and if you only knew how weary I am of these scenes! Oh, Harry, Harry, can you explain to me what makes you men so violent and unjust? But, indeed, I know you cannot. You are the only man in the world who knows nothing of these shameful passions. You are so good, Harry, and so kind! You, at least, can be a woman's friend. And, do you know, I think you make the others more ugly by comparison."

"It is you," said Harry gallantly, "who are so kind to me. You treat me like"—

"Like a mother," interposed Lady Vandeleur. "I try to be a mother to you, or at least," she corrected herself, with a smile, "almost a mother. I am afraid I am too young to be your mother really. Let us say a friend—a dear friend."

She paused long enough to let her words take effect in Harry's sentimental quarters, but not long enough to allow him a reply.

"But all this is beside our purpose," she resumed. "You will find a bandbox in the left hand side of the oak wardrobe. It is underneath the pink slip that I wore on Wednesday with my mechlin. You will take it immediately to this address," and she gave him a paper, "but do not on any account let it out of your hands until you have received a receipt written by myself. Do you understand? Answer, if you please—answer! This is extremely important, and I must ask you to pay some attention."

Harry pacified her by repeating her instructions perfectly, and she was just going to tell him more when General Vandeleur flung into the apartment, scarlet with anger and holding a long and elaborate milliner's bill in his hand.

"Will you look at this, madame?" cried he. "Will you have the goodness to look at this document? I know well enough you married me for my money, and I hope I can make as great allowances as any other man in the service; but, as sure as God made me, I mean to put a period to this disreputable prodigality!"

"Mr. Hartley," said Lady Vandeleur, "I think you understand what you have to do. May I ask you to see to it at once?"

"Stop," said the general, addressing Harry. "One word before you go." And then, turning again to Lady Vandeleur, "What is this precious fellow's errand?" he demanded. "I trust him no further than I do yourself, let me tell you. If he had as much as the rudiments of honesty, he would scorn to stay in this house, and what he does for his wages is a mystery to all the world. What is his errand, madam, and why are you hurrying him away?"

"I supposed you had something to say to me in private," replied the lady.

"You spoke about an errand," insisted the general. "Do not attempt to deceive me in my present state of temper. You certainly spoke about an errand."

"If you insist on making your servants privy to our humiliating dissensions," replied Lady Vandeleur, "perhaps I had better ask Mr. Hartley to sit down. No?" she continued. "Then you may go, Mr. Hartley. I trust you may remember all that you have heard in this room. It may be useful to you."

Harry at once made his escape from the drawing room, and as he ran upstairs he could hear the general's voice upraised in declamation and the thin tones of Lady Vandeleur planting icy repartees at every opening. How cordially he admired the wife! How skillfully she could evade an awkward question! And with what secure effrontery she repeated her instructions under the very guns of the enemy! And, on the other hand, how he detested the husband!

There had been nothing unfamiliar in the morning's events, for he was continually in the habit of serving Lady Vandeleur on secret missions, principally connected with the millinery. There was a skeleton in the house, as he well knew. The bottomless extravagance and the unknown liabilities of the wife had long since swallowed her own fortune and threatened day by day to engulf that of the husband. Once or twice in every year exposure and ruin seemed imminent, and Harry kept trotting round to all sorts of furnishers' shops telling small fibs and paying small advances on the gross amount until another term was tided over, and the lady and her faithful secretary breathed again. For Harry, in a double capacity, was heart and soul upon that side of the war. Not only did he adore Lady Vandeleur and fear and dislike her husband, but he naturally sympathized with the love of finery, and his own single extravagance was at the tailor's.

He found the bandbox where it had been described, arranged his toilet with care and left the house. The sun shone brightly. The distance he had to travel was considerable, and he remembered with dismay that the general's sudden irruption had prevented Lady Vandeleur from giving him money for a cab. On this sultry day there was every chance that his complexion would suffer severely, and to walk through so much of London with a bandbox on his arm was a humiliation almost insupportable to a youth of his character. He paused and took counsel with himself. The Vandeleurs lived in Eaton place. His destination was near Notting Hill. Plainly he might cross the park by keeping well in the open and avoiding populous alleys, and he thanked his stars when he reflected that it was still comparatively early in the day.

HARRY GAVE HIMSELF UP FOR LOST.

Anxious to be rid of his incubus, he walked somewhat faster than his ordinary, and he was already some way through Kensington gardens when in a solitary spot among trees he found himself confronted by the general.

"I beg your pardon, Sir Thomas," observed Harry politely, falling on one side, for the other stood directly in his path.

"Where are you going, sir?" asked the general.

"I am taking a little walk among the trees," replied the lad.

The general struck the bandbox with his cane.

"With that thing?" he cried. "You lie, sir, and you know you lie!"

"Indeed, Sir Thomas," returned Harry, "I am not accustomed to be questioned in so high a key."

"You do not understand your position," said the general. "You are my servant, and a servant of whom I have conceived the most serious suspicions. How do I know but that your box is full of teaspoons?"

"It contains a silk hat belonging to a friend," said Harry.

"Very well," replied General Vandeleur. "Then I want to see your friend's silk hat. I have," he added grimly, "a singular curiosity for hats, and I believe you know me to be somewhat positive."

"I beg your pardon, Sir Thomas, I am exceedingly grieved," Harry apologized, "but indeed this is a private affair."

The general caught him roughly by the shoulder with one hand while he raised his cane in the most menacing manner with the other. Harry gave himself up for lost, but at the same moment heaven vouchsafed him an unexpected defender in the person of Charlie Pendragon, who now strode forward from behind the trees.

"Come, come, general; hold your hand," said he. "This is neither courteous nor manly."

"Aha!" cried the general, wheeling round upon his new antagonist. "Mr Pendragon! And do you suppose, Mr Pendragon, that because I have had the misfortune to marry your sister I shall suffer myself to be dogged and thwarted by a discredited and bankrupt libertine like you? My acquaintance with Lady Vandeleur, sir, has taken away all my appetite for the other members of her family."

"And do you fancy, General Vandeleur," retorted Charlie, "that because my sister has had the misfortune to marry you she there and then forfeited her rights and privileges as a lady? I own, sir, that by that action she did as much as anybody could to derogate from her position, but to me she is still a Pendragon. I make it my business to protect her from ungentlemanly outrage, and if you were ten times her husband I would not permit her liberty to be restrained nor her private messengers to be violently arrested."

"How is that, Mr. Hartley?" interrogated the general. "Mr. Pendragon is of my opinion, it appears. He, too, suspects that Lady Vandeleur has something to do with your friend's silk hat."

Charlie saw that he had committed an unpardonable blunder, which he hastened to repair.

"How, sir?" he cried. "I suspect, do you say? I suspect nothing. Only where I find strength abused and a man brutalizing his inferiors I take the liberty to interfere."

As he said these words he made a sign to Harry, which the latter was too dull or too much troubled to understand.

"In what way am I to construe your attitude, sir?" demanded Vandeleur.

"Why, sir, as you please," returned Pendragon.

The general once more raised his cane and made a cut for Charlie's head, but the latter, lame foot and all, evaded the blow with his umbrella, ran in and immediately closed with his formidable adversary.

"Run, Harry; run!" he cried. "Run, you dolt!"

Harry stood petrified for a moment, watching the two men sway together in this fierce embrace; then he turned and took to his heels. When he cast a glance over his shoulder, he saw the general prostrate under Charlie's knee, but still making desperate efforts to reverse the situation, and the gardens seemed to have filled with people, who were running from all directions toward the scene of fight. This spectacle lent the secretary wings, and he did not relax his pace until he had gained the Bayswater road and plunged at random into an unfrequented bystreet.

To see two gentlemen of his acquaintance thus brutally mauling each other was deeply shocking to Harry. He desired to forget the sight; he desired, above all, to put as great a distance as possible between himself and General Vandeleur, and in his earnestness for this he forgot everything about his destination and hurried before him headlong and trembling. When he remembered that Lady Vandeleur was the wife of one and the sister of the other of these gladiators, his heart was touched with sympathy for a woman so distressingly misplaced in life. Even his own situation in the general's household looked hardly so pleasing as usual in the light of these violent transactions.

He had walked some little distance, busied with these meditations, before a slight collision with another passenger reminded him of the bandbox on his arm.

"Heavens!" cried he. "Where was my head, and whither have I wandered?"

Why can't we come over to your house and play any more?

Because papa gets so mad when we make a little bit of noise.

What makes him that way?

Mamma says it's dyspepsia makes him act so crazy.

That's about the way it strikes the small boy. The dyspeptic has no idea of his own unreasonableness or harshness. Little things are magnified and seem to justify his quick anger.

There's health for the dyspeptic and happiness for the family by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and restores perfect health and strength, by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

"I have taken one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for indigestion and liver complaint," writes Mr. C. M. Wilson, of Yadkin College, Davidson Co., N. C. "Have had no bad spells since I commenced taking your medicine—in fact, have not felt like the same man. Before I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I could not eat anything without awful distress, but now I can eat anything I wish without having unpleasant feelings."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse and regulate the bowels.

Rheumatism, Eczema, Hives, Tetter, Scrofula, Erysipelas, etc., are caused by impure blood. Purify the blood, and you have removed the cause, and cured the disease.

To purify the blood you must have perfect digestion on the one hand, that the blood may be supplied with healthy nutrition, and perfect excretion on the other that all the impurities may be thrown off.

Life Plant insures perfect digestion and perfect excretions, because it contains ingredients that perform those functions, acting together in perfect harmony. Life Plant is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism, Eczema, Catarrh, Hives, Tetter, Scrofula, Stomach and Liver troubles—and all forms of blood diseases.

Catarrh.

Mr. F Hurst, Father of Hurst Brothers, Grocers, New Philadelphia, Ohio, says:

A member of my family for six years or more, has had a severe case of Catarrh in the head and throat causing nervous prostration, with so much pain and roaring in head, that the hearing had become materially affected, the stomach deranged and the appetite gone, and with a feeling of prostration and lassitude. Was cured by the use of Life Plant more than a year ago and the trouble has not returned.

The New Arabian Nights

One fine morning he came into the drawing room and began to arrange some music on the top of the piano. Lady Vandeleur, at the other end of the apartment, was speaking somewhat eagerly with her brother, Charlie Pendragon, an elderly young man, much broken with dissipation and very lame of one foot. The private secretary, to whose entrance they paid no regard, could not avoid overhearing a part of their conversation.

"Today or never," said the lady. "Once and for all, it shall be done today."

"Today, if it must be," replied the brother, with a sigh. "But it is a false step, a ruinous step, Clara, and we shall live to repent it dismally."

Lady Vandeleur looked her brother steadily and somewhat strangely in the face.

"You forget," she said. "The man must die at last."

"Upon my word, Clara," said Pendragon, "I believe you are the most heartless rascal in England."

"You men," she returned, "are so coarsely built that you can never appreciate a shade of meaning. You are yourselves rapacious, violent, immodest, careless of distinction, and yet the least thought for the future shocks you in a woman. I have no patience with such stuff. You would despise in a common banker the imbecility that you expect to find in us."

HARRY GAVE HIMSELF UP FOR LOST.

"You are very likely right," replied her brother. "You were always cleverer than I. And, anyway, you know my motto, 'The family before all.'"

"Yes, Charlie," she returned, taking his hand in hers, "I know your motto better than you know it yourself. 'And Clara before the family.' Is not that the second part of it? Indeed you are the best of brothers, and I love you dearly."

Mr. Pendragon got up, looking a little confused by these family endearments.

"I had better not be seen," said he. "I understand my part to a miracle, and I'll keep an eye on the Tame Cat."

"Do," she replied. "He is an abject creature and might ruin all."

She kissed the tips of her fingers to him daintily, and the brother withdrew by the boudoir and the back stair.

"Harry," said Lady Vandeleur, turning toward the secretary as soon as they were alone, "I have a commission for you this morning. But you shall take a cab. I cannot have my secretary freckled."

She spoke the last words with emphasis and a look of half motherly pride that caused great contentment to poor Harry, and he professed himself charmed to find an opportunity of serving her.

"It is another of our great secrets," she went on archly, "and no one must know of it but my secretary and me. Sir Thomas would make the saddest disturbance, and if you only knew how weary I am of these scenes! Oh, Harry, Harry, can you explain to me what makes you men so violent and unjust? But, indeed, I know you cannot. You are the only man in the world who knows nothing of these shameful passions. You are so good, Harry, and so kind! You, at least, can be a woman's friend. And, do you know, I think you make the others more ugly by comparison."

"It is you," said Harry gallantly, "who are so kind to me. You treat me like"—

"Like a mother," interposed Lady Vandeleur. "I try to be a mother to you, or at least," she corrected herself, with a smile, "almost a mother. I am afraid I am too young to be your mother really. Let us say a friend—a dear friend."

She paused long enough to let her words take effect in Harry's sentimental quarters, but not long enough to allow him a reply.

"But all this is beside our purpose," she resumed. "You will find a bandbox in the left hand side of the oak wardrobe. It is underneath the pink slip that I wore on Wednesday with my mechlin. You will take it immediately to this address," and she gave him a paper, "but do not on any account let it out of your hands until you have received a receipt written by myself. Do you understand? Answer, if you please—answer! This is extremely important, and I must ask you to pay some attention."

Harry pacified her by repeating her instructions perfectly, and she was just going to tell him more when General Vandeleur flung into the apartment, scarlet with anger and holding a long and elaborate milliner's bill in his hand.

"Will you look at this, madame?" cried he. "Will you have the goodness to look at this document? I know well enough you married me for my money, and I hope I can make as great allowances as any other man in the service; but, as sure as God made me, I mean to put a period to this disreputable prodigality!"

"Mr. Hartley," said Lady Vandeleur, "I think you understand what you have to do. May I ask you to see to it at once?"

"Stop," said the general, addressing Harry. "One word before you go." And then, turning again to Lady Vandeleur, "What is this precious fellow's errand?" he demanded. "I trust him no further than I do yourself, let me tell you. If he had as much as the rudiments of honesty, he would scorn to stay in this house, and what he does for his wages is a mystery to all the world. What is his errand, madam, and why are you hurrying him away?"

"I supposed you had something to say to me in private," replied the lady.

"You spoke about an errand," insisted the general. "Do not attempt to deceive me in my present state of temper. You certainly spoke about an errand."

"If you insist on making your servants privy to our humiliating dissensions," replied Lady Vandeleur, "perhaps I had better ask Mr. Hartley to sit down. No?" she continued. "Then you may go, Mr. Hartley. I trust you may remember all that you have heard in this room. It may be useful to you."

Harry at once made his escape from the drawing room, and as he ran upstairs he could hear the general's voice upraised in declamation and the thin tones of Lady Vandeleur planting icy repartees at every opening. How cordially he admired the wife! How skillfully she could evade an awkward question! And with what secure effrontery she repeated her instructions under the very guns of the enemy! And, on the other hand, how he detested the husband!

There had been nothing unfamiliar in the morning's events, for he was continually in the habit of serving Lady Vandeleur on secret missions, principally connected with the millinery. There was a skeleton in the house, as he well knew. The bottomless extravagance and the unknown liabilities of the wife had long since swallowed her own fortune and threatened day by day to engulf that of the husband. Once or twice in every year exposure and ruin seemed imminent, and Harry kept trotting round to all sorts of furnishers' shops telling small fibs and paying small advances on the gross amount until another term was tided over, and the lady and her faithful secretary breathed again. For Harry, in a double capacity, was heart and soul upon that side of the war. Not only did he adore Lady Vandeleur and fear and dislike her husband, but he naturally sympathized with the love of finery, and his own single extravagance was at the tailor's.

He found the bandbox where it had been described, arranged his toilet with care and left the house. The sun shone brightly. The distance he had to travel was considerable, and he remembered with dismay that the general's sudden irruption had prevented Lady Vandeleur from giving him money for a cab. On this sultry day there was every chance that his complexion would suffer severely, and to walk through so much of London with a bandbox on his arm was a humiliation almost insupportable to a youth of his character. He paused and took counsel with himself. The Vandeleurs lived in Eaton place. His destination was near Notting Hill. Plainly he might cross the park by keeping well in the open and avoiding populous alleys, and he thanked his stars when he reflected that it was still comparatively early in the day.

Anxious to be rid of his incubus, he walked somewhat faster than his ordinary, and he was already some way through Kensington gardens when in a solitary spot among trees he found himself confronted by the general.

"I beg your pardon, Sir Thomas," observed Harry politely, falling on one side, for the other stood directly in his path.

"Where are you going, sir?" asked the general.

"I am taking a little walk among the trees," replied the lad.

The general struck the bandbox with his cane.

"With that thing?" he cried. "You lie, sir, and you know you lie!"

"Indeed, Sir Thomas," returned Harry, "I am not accustomed to be questioned in so high a key."

"You do not understand your position," said the general. "You are my servant, and a servant of whom I have conceived the most serious suspicions. How do I know but that your box is full of teaspoons?"

"It contains a silk hat belonging to a friend," said Harry.

"Very well," replied General Vandeleur. "Then I want to see your friend's silk hat. I have," he added grimly, "a singular curiosity for hats, and I believe you know me to be somewhat positive."

"I beg your pardon, Sir Thomas, I am exceedingly grieved," Harry apologized, "but indeed this is a private affair."

The general caught him roughly by the shoulder with one hand while he raised his cane in the most menacing manner with the other. Harry gave himself up for lost, but at the same moment heaven vouchsafed him an unexpected defender in the person of Charlie Pendragon, who now strode forward from behind the trees.

"Come, come, general; hold your hand," said he. "This is neither courteous nor manly."

"Aha!" cried the general, wheeling round upon his new antagonist. "Mr Pendragon! And do you suppose, Mr Pendragon, that because I have had the misfortune to marry your sister I shall suffer myself to be dogged and thwarted by a discredited and bankrupt libertine like you? My acquaintance with Lady Vandeleur, sir, has taken away all my appetite for the other members of her family."

"And do you fancy, General Vandeleur," retorted Charlie, "that because my sister has had the misfortune to marry you she there and then forfeited her rights and privileges as a lady? I own, sir, that by that action she did as much as anybody could to derogate from her position, but to me she is still a Pendragon. I make it my business to protect her from ungentlemanly outrage, and if you were ten times her husband I would not permit her liberty to be restrained nor her private messengers to be violently arrested."

"How is that, Mr. Hartley?" interrogated the general. "Mr. Pendragon is of my opinion, it appears. He, too, suspects that Lady Vandeleur has something to do with your friend's silk hat."

Charlie saw that he had committed an unpardonable blunder, which he hastened to repair.

"How, sir?" he cried. "I suspect, do you say? I suspect nothing. Only where I find strength abused and a man brutalizing his inferiors I take the liberty to interfere."

As he said these words he made a sign to Harry, which the latter was too dull or too much troubled to understand.

"In what way am I to construe your attitude, sir?" demanded Vandeleur.

"Why, sir, as you please," returned Pendragon.

The general once more raised his cane and made a cut for Charlie's head, but the latter, lame foot and all, evaded the blow with his umbrella, ran in and immediately closed with his formidable adversary.

"Run, Harry; run!" he cried. "Run, you dolt!"

Harry stood petrified for a moment, watching the two men sway together in this fierce embrace; then he turned and took to his heels. When he cast a glance over his shoulder, he saw the general prostrate under Charlie's knee, but still making desperate efforts to reverse the situation, and the gardens seemed to have filled with people, who were running from all directions toward the scene of fight. This spectacle lent the secretary wings, and he did not relax his pace until he had gained the Bayswater road and plunged at random into an unfrequented bystreet.

To see two gentlemen of his acquaintance thus brutally mauling each other was deeply shocking to Harry. He desired to forget the sight; he desired, above all, to put as great a distance as possible between himself and General Vandeleur, and in his earnestness for this he forgot everything about his destination and hurried before him headlong and trembling. When he remembered that Lady Vandeleur was the wife of one and the sister of the other of these gladiators, his heart was touched with sympathy for a woman so distressingly misplaced in life. Even his own situation in the general's household looked hardly so pleasing as usual in the light of these violent transactions.

He had walked some little distance, busied with these meditations, before a slight collision with another passenger reminded him of the bandbox on his arm.

"Heavens!" cried he. "Where was my head, and whither have I wandered?"

HARRY SHEETS HEARD FROM

The Man Who Broke Into Furrer's Barber Shop Telephoned, Desiring to Get Back.

Harry Sheets, the barber who has been employed at Fred Furrer's barber shop, is still among the missing. Tuesday night about 10:30 he, it is alleged, cut the glass out of the rear window of the barber shop and, hastily getting his tools, left the shop Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock he called up Tony Bertele, another employe of the barber shop, and said that he was in Toronto and wanted to know if things could not be arranged for him to come back. He said that he was intoxicated at the time or he would not have done as he did. However, he was informed that he would have to see the proprietor in regard to the matter, and it was thought that his services were no longer needed. He offered to make good any damage he had done, but his offer was not accepted.

It was learned later that he had been in Chester as late as 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and it is supposed that he telephoned from there instead of Toronto, as he said. Since then nothing has been heard from him, and it is supposed that he has left for another part of the country. It is said that the agent of a clothing firm who is selling on the installment plan was taken in by Sheets to the amount of $25, as he had purchased a $30 suit and had only paid $5 down on it before leaving. It is also said that he left other creditors.

SOCIAL EVENTS

FREDERICK-HOWARD

Well Known Young People of the East End Quietly Married Last Evening.

Lewis F. Howard and Miss Luella Frederick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Frederick, of Ohio avenue, were married last evening about 9 o'clock at the Second Presbyterian church parsonage by Rev. N. M. Crowe. Only the immediate relatives of the couple were present at the wedding. The wedding will come as a surprise to the friends of the couple. Their friends had been anticipating a wedding soon, but hardly expected it to be conducted as quietly as it was, or before early summer.

Both young people are well known and have many friends. The groom is connected with the force at the East End fire station and is deservedly popular. Mr. and Mrs. Howard left this morning for a short trip to New York, and upon their return will be "at home" in the East End, where they will begin housekeeping.

Entertained the Club.

Mrs. Frank E. Grosshans delightfully entertained the members of the Flabbergaster club, at her home, Hill Crest, yesterday afternoon. The event was given in honor of Miss Jennie Simpson, of Peekskill, N. Y., who is the guest of Mrs. Grosshans. The afternoon was a most delightful one, and was much enjoyed by those present.

PATHETIC STORY TOLD BY A WOMAN

ALONE AND PENNILESS IN A STRANGE CITY.

Relatives Failed in Promise to Pay Her Wages Agreed Upon.

Mayor Davidson this afternoon listened to one of the most pathetic stories that has been told to him during the several years of his official life. The narrator was a woman, and if her story is true, and there is every reason to believe that it is, she has been the victim of the base ingratitude of relatives near enough of kin to make her welfare almost their first consideration. The woman is Mrs. John White, and she came here three weeks ago to nurse her sister, who was then very seriously ill. The name of the sister will not be made public at this time. Mrs. White was to receive $1 a day for her services as nurse. She entered upon her duties at once and watched almost constantly at the bedside until the patient was on the road to recovery. Not one cent was paid to her during this time.

The sister recovered her health and a few days ago she and her husband made arrangements to leave the city. No provision was made for Mrs. White, and, she states, not one cent of the money due her was paid. If the couple take their departure she will be left destitute in a town in which she is almost a total stranger. She has no other relatives here and is practically homeless.

That people could grow so depraved as to turn a deaf ear to the entreaties of a near relative is almost incomprehensible, and that they should desert one who had done so much in their hour of need is scarcely to be believed. Yet this is true, if Mrs. White's story is correct. The mayor was touched at the pitiable condition of the woman who told her story with tears streaming from her eyes and was highly incensed at the actions of such hardhearted relatives. He promised to do everything in his power to assist the poor woman, and if there is any law to cover the case it will likely be invoked.

City to Be Cleaned Up.

There remains but one case of contagious disease in the city. After tomorrow the city will be rid of even this one. The case is diphtheria, but although the patient has recovered the quarantine will not be raised until tomorrow. There has been considerable sickness during the winter and citizens will gladly welcome the warm weather, which will put an end to infectious diseases of various kinds. As soon as it is possible the accumulation of filth and debris will be removed from every street and alley in the city.

River Division First.

It is reported that the main line of the Cleveland & Pittsburg railway will not be double tracked from Yellow Creek north till the river division is finished. The contracts have been let for the river division with orders to rush work through as speedily as possible. It is believed that the work on this division will be finished by fall and the work on the part of the line north of Yellow Creek will be pushed.

Notice to Contractors.

Sealed proposals for the proposed building of the Union Building, Loan & Trust Co. and Geo. H. Owen & Co. on Sixth street, will be received at the office of the Union Building, Loan & Trust Co. until 12 noon, Thursday, March 19, 1903.

TUESDAY AGREED ON

As the Time When Vote Will Be Taken on Measure and Amendment.

PROGRESS ON CANAL TREATY.

Agreement Has No Bearing on Cuban Compact, but May Open Way for Early Consideration — Guatemalan and Mexican Treaties Ratified.

Washington, March 12.—Decided progress was made toward reaching an agreement for a vote on the Colombian canal treaty, and when the senate adjourned there was a general understanding that some hour next Tuesday would be definitely agreed on as the time when a vote should be taken on the treaty and all amendments. All statements to this effect have been accompanied by the announcement that there were yet some details to be arranged.

The arrangements were brought about largely by Senator Frye, who, by virtue of long service with Senator Morgan on the committee on foreign relations, has come to be on terms of great intimacy with the Alabama senator. No other senator thus far has shown any inclination to delay the final disposition of the treaty, so that all that was necessary was to secure Mr. Morgan's assent to the taking of the vote. The negotiation was begun early in the day, and after Senators Frye and Morgan had been closeted for some time the latter sought Senator Gorman and talked over the situation with him, with the result indicated.

Democratic senators have practically agreed unanimously to urge an amendment to the twenty-third article of the treaty, relieving it of all question as to the right of the United States to control the canal, and they express confidence in obtaining some Republican votes for it. Many senators also express the conviction that the change in the treaty committing the United States to a policy of non-acquisition of Central American territory should be eliminated as entirely out of place. The indications are, however, that the treaty will be ratified without modification in any particular.

The agreement made has no reference to the Cuban treaty, but opens the way for its early consideration in the senate.

Senator Morgan continued his remarks in the senate in opposition to the canal treaty, but most of the time was given up to the reading of documents by the clerk at Mr. Morgan's request. The few remarks made by him related to the unsanitary conditions in the vicinity of the Panama route and to the division of the money to be paid to Colombia by the United States.

The Guatemalan and Mexican extradition treaties were ratified.

The understanding among the members of the committee on foreign relations is that none of the reciprocity treaties before the committee shall be reported for consideration this session and that the Cuban treaty will be the last to receive the attention of the committee at present.

CONTRACT LABOR IN PRISON.

Committee Submits Report to Michigan Legislature Condemning Practice.

Lansing, Mich., March 12.—Contract labor in state prisons is strongly condemned in a report submitted to the lower house of the state legislature by the committee on the Jackson state prison. The report goes to show that prisoners are hired out to contractors for from 35 to 75 cents a day, whose work would call for from $4 a week up to $4 a day at union rates of wages. The committee expresses the opinion that the contract system enriches the contractors at the expense of the state and says further in its report:

"We cannot understand why an institution of this kind, employing 500 to 600 men every day, cannot be self sustaining. We are informed that the demand from some contractors for articles manufactured is so great that the prison is unable to fill some of its contracts."

Succeeded on Third Attempt.

Detroit, March 12.—After two attempts at suicide in the county jail, Jacob Beyer, a young farmer, whose home was near Wayne, Mich., made a third and successful effort about 7 o'clock in the county asylum at Eloise, where he had been taken during the day. His skull was crushed in like a broken eggshell by a desperate dive over the third-floor bannister to a hardwood floor 40 feet below. Beyer for two weeks had been confined at the county jail awaiting trial for burglary.

Appointed Consular.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 12.—Francis Keene, of this city, a class-mate of President Roosevelt at Harvard, received notice from Secretary Hay at Washington that he would be appointed United States consul to Florence, Italy.

Commander of Polar Expedition Sails.

New York, March 12.—Anthony Fiala, who is to command the Zeigler expedition in search of the north pole was a passenger on the steamship Oceanic.

ELECTION,
Monday, April 6, 1903.

ALONE AND PENNILESS IN A STRANGE CITY.

Relatives Failed in Promise to Pay Her Wages Agreed Upon.

Mayor Davidson this afternoon listened to one of the most pathetic stories that has been told to him during the several years of his official life. The narrator was a woman, and if her story is true, and there is every reason to believe that it is, she has been the victim of the base ingratitude of relatives near enough of kin to make her welfare almost their first consideration. The woman is Mrs. John White, and she came here three weeks ago to nurse her sister, who was then very seriously ill. The name of the sister will not be made public at this time. Mrs. White was to receive $1 a day for her services as nurse. She entered upon her duties at once and watched almost constantly at the bedside until the patient was on the road to recovery. Not one cent was paid to her during this time.

The sister recovered her health and a few days ago she and her husband made arrangements to leave the city. No provision was made for Mrs. White, and, she states, not one cent of the money due her was paid. If the couple take their departure she will be left destitute in a town in which she is almost a total stranger. She has no other relatives here and is practically homeless.

That people could grow so depraved as to turn a deaf ear to the entreaties of a near relative is almost incomprehensible, and that they should desert one who had done so much in their hour of need is scarcely to be believed. Yet this is true, if Mrs. White's story is correct. The mayor was touched at the pitiable condition of the woman who told her story with tears streaming from her eyes and was highly incensed at the actions of such hardhearted relatives. He promised to do everything in his power to assist the poor woman, and if there is any law to cover the case it will likely be invoked.

City to Be Cleaned Up.

There remains but one case of contagious disease in the city. After tomorrow the city will be rid of even this one. The case is diphtheria, but although the patient has recovered the quarantine will not be raised until tomorrow. There has been considerable sickness during the winter and citizens will gladly welcome the warm weather, which will put an end to infectious diseases of various kinds. As soon as it is possible the accumulation of filth and debris will be removed from every street and alley in the city.

River Division First.

It is reported that the main line of the Cleveland & Pittsburg railway will not be double tracked from Yellow Creek north till the river division is finished. The contracts have been let for the river division with orders to rush work through as speedily as possible. It is believed that the work on this division will be finished by fall and the work on the part of the line north of Yellow Creek will be pushed.

TUESDAY AGREED ON

As the Time When Vote Will Be Taken on Measure and Amendment.

PROGRESS ON CANAL TREATY.

Agreement Has No Bearing on Cuban Compact, but May Open Way for Early Consideration — Guatemalan and Mexican Treaties Ratified.

Washington, March 12.—Decided progress was made toward reaching an agreement for a vote on the Colombian canal treaty, and when the senate adjourned there was a general understanding that some hour next Tuesday would be definitely agreed on as the time when a vote should be taken on the treaty and all amendments. All statements to this effect have been accompanied by the announcement that there were yet some details to be arranged.

The arrangements were brought about largely by Senator Frye, who, by virtue of long service with Senator Morgan on the committee on foreign relations, has come to be on terms of great intimacy with the Alabama senator. No other senator thus far has shown any inclination to delay the final disposition of the treaty, so that all that was necessary was to secure Mr. Morgan's assent to the taking of the vote. The negotiation was begun early in the day, and after Senators Frye and Morgan had been closeted for some time the latter sought Senator Gorman and talked over the situation with him, with the result indicated.

Democratic senators have practically agreed unanimously to urge an amendment to the twenty-third article of the treaty, relieving it of all question as to the right of the United States to control the canal, and they express confidence in obtaining some Republican votes for it. Many senators also express the conviction that the change in the treaty committing the United States to a policy of non-acquisition of Central American territory should be eliminated as entirely out of place. The indications are, however, that the treaty will be ratified without modification in any particular.

The agreement made has no reference to the Cuban treaty, but opens the way for its early consideration in the senate.

Senator Morgan continued his remarks in the senate in opposition to the canal treaty, but most of the time was given up to the reading of documents by the clerk at Mr. Morgan's request. The few remarks made by him related to the unsanitary conditions in the vicinity of the Panama route and to the division of the money to be paid to Colombia by the United States.

The Guatemalan and Mexican extradition treaties were ratified.

The understanding among the members of the committee on foreign relations is that none of the reciprocity treaties before the committee shall be reported for consideration this session and that the Cuban treaty will be the last to receive the attention of the committee at present.

CONTRACT LABOR IN PRISON.

Committee Submits Report to Michigan Legislature Condemning Practice.

Lansing, Mich., March 12.—Contract labor in state prisons is strongly condemned in a report submitted to the lower house of the state legislature by the committee on the Jackson state prison. The report goes to show that prisoners are hired out to contractors for from 35 to 75 cents a day, whose work would call for from $4 a week up to $4 a day at union rates of wages. The committee expresses the opinion that the contract system enriches the contractors at the expense of the state and says further in its report:

"We cannot understand why an institution of this kind, employing 500 to 600 men every day, cannot be self-sustaining. We are informed that the demand from some contractors for articles manufactured is so great that the prison is unable to fill some of its contracts."

Succeeded on Third Attempt.

Detroit, March 12.—After two attempts at suicide in the county jail, Jacob Beyer, a young farmer, whose home was near Wayne, Mich., made a third and successful effort about 7 o'clock in the county asylum at Eloise, where he had been taken during the day. His skull was crushed in like a broken eggshell by a desperate dive over the third-floor bannister to a hardwood floor 40 feet below. Beyer for two weeks had been confined at the county jail awaiting trial for burglary.

Appointed Consular.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 12.—Francis Keene, of this city, a class-mate of President Roosevelt at Harvard, received notice from Secretary Hay at Washington that he would be appointed United States consul to Florence, Italy.

Commander of Polar Expedition Sails.

New York, March 12.—Anthony Fiala, who is to command the Zeigler expedition in search of the north pole, was a passenger on the steamship Oceanic.

in Congo and meeting Stephen one day wrote the address in the book. Speaking of the life of the dead man Jesse Wallace said:

"He was always inclined to roam the country, and was at home but little after he was old enough to take care of himself. He was of a rather surly disposition and at one time was considered insane. He was single and had many peculiarities. It has always been our wish to have all the members of our family buried in our lot at North Branch cemetery, and we will take the body there as soon as we are given the permit."

The body, before being buried in the potters' field, was well embalmed by Mrs. Miller, and it is thought will be in a very good state of preservation when moved.

HARRY SHEETS HEARD FROM

The Man Who Broke Into Furrer's Barber Shop Telephoned, Desiring to Get Back.

Harry Sheets, the barber who has been employed at Fred Furrer's barber shop, is still among the missing. Tuesday night about 10:30 he, it is alleged, cut the glass out of the rear window of the barber shop and, hastily getting his tools, left the shop. Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock he called up Tony Bertele, another employe of the barber shop, and said that he was in Toronto and wanted to know if things could not be arranged for him to come back. He said that he was intoxicated at the time or he would not have done as he did. However, he was informed that he would have to see the proprietor in regard to the matter, and it was thought that his services were no longer needed. He offered to make good any damage he had done, but his offer was not accepted.

It was learned later that he had been in Chester as late as 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and it is supposed that he telephoned from there instead of Toronto, as he said. Since then nothing has been heard from him, and it is supposed that he has left for another part of the country. It is said that the agent of a clothing firm who is selling on the installment plan was taken in by Sheets to the amount of $25, as he had purchased a $30 suit and had only paid $5 down on it before leaving. It is also said that he left other creditors.

TUESDAY AGREED ON

As the Time When Vote Will Be Taken on Measure and Amendment.

PROGRESS ON CANAL TREATY.

Agreement Has No Bearing on Cuban Compact, but May Open Way for Early Consideration — Guatemalan and Mexican Treaties Ratified.

Washington, March 12.—Decided progress was made toward reaching an agreement for a vote on the Colombian canal treaty, and when the senate adjourned there was a general understanding that some hour next Tuesday would be definitely agreed on as the time when a vote should be taken on the treaty and all amendments. All statements to this effect have been accompanied by the announcement that there were yet some details to be arranged.

The arrangements were brought about largely by Senator Frye, who, by virtue of long service with Senator Morgan on the committee on foreign relations, has come to be on terms of great intimacy with the Alabama senator. No other senator thus far has shown any inclination to delay the final disposition of the treaty, so that all that was necessary was to secure Mr. Morgan's assent to the taking of the vote. The negotiation was begun early in the day, and after Senators Frye and Morgan had been closeted for some time the latter sought Senator Gorman and talked over the situation with him, with the result indicated.

Democratic senators have practically agreed unanimously to urge an amendment to the twenty-third article of the treaty, relieving it of all question as to the right of the United States to control the canal, and they express confidence in obtaining some Republican votes for it. Many senators also express the conviction that the change in the treaty committing the United States to a policy of non-acquisition of Central American territory should be eliminated as entirely out of place. The indications are, however, that the treaty will be ratified without modification in any particular.

The agreement made has no reference to the Cuban treaty, but opens the way for its early consideration in the senate.

Senator Morgan continued his remarks in the senate in opposition to the canal treaty, but most of the time was given up to the reading of documents by the clerk at Mr. Morgan's request. The few remarks made by him related to the unsanitary conditions in the vicinity of the Panama route and to the division of the money to be paid to Colombia by the United States.

The Guatemalan and Mexican extradition treaties were ratified.

The understanding among the members of the committee on foreign relations is that none of the reciprocity treaties before the committee shall be reported for consideration this session and that the Cuban treaty will be the last to receive the attention of the committee at present.

CONTRACT LABOR IN PRISON.

Committee Submits Report to Michigan Legislature Condemning Practice.

Lansing, Mich., March 12.—Contract labor in state prisons is strongly condemned in a report submitted to the lower house of the state legislature by the committee on the Jackson state prison. The report goes to show that prisoners are hired out to contractors for from 35 to 75 cents a day, whose work would call for from $4 a week up to $4 a day at union rates of wages. The committee expresses the opinion that the contract system enriches the contractors at the expense of the state and says further in its report:

"We cannot understand why an institution of this kind, employing 500 to 600 men every day, cannot be self-sustaining. We are informed that the demand from some contractors for articles manufactured is so great that the prison is unable to fill some of its contracts."

Succeeded on Third Attempt.

Detroit, March 12.—After two attempts at suicide in the county jail, Jacob Beyer, a young farmer, whose home was near Wayne, Mich., made a third and successful effort about 7 o'clock in the county asylum at Eloise, where he had been taken during the day. His skull was crushed in like a broken eggshell by a desperate dive over the third-floor bannister to a hardwood floor 40 feet below. Beyer for two weeks had been confined at the county jail awaiting trial for burglary.

Appointed Consular.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 12.—Francis Keene, of this city, a class-mate of President Roosevelt at Harvard, received notice from Secretary Hay at Washington that he would be appointed United States consul to Florence, Italy.

Commander of Polar Expedition Sails.

New York, March 12.—Anthony Fiala, who is to command the Zeigler expedition in search of the north pole, was a passenger on the steamship Oceanic.

20TH YEAR. NO. 60. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1903. TWO CENTS.

C. A. Smith Authorized to Construct a Line to the East End and a Branch to the Northside.

THE SCHEDULE AND ROUTES DECIDED UPON

A franchise granting C. A. Smith the right to construct, maintain and operate an electric street railway from the central portion of the city to the East End via Pennsylvania avenue, with a branch line to the Northside, was placed upon its third reading and final passage by eight members of council at an adjourned meeting held last evening.

The members present at the meeting were: President Nice, McConnell, Marshall, Bullock, Johnston, Barlow, Horwell and Orr. As in almost every meeting that he has ever attended Dr. Marshall, who was present for the first time in several weeks, owing to sickness, had the floor fully two-thirds of the time. After the franchise was read for the second time he raised a vigorous protest to it being passed under the suspension of the rules until certain amendments were granted by the applicant.

Considerable time was consumed in arranging the amendments to suit all parties concerned, but after it was once completed the franchise went through on rollers. The amendments inserted and mutually agreed upon were in a concise form as follows: That the railway company shall pave two feet on either side of the track and keep it in repair wherever the road runs on public paved property; that the company shall keep the surface between the tracks in such condition that it will not be a hindrance to any vehicle, and that at crossings planking must be laid; that the poles erected along the route shall be 25 feet in height; that the cars shall be run on the main line on a schedule of every 15 minutes and on the branch lines on a schedule of every 30 minutes; that the cars shall be run continuously from 5:30 a. m. until 12 p. m.; that a guard rail shall be placed along the line where it is parallel with Pennsylvania avenue or where the board of public service may direct; that incandescent lights be placed along the route at every fourth pole and at all crossings.

All this done Dr. Marshall was satisfied and made a motion that the ordinance be placed on its second reading. This motion carried and Mr. Bullock made a motion that it be placed on its third reading and final passage. It also carried.

When the ordinance authorizing the People's Light & Power company to erect poles and all other necessary supports for the wiring or heating,

NEW RAILROAD

Col. Frease Ordered to Get in Readiness to Build Canton-East Liverpool Line.

Cleveland, March 12.—Captain Harry Frease, of Canton, announced yesterday, following a trip to Baltimore, that he has been instructed to purchase the right of way and get everything in readiness for the construction of the Canton-East Liverpool railway. Mr. Frease has been the moving spirit in this road, and while at Baltimore held a conference with B. & O. officials. The connecting link will be built by the B. & O. company and the Pennsylvania company will use it for freight traffic from a point along the Cleveland & Pittsburg division, either at Bayard or East Rochester. The railroad will connect with the C. & P. at Smith's Ferry.

This line will give the B. & O. a short line between Pittsburg and Chicago by way of Warwick. Canton and East Liverpool parties promoted the branch and secured valuable rights of way. The balance of rights will be secured in the near future.

Negotiations were opened with the B. & O. a year ago and that company will push the work during this spring and summer. The road will give Canton a trunk line east and west and add to her railroad facilities considerably.

A SPLENDID OFFER.

The News Review, in its issue of next Saturday, will inaugurate a voting contest which it will be worth while for representatives of organized labor of East Liverpool and vicinity to enter.

Briefly summarized the offer is this: To the person, male or female, receiving the highest number of votes on coupons cut from the News Review, A FREE TRIP TO EUROPE AND RETURN. To the person receiving the second highest number of votes, A TRIP UP THE GREAT LAKES OR TO SOME ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORT AT THE EXPENSE OF THE NEWS REVIEW.

No offer approaching this in liberality was ever before made by a newspaper in East Liverpool. The contest will be open to all representatives of organized labor in good standing, and men and women, boys and girls may vote. Rules and conditions of the contest will be published in full, along with the first coupon.

THE MYSTERY IS NOW SOLVED

Headless Man Found on the Railroad a Month Ago Was Stephen Wallace.

Two Relatives, One a Brother, Came Here Today And Identified the Dead Man From the Effects and Clothing Left.

The headless body found on the railroad track in the West End during the early hours of Wenesday morning, February 11, which lay for four days without identification in the undertaking establishment of C. N. Miller, and which was later interred in the potters' field at Spring Grove cemetery, was identified this afternoon by Jesse Wallace, of Monaca, and Harry Wallace, of Industry.

These gentlemen by an examination of the clothing found near the place where the body was mangled, pronounced the dead man Stephen Wallace, who was about 26 years of age and who was born and reared on a farm a few miles back in the country from Monaca, Beaver county, Pa. They were positive in their identification and steps will be taken by them to have the body removed to the family burial ground in North Branch cemetery.

Jesse Wallace says the dead man was his brother and a cousin to Harry Wallace. The last seen of Stephen was by the latter, who had a short conversation with him in Pittsburg a few days after Christmas. Harry was working on the towboat D. B. Wood when Stephen unexpectedly appeared, and was well dressed. He had not been seen for several months by any of his relatives and in explanation of his absence stated that he had been doing as he always had done, following the life of a hobo. However, he had worked a few months on the river, the only occupation he had ever followed, and had in his possession over $300.

Harry invited him to make the trip on the boat with him, but Stephen stated that he had too much money. A few hours later he returned to the boat with his grip and said that he would return later to go out on the trip. He never returned.

The clothes that he wore the last time he was seen by his cousin were the same found in the grip on the railroad track.

The two gentlemen arrived in the city this afternoon and applied at the mayor's office to get any information possible in regard to the disposition made of the body. They said that a letter written by Mrs. Miller to Dr. Scroggs, of Beaver, and given them an idea that the body might be that of their relative. Mayor Davidson turned them over to the care of Officer Aufderheide, and they were taken to Miller's, but were unable to get any information of value there. The clothes had been left at a saloon on Franklin street. When taken there the cousin at once recognized the suit, both by color and a slit in the left trouser's leg which, he said, was there when he last saw the clothes.

Although confident that they had made the identification complete they wanted to be certain and then went to the fire station, where Officer Woods had several of the articles found on the man, and they were also identified. One of them was a knife, another a comb and a pair of gloves. A day book containing the name of a man whose address was Congo was also recognized by Jesse Wallace. He said that last summer he was working

He Has a Private Graveyard and a Record to Match That of a Dime Novel Hero.

ELOPED WITH MOTHER OF SEVEN CHILDREN

If the allegations made by James Calfee, of Pulaski City, Va., be true there is now a desperado roaming the streets of the city, one who owns a private burial ground for the interment of those who cross his path or in any manner provoke him. The number of men that he has sent to the happy hunting ground can only be guessed at. For years he has been the terror of the mountainous district in which he was reared, and should he strive to maintain his record in East Liverpool the quietude prevailing for so long will surely come to an abrupt end.

It was with the hope of recovering his wife who deserted him several months ago and came to this city with the wild mountaineer that Calfee imparted the intelligence of the man's location. In a letter he states that he and his wife lived for years in the unsettled regions of Virginia and that to them were born seven children. The wife's affections were won by the desperate man, and from that time on their home was one of turmoil. Many hand-to-hand encounters resulted over the affair, and as a climax to one of these fights the bad man shot a cow, dog and a boy, all belonging to Calfee, and also, after stealthily approaching the house, fired through a window at the latter, narrowly missing him.

The trouble around the little home finally assumed such proportions that the wife and her illegitimate lover decided to abandon the spot, and, taking the entire family of children, ran away to a rudely constructed log cabin, situated in a dense forest 12 miles from other settlers. In this cabin they lived for a while, but very destitute, and one day not long ago the man, woman and one of the children, a young girl, deserted the remaining six, leaving them to starve in the cabin and came to East Liverpool.

After the trio had been gone a few days, the husband, in making a search for his family, found the six little ones huddled together in a pitiable condition at the cabin. Calfee learned of their coming to this city and has applied to the police of Pulaski City for aid in securing the return of his wife, but thought it best to ascertain something definite regarding their location before sending officers on the mission. He thinks that the woman is working in a local restaurant and that the man is living with her. He states that a more desperate man never lived and that the lives of any community are in danger when he is around.

JOHN ALLISON 'AGAIN IN JAIL

BAD RECORD MADE WORSE

Summer will be fading when John Allison, the notorious horse and chicken thief, roams the streets of this city again a free man. He was arrested last night by Officers Dawson and McDermott on a serious charge. Pleading guilty this morning before the mayor, he was fined $50 and costs, which, in default of payment, will insure his incarceration in the Canton workhouse for almost six months.

John was drunk when taken in charge by the officers but it was not for that offense alone that he was escorted to the city jail. Two little boys made information against him to the police stating that he had enticed them into Diamond alley and attempted a most despicable act. They became much frightened and after a struggle succeeded in breaking away from the depraved man. He acknowledged at his hearing that he was drunk but pleaded ignorance of any other offense and offered a pathetic appeal for a light sentence.

He said that he had tried to act like a man since his release from the county jail where he spent most of last summer unler suspicion of stealing a horse from East End parties, but that yesterday, having an attack of rheumatism, he concluded to take a drink of whisky, having heard that the spirits were good for the malady. One drink tasted like another one and he finally lost all control of himself. However, he was on his way home when apprehended. It was his intention to go there and sober up. For that purpose he had bought two half pints and had them with him at the time of arrest. With longing eyes he stared at the two bottles on the mayor's desk when arraigned. After he had received the long sentence he said:

"That is an awful long time for me to be locked up. I am terribly unlucky. There is mighty little of next summer that I will see. Say now, as I won't get any more to drink for so long and as I have got a terrible headache, can't I have a little drink "

He was allowed a nip and went back to his cell in a happy mood, notwithstanding the uninviting future staring him in the face.

DUVALL'S CHANCES CONSIDERED GOOD

Senator Archer Predicts That the Steubenville Man Will Be Nominated.

Columbus, March 12.—(Special)—Senators Frank B. Archer, of Bellaire, and Charles C. Connell, of Lisbon, were at the state capital yesterday on business of a personal nature. Senator Archer gave it as his opinion that Hon. M. N. Duvall, of Steubenville, who is a candidate for senator, would get the Jefferson county delegates notwithstanding the efforts of the bosses of the county, who want another candidate, Justin A. Moore, of Steubenville, nominated as the county's choice. The senator met Duvall in Wellsville several days ago and was told by him that his candidacy is progressing finely.

Duvall is one of the senatorial candidates entered in Columbiana county for one of the two nominations to be made. His good record as a legislator and his wide acquaintance in Columbiana county will give him quite an advantage over outside candidates in that county.

MORE MONEY FOR MRS. LAIRD

A Prospect That Other Generous People Will Swell the Contributions.

The subscription fund for Mrs Neil Laird and her children was swelled today by contributions to the amount of $11, all of which were voluntary given. If the people who have given their assistance could realize the distress and misery a few dollars has relieved they would feel that charity is the greatest of the three virtues.

Other than the sorrow over the death of a husband whom she dearly loved, Mrs. Laird has been greatly worried lest her poverty would lose to her the children who are now her sole comfort. The struggle to support them looked hard and she was doubtful of the outcome. It would have made her load of misery complete had they been taken away. But, thanks to a generous people, this latter source of sorrow has been removed by the assistance already rendered. The small sum that will be raised, if properly hoarded, will serve to keep the family circle intact until the older of the children are large enough to help the hardworking mother.

The fund is now as follows:

Previously reported	$83 00
Cash paid News Review	5 00
Cash paid T. J. Duffy	5 00
Cash paid Daily Crisis	1 00

The river is falling slowly with about 17 feet in the channel. It is expected that something near this stage will be maintained for several days, as the Allegheny continues to rise. The Monongahela has been falling very slowly.

The Greenwood will be a little late on her regular trip up tonight and is not expected at the wharf before midnight. The high water in the Muskingum has caused the Lorena to remain over a trip and consequently she will not be up tonight. The Ben Hur for Parkersburg is due down at 8 tonight.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SHOWMAN THE OBJECT OF PURSUIT.

Salem Township Man Says the Professor Left Without Settling Board Bill.

Lisbon, March 12. — (Special)—George W. Long, of Salem township, had himself sworn in as a special officer yesterday by Justice J. M. Dickinson and is now on the trail of a traveling showman giving his name as Prof. Haggerman and his place of residence as Indianapolis. Haggerman is said to be a Christian Science lecturer who has been giving stereopticon entertainments throughout the county and quartering himself on the farmers for a nominal consideration.

Mr. Long says the professor came to his neighborhood in Salem township about the first of March and while giving entertainments in the school house near by, procured board for himself and two horses with Long. Haggerman was at his place with his horses for eleven meals and two nights' lodging, but when he came to go refused to pay his host more than $1.50 in settlement of the entire bill, Mr. Long says.

Long brought an action in Justice Dickinson's court and had an attachment issued against the professor to recover more. Haggerman eluded the local constable at Elkrun and made a jump to the northern part of the county. Learning that he was to show at the Humtown school house between Columbiana and New Waterford, Mr. Long went to that vicinity today to try to find him and serve the attachment. Haggerman is said to have used the same tactics in settling for his board in other places where he had stopped.

Men who advertise can draw their own conclusions as to where advertising is most profitable.

FATALLY CRUSHED BENEATH A LOG

Young Man Near Hookstown Found Unconscious After Hours of Suffering.

COLLAR BONE FRACTURED

A terrible accident happened to Oscar Rearick, employed at the sawmill on the Nelson farm, near Hookstown, yesterday afternoon, while Rearick was engaged in hauling logs from the woods to the sawmill. The ground over which the team was passing was very uneven, and Rearick had his arm on the log holding it steady, when the chain fastening it in some manner became loosened.

The log fell heavily across the unfortunate man's breast, breaking his collar bone and injuring him internally. The man had been under the log for quite a time, the team did not stop but went on to the sawmill, where the absence of the driver was then noticed.

The men at the mill, knowing something was wrong hurried back and extricated Rearick, who was unconscious from his awful position and carried him to the nearby house of George Allison and summoned a physician. The extent of his injuries are not known, but it is thought he cannot recover.

Rearick is 23 years of age and unmarried. His home is at Bolivar, O. The young man is well known in Chester.

News and Notes About The Potteries

WHITE HOUSE TREASURES.

Quite a valuable bric-a-brac collection has accumulated at the White House, which possesses, aside from the intrinsic value of the works of art, the peculiar distinction of being absolutely without its counterpart. Gifts have from time to time been made to the respective incumbents of the presidency, and each president, upon retiring from office, has left these tokens of appreciation behind him in the historic house. There are vases, plates and other articles that are purely ornamental, that have been presented by kings and rulers, and which have no duplicates.

TWELVE KILNS TO START WITH.

The Bell Pottery company is rushing work on its new pottery in Columbus and expects to have it in operation about the middle of the summer. The clay shops will soon be under roof and the foundations are completed for the other buildings. Twelve kilns are to be erected and as many more will be added soon after the plant starts, according to Manager Rose, who represents the company. The tract on which the pottery stands contains 140 acres, which will be subdivided into lots and put on the market, and on which homes will be erected by the employes.

A TENNESSEE PLANT.

The Harley Pottery company, of Nashville, Tenn., has been incorporated under the laws of the state of Tennessee, with a capital stock of $10,000. The concern will erect a new stoneware plant at once and work will be started on the same as soon as the plants can be got together. The works will have a capacity of two kilns.

TWO-KILN PLANT.

The Atwater Stoneware company, the new concern which will erect a two-kiln stoneware factory at Atwater, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000, and has elected Geo. B. Gelhart, president, and E. S. Goodman, secretary and treasurer. The concern will begin operations at once.

ILL OF FEVER.

WORKING AT THOMPSON'S.

AMONG THE WORKMEN.

Clifford Fox is here from Youngstown visiting friends.

John Sladen has taken a job of handle maker at the Union.

The clay hands at the William Brunt were off yesterday, owing to a break in the pug mill.

KANSAS CITY TEAMSTERS OUT.

Drivers Use Force in Efforts to Hinder Traffic—Woman Drives Team.

Kansas City, Mo., March 12.—Violence entered into the strike of 211 drivers, employed by the 14 transfer companies, who went out for an increase in wages and recognition of their union. Perhaps half a hundred men were employed during the day to take the places of the strikers, though but little work was accomplished by them. Strikers and their sympathizers gathered in large numbers at several points in the west bottoms and held up wagons driven by non-union men. At the Burlington freight depot the police were forced to draw their revolvers to disperse a crowd that had cut the traces of teams hitched to two loaded wagons.

At another point George B. Evans, an employe of the American Express company, in attempting to disperse a crowd that was throwing stones at a driver, fired a shot into the ground. N. N. Latin, a striker, interfered, and made a move to draw a knife, when both men were arrested. Mrs. Evans, wife of the man arrested, struck with a whip the leaders of a crowd that interfered with the course of a wagon on which she was riding. Later Mrs. Evans took charge of a wagon belonging to the Swofford Dry Goods company and, unaided, drove the team through the crowd. Her progress was interrupted. In Mulberry street a crowd blockaded the thoroughfare and threw stones at the non-union drivers. Much excitement prevailed and the police were kept busy.

COMPERS OPPOSES LEWIS' BILL

Compulsory Labor Will Make Outlaws of Peaceful and Law-Abiding Citizens.

Albany, N. Y., March 12.—President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, appeared before the senate committee on judiciary to oppose Senator Lewis' bill providing for so-called compulsory arbitration of difficulties between public service corporations and their employes. Mr. Gompers said:

"If you enact this principle into the legislation of this state and make labor compulsory, even while waiting for the decision of the tribunal or in accordance with the award of that tribunal, you will simply make outlaws of peaceful and law-abiding citizens. If you outlaw strikes you will simply give place to the harsher measures—you cannot legislate out of existence the right of men to combine and to quit work if need be for the betterment of their condition."

Police Interrupt Students' Fun.

Lafayette, Ind., March 12.—The fiercest fought battle in the history of Purdue class fights occurred here, when 500 freshmen bombarded with stones and clubs Columbian hall, where the sophomores were in session at their annual banquet. They stormed the stairs and succeded in temporarily breaking up the gathering. This was not accomplished until about 20 of the attacking freshmen were more or less hurt. A riot call was sent, but the score of police who responded were unable to handle the rioting students. Not until the city fire department was called and two streams of water were brought into play did the freshmen disperse. A patrol wagon full of the ringleaders were arrested. All were subsequently released, except H. L. Harmon. Most of the students' injuries were received at the hands of the police, who charged the crowd, using their clubs.

Damaged by Fire and Water.

Cleveland, March 12.—Fire and water did damage estimated at $100,000 to the works of the Ajax Manufacturing company. Much of the loss is to valuable machinery and patterns by water.

Fall Results in Death.

New York, March 12.—J. Hobart Herrick, former president of the produce exchange, who fell two and a half stories as he was stricken with apoplexy in the Union League club, died from the effects of his injuries. Mr. Herrick fell over the railing of the staircase.

TWENTY MILLIONS FOR NEW TRACKS

600 MILES OF NEW ROAD

Among the Extensions Contemplated. The Forest City to Be Connected By Trolley With Buffalo And Other Cities East And West.

Cleveland, March 12.—The electric railway syndicates of Cleveland are preparing to construct 600 miles of new track the coming season at a cost of $20,000,000. Cleveland is the acknowledged center of the electric railway industry of the United States.

Cleveland financiers and trolley railway men are preparing for their most active season. Contracts for labor are being made every day, and with the first approach of settled weather the construction of about 60 miles of track will begin.

The greatest difficulty that will probably be experienced during the ensuing season will not be to obtain money, but in obtaining labor and material. Never before in the history of the country was there such a demand for labor as there is today. The average wages for laborers has risen from 90 cents a day, where it was during the panic of 1893, to as high as $1.90. In the electric railway field, if a man has had experience in rail road building, he is paid even higher wages, and men at $2.25 and $2.50 a day are in demand.

The scarcity of steel rails is an old story. Material of this description ordered last year in some instances has not been delivered as yet.

"Where it is possible," said F. T. Pomeroy, of the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum syndicate yesterday, "we order our rails a year in advance, and designate the time of delivery several months ahead of the time we will need the material."

There are a half dozen or more big street railway syndicates in Cleveland and innumerable smaller ones. The largest of these are the Everett-Moore syndicate, the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum syndicate, and the Cleveland Electric syndicate. Then there is a syndicate which operates the Toledo & Western electric lines, the Holcomb & Lattimer syndicate, which operates in a number of localities, and syndicates which are operating in Texas, Kansas, Missouri, New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan.

Work on the Mansfield & Ashland electric line will be started immediately. This will connect Mansfield and Ashland with the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum railway system. At the same time a large force of men will be put to work on the Western Ohio Traction company's extensions. It is the purpose of the Pomeroy-Mandelbaum syndicate to push the work on the construction of a stretch of track from Sidney to Findlay immediately. With the completion of this 30 miles there will be a complete chain of electric railways from Toledo to Cincinnati. It is expected the line will be completed in October. Simultaneously with this project will be started the building of a new electric railway from Findlay to Toledo by way of Fostoria and of a new line from Piqua to Dayton. In each of the two cases last mentioned the line will parallel railways which have been in existence for some time.

Within the next 30 days work on the extension from Medina to Wooster of the Cleveland & Southwestern railway will be started. The extension will be in operation before the season closes next fall. It will take in Chippewa Lake, and it is the purpose of the syndicate to run excursions to that point as soon as the track has been completed that far.

East of the city the Everett-Moore syndicate in conjunction with other electric railway syndicates will fill in the gaps between Buffalo and Cleveland, making a complete railroad between Buffalo and Toledo. J. W. Holcomb and others interested in this project are on the ground at present making arrangements for work to start just as soon as the weather permits.

It is the intention of the East Ohio Traction company to make extensive repairs during the coming season, and several extensions will be built. In all probability the gap between the Mahoning Valley railway and the Chagrin Falls railway will be filled, and the project of connecting Pittsburg with Cleveland by electric line realized.

In Cleveland great improvements are being planned by the two city electric railways. Extensions will be made tracks relaid, new rolling stock purchased, and other improvements carried on at a total cost of over $2,000,000.

The Toledo & Western Traction company will also expand. Electric railway people are looking to the members of this syndicate to fill the gaps between Cleveland and Chicago. The project is not so great as one would suppose at first glance, but is one which will require the greater portion of one year to complete.

Electric railway men of the city are planning great things. Their planning is along conservative lines, and extensions will be pushed forward with the utmost caution. Should their expectations be realized, the first day of next January will see Cleveland in direct connection by electric line with Buffalo, Pittsburg, Chicago, Toledo, Cincinnati, Canton and Youngstown.

WEARY TRAMP OVER THE SNOW.

Vessel Masters Walk Four Days to Reach Railroad—Herring Fleet Frozen in the Ice.

St. Johns, N. F., March 12.—Norman Ross and Frank Carter, masters of two vessels of the American herring fleet, which is frozen in the ice floes in the Bay of Islands, arrived here after having trudged 96 miles across the snow fields in the interior. They were four days on the march and were accompanied by three other travelers and two guides, who dragged a sled with their stock of provisions. They reached the railroad on the morning of the fifth day, footsore and weary. They had to adopt this expedient to return to Gloucester, Mass.

The travelers report that there are immense snow drifts in the interior and that the traffic on the western division of the railway has been abandoned for the past month, not a wheel moving. It is also difficult to clear the track, owing to the trouble of pushing forward supplies for the working parties.

WAS WITH ANOTHER WOMAN.

When Wife Came Upon Them Husband Shoots Her and Then Turns Weapon on Himself.

Urbana, O., March 12.—Joseph H Gibbs and his wife were found by two young boys, lying dead in their own blood in the main street of St. Paris. Gibbs started out early in the evening with the wife of Jim Shehee, a saloonkeeper. While Gibbs and his companion were passing by the village church, Mrs. Gibbs came upon them. Gibbs drew a revolver and shot his wife, killing her instantly, and it is now believed that he tried to kill the Shehee woman. She ran away screaming and Gibbs turned the gun on himself with fatal results.

Had His Little Joke and Suicided.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 12.—After sitting in a window of a fashionable apartment house and taking pot shots at the people passing in James street below, Henry C. Friend held a party of policemen at bay for an hour with a big revolver. Then forcing the janitor to roll cigarettes, Friend played the piano with his left hand and held the gun in his right. Soon thereafter Friend turned on the piano stool, placed the revolver to his breast, and sent a bullet through his heart. He was 26 years old and son of the late George S. Friend, once a prominent merchant.

Mohawk Valley Flooded.

Fonda, N. Y., March 12.—Heavy rains have caused the Mohawk river to overflow and flood portions of the valley. Much damage to property is reported. Homes have been flooded and families compelled to seek places of safety. Many factories have shut down. The Central and West Shore railroads are suffering from landslides. Hundreds of persons employed in shops in the various towns of the valley have been thrown out of employment.

Wireless System Will Be Used.

New York, March 12.—Preliminary tests of the wireless telegraph system between the harbor forts were made under the direction of Lieutenant Colonel Dunwoody, signal officer United States army, and in future the wireless system will be used regularly for communicating between Fort Wadsworth, on Staten island, and Fort Hancock, at Sandy Hook, across about 15 miles of the lower bay.

EAST END

They Hail With Satisfaction the Prospect of a New Street Car Line.

The majority of the residents of the East End were highly gratified over the action of the council last night in granting the franchise to the new street car line. Many are of the opinion that the building of the new line will result in the construction of a large number of new dwellings, which otherwise would not be built for some time to come. A number of houses will be erected in the Englewood addition in case the labor question does not interfere too much with the plans of the parties who intend building them.

A great many of the people are of the opinion that the opposition line will have the desired effect of necessary improvements being made to the rolling stock and tracks of the present line, and that better service will result from all sources.

Funeral of W. A. Finley.

The funeral of William A. Finley was well attended this morning, a number of out-of-town friends being in attendance. The Sons of Veterans were present in a body. BUSHEL OF LETTERS AND A RIFLED POUCH

Mail Bag Robbery at Cleveland Like That Which Took Place Here.

Cleveland, March 12.—A canvas mail pouch and a bushel of opened letters, found in the furnace of the Central armory, may afford clews to a mail robbery. The bag and its contents were turned over to Postmaster Dewstoe.

The find was made by workmen engaged in the work of arranging for the forestry, fish and game show. The building being cold yesterday morning, they decided to build a fire in the furnace and the pouch was found in the fire box.

Postoffice Inspector Owen was immediately apprised of the discovery and commenced an investigation. According to the report, the pouch came west from Pittsburg, via the C. & P. railroad, February 24. Inasmuch as the bag was at no time in the hands of the city postoffice attaches, it is almost certain that it was stolen from a truck at the union depot.

Most of the letters are opened, but practically all of them are in such shape as to be sent on to their destination. Those that cannot be forwarded will be sent back to their writers. It is impossible to tell how much money was removed.

BITUMINOUS MINERS CONVENE.

Session Taken Up With the Discussion of Resolutions—Co-Operative Stores to Be Established.

Altoona, Pa., March 12.—The morning session of the bituminous miners' convention was occupied in the discussion of resolutions. Mr. Rice proposed to abolish the examination of mine foremen, the certificates, he said, being more of a protection to the operator than to the miner. Several speakers advocated the passage by the state legislature of the employes' liability act.

The following resolutions were adopted: That miners shall be informed each evening whether or not there will be work next day; that no limit be placed on mine cars; petitions the state legislature to enact a law similar to the law now in force in the anthracite region, which provides that mine inspectors be elected by a popular vote.

It was decided not to admit boys under 16 to the union rooms, as they have been known to give away the pass word. The recommendation of the secretary-treasurer to establish co-operative stores was adopted.

Thompson, Columbus, O. Canton, O., was chosen for the convention of 1905.

Advocates Trade Combination.

Paris, March 12.—Speaking at a meeting of the association of French Industry and Agriculture, former Premier Meline said he thought there were some indications of a termination of the long European industrial crisis, which had been due to overproduction, the fall in the price of silver, the American trusts, the German cartels and other causes. He declared that if the American trusts continued their operations the European nations would be compelled to take defensive measures against them, and he advocated as a remedy the formation of small trade combinations like those which served to unite German industry and the permanent establishment of French business abroad on German lines.

Railroad Machinists Strike.

Kansas City, Mo., March 12.—Two hundred machinists and machinists' helpers in the shops of the Kansas City Southern Railroad company at Pittsburg, Kan., struck for an increase in wages. President Knott said that the company's superintendent at Pittsburg received the demand for an increase of wages and was given only three hours in which to answer the demand. Before he could communicate with the officers of the road the strike was declared. The machinists demand 34 cents an hour and the machinists' helpers 20 cents an hour.

LEVEES ARE WATCHED

CONVICTS WILL BE PUT TO WORK

Every Mile of Levee Closely Guarded. Higher Water Expected and Occupants of Lowland Glad to Escape With Their Lives.

Memphis, Tenn., March 12.—A telegram was received from Caruthersville, Mo., saying that the caving of the river bank in front of the first levee has necessitated its abandonment and that the second levee or loop is now relied upon alone. The second levee will stand a further rise of five feet if no further caving of the river bank shall occur.

The river registers 35.4 and is rising. This is an advance of only .2 since morning. The weather bureau says the stage at Memphis will reach 38 feet by Sunday and that a stage of 39 feet should be prepared for, as such a stage seems assured.

Reports from Mississippi county, Ark., say a large area behind the levees is flooded by water, which has seeped through and under the embankments. The report says this flooded area extends back seven miles from the embankment and that it practically has been abandoned by all families living in the territory.

Natchez, Miss., March 12.—A report reached here that the Texas Pacific railroad embankment at Bougre had broken, but could not be verified. Officers on the mail steamer Betsy Ann are authority for the statement that frame buildings in the lowlands have been washed away. The occupants were glad to escape with their lives. Deer, bears and other animals have been driven to highlands and are being slaughtered in large numbers. The weather is threatening. The river gauge is 46.8, being 2.5 above the danger line, and rising. Every mile of levee on both sides of the river is being patrolled and closely guarded.

Vicksburg, Miss., March 12.—At a conference of levee engineers and freight officials of the Valley road the levee men urged the railroad men to give a big shipment of sacks and other materials the right of way from New Orleans. This material is needed to strengthen weak places in the embankments along the Louisiana side in the parishes of Concordia, Tensas and East Carroll. Two United States snag boats have been placed at the disposal of the levee officials for patrol duty. The water is rising steadily here at the rate of nearly half a foot in 24 hours.

Orange, Tex., March 12.—There was no improvement in the flood situation, but the levee and flood gates which have been constructed render less the chance of the town being inundated. Reports from the upper portion of the Sabine are that there has been a very heavy loss in cattle on both the Texas and Louisiana shores. The whole country is under water.

Jacksonville, Miss., March 12.—The board of control ordered all available convicts to be placed at the disposal of the Yazoo, Miss., levee board. The levees are still three feet above the water, but the danger is great, as large volumes of water are expected Saturday. Pearl river continues to rise and has spread over the sections adjacent to Jackson.

Paducah, Ky., March 12.—The gauge is 45.7 and rising. Many thousands of acres of wheat are ruined by the floods. It is estimated that 175,000 ties are in danger and cannot be loaded, as negroes refuse to work because they have to wade in water to handle them.

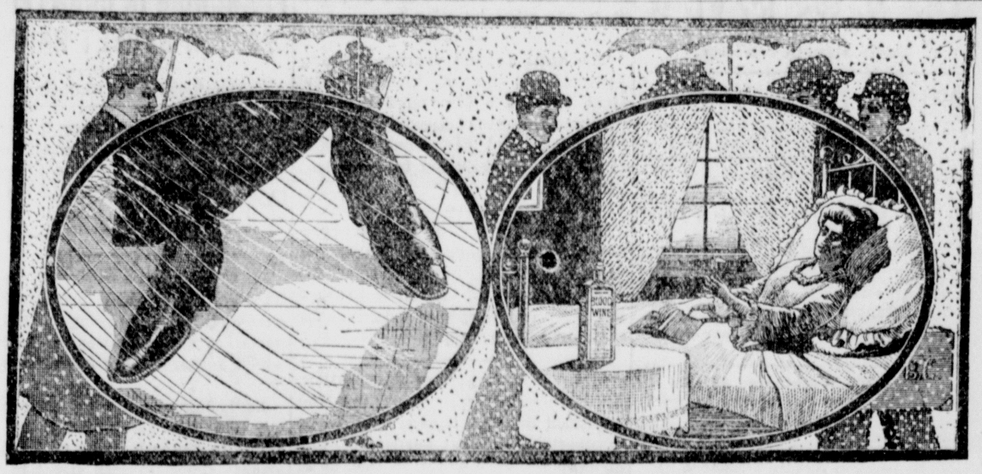

Stockholders Ask for Accounting.

Lima, O., March 12.—Seven stockholders of the Union Oil, Gas and Refining company, residents of Dubuque, Hampton and Pringham, Ia., have brought action against the directors of that company asking for an accounting, an injunction and the appointment of a receiver to wind up its affairs. The Union company was organized by Jackson B. and H. H. Adkins, with others, in December, 1901, and has floated $3,500,000 of stock throughout the United States. The plaintiffs own 60,000 shares and have combined with others, making a total stockholding of 250,000 shares.

Counterfeiter Arrested.

Chicago, March 12.—Officials of the United States secret service have arrested Frank Davis, who is said to have made and circulated 12,000 counterfeit dollars in the last year. He made the coins of tin and glass and plated them with silver. Davis is said to have been one of the gang, but the others eluded the detectives.

Blood Wine Cures Grip, Colds and Consumption

It is almost an absolute certainty that people who guard against the diseases of winter by the prompt use of "Blood Wine," will not have a cold, a cough, or any of the weakening, harassing and fatal ailments that infest every community through the winter months. "Blood Wine" is the safest protection and the most reliable, because it protects all organs of the body—the throat, lungs, kidneys, stomach, liver and bowels, by making the blood so active, rich, healthy, warmth-creating and strength-giving that the weakness that foreruns disease never comes. It keeps the system in a natural, healthy state. It corrects irregularities, and drives disease out of the body. "Blood Wine" is a remarkable medicine. It is a reliable medicine. It never disappoints. If kept in the house and taken with the first signs of an approaching cold, cough, soreness of the lungs, croup, rheumatism, bodily fatigue, loss of appetite or general weakness, it will give immediate and lasting relief. A bottle for fifty cents will

Peter Berry of Pearl Street, Augusta, Maine, a well-known citizen, whose recovery was common talk, owes his life to "Blood Wine." He says it was AN ASTONISHING RECOVERY and adds that it "was a surprise to my physician; a very bad cold settled on my lungs, causing a most obstinate cough that no medicine could relieve. During several months I suffered untold misery. My lungs growing worse and worse. My physician was baffled and finally told me I would have to go to a warmer climate. I saw 'Blood Wine' advertised and made up my mind to try it. After taking it a few weeks during which time I gained rapidly, I was reported out of danger. I continued to take it and it entirely cured me. Those whom I have since advised to take it agree with me that it is a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Berry's experience has been duplicated by thousands of people who frankly admit that "Blood Wine" saved their lives.

Miss Nettie Clark of 9 Hanson Street, Boston, Mass., TOLD SHE MUST DIE but she didn't. On the other hand, she got well. She had a hard time of it, though, and "Blood Wine" pulled her through. Is it any wonder that she made this statement? "About six years ago I was taken with a very severe cold which settled on my lungs. I bathed my feet in hot water, took hot sweats, quinine and the other ordinary remedies, but nothing would lift it from my lungs. It ran along for some time in spite of my efforts to cure it. I sought all medical aid that money could procure, and all well-known remedies failed to cure me. I was told I had consumption and that I must die. I lost flesh, soon became a hollow-chested, frail woman, with a deep rasping cough. I was plainly going to my grave, when one day in despair I sent to the druggist, Jaynes & Co., for a bottle of 'Blood Wine.' I started on it with little faith, but like a drowning person I gladly clutched at a straw. After taking one bottle I thought I saw an improvement, so I continued—two bottles, three—by this time I was sure I was gaining; four bottles—now it was quite perceptible, and I kept on taking it and kept on gaining until I was entirely well. Today I am healthy and happy, have my flesh back, can eat a good meal and attend to my business. I think without a doubt, notwithstanding there are many good medicines, that 'Blood Wine' is the most far-reaching, penetrating and sure exterminator of germs in the world. I gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

Could anything be stronger than Miss Clark's statement, or could a medicine do more good? These colds do seem to create an awful lot of sickness. Here is another case where a cold almost cost Mrs. C. White of Bath, Me., her life. She, too, found in "Blood Wine" THE MEDICINE THAT CURED. "Last spring I had a bad cold which quickly led into an attack of La Grippe. I was sick some little time, and I was as weak as I could be. I tried several medicines advertised as strengtheners, but did not gain in any way until I started on 'Blood Wine.' The first dose seemed to start the blood like the water down a cataract, which gave me a good appetite. Three bottles was all I took, and they cured me. The cough has entirely left and I have no bad traces of the grip. 'Blood Wine' is a splendid medicine, and no mistake."

Last winter, Mr. A. J. Kelly, one of the leading lawyers of Terre Haute, Ind., caught a bad cold, had the grip, and it left him with rheumatism. He was in a bad condition, but IT WAS "BLOOD WINE" that cured him after he had experimented with everything else. This is what Mr. Kelly says: "I had rheumatism so badly that at times I was unable to go to my office for weeks. After patiently doctoring without relief, I took three bottles of 'Blood Wine' and it entirely cured me. I must say that in my case it worked wonders, simply marvelous. It is the best I ever saw."

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL EAST LIVERPOOL, O.

Country roads are reported in a frightful condition. One needs not to traverse them to know that this is true. He can form a fairly correct idea of what they are like by looking at some of the unpaved streets of East Liverpool. Now is an excellent time to preach the gospel of road reform. Improved highways are needed everywhere. The people of St. Clair township, taking a common-sense view of the matter, are arranging to have a road to this city that cannot be rendered useless by spring and fall rains. Their example might be followed with profit and advantage by every township in the county.

According to reports from Cleveland, the trolley lines which radiate from that city are going to do considerable branching out the coming season. When the East Liverpoool & Youngstown electric line shall have been completed it will not be long until people can ride on electric cars from this city to Cleveland, Buffalo, Toledo, Detroit and other points further east and west. There are many who will then discover that a summer trip by electric cars is a refreshing and enjoyable experience.

Possibly southerners can understand why southern senators are making such a hard fight against the Panama canal, which will be more beneficial to southern than to northern states, but nobody else can explain their motive unless it be that the canal is an administration measure and they are "agin the administration."

The antis are no longer claiming Aguinaldo as one of their number since they have discovered that he proposed to erect a monarchy in the Philippines, and had promised titles of nobility in profusion to his close adherents.

It is no easy task to build or operate electric railroads over and around the hills of East Liverpool. That the city has men bold enough to attempt the difficult job speaks volumes for their enterprising spirit.

There is a surplus of $2,000,000 in the Philippine treasury. Those who predicted that the islands were to be a perpetual financial burden to this government were wrong in this, as in other predictions.

The midnight train from Pittsburg is said to have been known to reach East Liverpool on time, but the passenger who came in on the train when it was not late is yet to be discovered.

The Republican party will have two Democratic parties to fight next year, one of which will be Bryan's. That will make it all the more easy to achieve glorious victory.

The statue of Frederick the Great will not be sent to this country until next year. The feathers of both the American and German eagles are still a little ruffled.

A California bishop is soon to be placed on trial for various alleged offenses, one charge being that he played a game of tennis. He must have played badly.

There is one cause for thankfulness in connection with the present spring weather. It has not yet been of the sort to inspire the spring poets.

Even the senate is at last getting weary of Morgan's talk.

Maple Sugar Crop of the Western Reserve Disappointing Thus Far.

Chagrin Falls, March 12.—Unless weather conditions change the present will be the shortest and most unprofitable maple sugar season ever known on the western reserve. Maple sugar orchards of this region have only been open about ten days; only one good "run" of sap is reported by the producers, and during most of the time since the season opened rain has fallen steadily; there has been no freezing weather which is necessary to start the flow of maple sap again, and unless cold weather comes at once producers will have to turn their pails and quit the business for this year.

Thus far not 25 per cent of the usual yield has been procured in this region.

light and power purposes in the city was introduced, Dr. Marshall stated that he had not had time to investigate the matter and would not vote on it until he had. Council could do nothing with a member opposing, and an adjournment was made.

In selecting the route of the new line Mr. Smith had three different ones under consideration, and not until yesterday afternoon was the following, which appears in the franchise, adopted:

From Jefferson along Sixth street to the Diamond; along Market to Fifth street to Kossuth street or East Fifth street; along Kossuth street to Pennsylvania avenue; along Pennsylvania avenue to Vine street; along Vine street to Ravine street; along Ravine street to Pennsylvania avenue. From this point the route is along the north and south line of Pennsylvania avenue with two crossings over the road to State street, located just this side of the lower school house in the East End. Private right of way is used at this point and the line reaches Maple street.

The route then lies along Maple street to Locust alley, or the alley just north of the C. & P. tracks; along this alley to Virginia avenue, thence to Maple Tree street; to Boyce street; along Boyce street over private right of way to Erie street; thence to Globe street; thence to the east end thereof.

The branch line shall begin at the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Ravine street. From this point the line is as follows: To Thompson avenue, to Lilly street, to Ada street, to Ambrose street, to Riley avenue, to alley between lots 3089 and 3090, along alley to Chester avenue, to Bank street, to Avondale street, to Calcutta road, to the incorporated limits, with an extension along McKinnon avenue to the eastern line thereof.

AMUSEMENT PARK PROPOSED AT SALEM

Salem, March 12.—P. J. Brennan, who a year ago came to this city and invested several thousand dollars in the Salem Driving Park and opened what is now claimed to be the best half mile track in the East Ohio circuit, is again considering another proposition which may be put into effect this coming year should the citizens of Salem show an inclination to help it along.

If encouraged he will give Salem a place of amusement where one can spend a few hours of recreation each day during the summer months if he so desires. Last summer he invested over $30,000 in improving the driving park and he is again willing to spend that much more for an amusement park if the citizens and business men especially will encourage the move. If he attempts to build the park he will use the 24 acres of woodland east of the driving park, which can be transformed into a beautiful recreation ground. He intends to build an artificial lake sufficiently large for boating and bathing. That part of the lake for bathing will be concreted and made of sufficient depth that even children can bathe without the danger of going beyond their depth as was done in Baltimore, Md., when the large artificial lake was constructed in that city.

A fine dancing pavilion would also adorn the grounds and a number of cottages and a place given to all kinds of sports where picnics would be of untold advantage to the city.

BALDNESS DUE TO A SMALL GERM

A Massachusetts Man Puts Forth Several New Ideas About Contagious Diseases.

Boston, March 12.—Ideas about disease, bright as new coins from the mint, were given out by Dr. C. G. Carleton, of Lawrence, in a lecture before the Universalist club last night. "Baldness," the doctor said, "is due to germs, and is contagious. Boils, ringworms, and appendicitis are all contagious. So is pneumonia. Disease is spread by dogs and cats. It comes, sometimes, in even more indirect ways. For instance, immigrants are stung by mosquitoes laden with rare and vicious germs found only in the depths of foreign swamps. Then the victims come to this country and spread the germs in the land of the free.

"Consumption, you know, is caused by germs, and germs alone. Every person's throat and lungs contain consumption germs, but a rundown condition is essential for them to breed. Germs must have soil and environment to thrive."

MRS. PENNELL DIES AT HOSPITAL

Buffalo, N. Y., March 12.—Mrs. Arthur Pennell died at the Sisters of Charity hospital. For hours the surgeons worked over the unconscious form of the injured woman. A faint twitching of the eyelids or murmur of pain were the only signs of returning consciousness perceptible during the 24 hours the injured woman was in the hospital ward. Towards evening a rising temperature and a quickening pulse warned the surgeons that the end was near and word was sent to her brother, who arrived from New York. Before he reached the hospital Mrs. Pennell's pulse ceased to beat. Except for a few incoherent words uttered when she was first taken to the hospital, Mrs. Pennell's lips did not move.

The body of Mr. Pennell was removed from the morgue to an undertaking establishment and prepared for burial. It was decided that the remains of both Mr. and Mrs. Pennell would be taken to Mr. Pennell's former home in Brunswick, Me., for burial.

Mrs. Abbey Y. Pennell, J. Fred Pennell, mother and brother of the dead man, and Harry W. Lamb, a brother of Mrs. Pennell, arrived from New York. They were at once driven to the Sisters' hospital and admitted to the ward where Mrs. Pennell lay unconscious, and stood beside her for 15 minutes. During that time the injured woman did not move. They then left the ward and were taken to the Pennell home on Cleveland avenue. All callers at the Pennell house were denied admission.

At 8 o'clock J. Fred Pennell, Mr. Lamb and Thomas Penney, ex-district attorney and a former partner of Mr. Pennell, went to the Austin building and searched the desk of the dead man. A policeman, who has been on guard ever since the fatal accident occurred, stood by while the search was being made. A number of important documents were found, including a will of recent date. It is not known when the will was drawn up, but it is said to have been within the last year. What the provisions of the will were is not known, as none of the three men who saw it would discuss the matter.

The automobile which carried Mr. Pennell and his wife in the plunge to the bottom of the stone quarry on Kensington avenue was carefully examined. The brakes and levers were given particularly close attention. Experts in the construction and manufacture of automobiles were called in. The result of the examination left no doubt in the minds of any of the men present that Mr. Pennell did everything in his power to regain control of the vehicle when it careened. The brakes were tightly set, the power indicator pointed to "reverse" and the track of the wheels in the soft earth on the ridge between the street pavement and the quarry showed that the wheels were turning backward when the machine sped forward to destruction.

Does Not Believe Suicide Theory.

St. Louis, March 12.—Uninformed of the death at Buffalo of Mrs. Carrie Pennell, his daughter, Winslow M. Lamb started for Buffalo. When the tidings of the death of his son-in-law and the probably fatal injury of his daughter at Buffalo were told to him he almost collapsed. He was told the full particulars and of the rumor that the automobile was designedly steered into the stone quarry.

"I do not believe the suicide theory," Mr. Lamb exclaimed. "I believe that Arthur would have vindicated himself of any connection with the Burdick murder when the time came. My daughter has stood by him in this case, and had he been guilty she would not have done so. I have telegraphed for information as to my daughter's condition, but have received no reply. The legacy my daughter received was not $300,000, as has been stated, but about $143,000."

Mr. Lamb was accompanied to the train by friends and retired immediately. He could not be located until just before the train pulled out of the station, and his friends would not permit him to be aroused and informed of his daughter's death, which occurred earlier in the evening.

WELLSVILLE

Wellsville Woman the Victim of a Brutal Attack Upon the Street.

Particulars have just come to light of a daring assault which occurred Monday evening. The victim was Mrs. J. M. Nelson, whose home is on Main street, near Tenth street. Miss Mackie, who had been at Nelson's for supper that evening, started to go home. The street being very dark and lonely, Mrs. Nelson accompanied her as far as Eighteenth street. As they passed the new house of Mr. Dowling they saw a man in the darkness, but paid no attention, passing on by the house toward the West End.

After they had walked on about three blocks the ladies noticed a man behind them a short distance. This did not frighten them, as they thought he was just returning home from town. When they arrived at Eighteenth street the ladies parted, Miss Mackie going to her home on Nevada street and Mrs. Nelson turned to return home. As she passed Schafer's restaurant she was surprised not to see the man who had been following her. Just as she reached Dowling's new residence she was seized by the throat and would have been choken unmercifully had it not been for the high stiff collar she was wearing. She screamed, and the man, a negro, took to his heels. No one answered her cries, but after she arrived at her home she notified several neighbors of the occurrence and a search was at once instituted, but the man could not be found, nor has he been seen since.

The affair was not reported to the police, but they will no doubt take the matter up at once. The description of the man given by Mrs. Nelson tallies precisely with that given by several young ladies of the city who have been followed in the same manner. If the negro is located he will no doubt be dealt with severely.

FALL OF ATLANTA

Interesting Performance to be Given to Help Soldiers' Monument Fund.

The rehearsals for the "Fall of Atlanta" have been faithfully attended by all who are to take part and each one has his respective lines perfectly committed. Mr. Connell, who is directing the play, has thoroughly drilled the actors in their different parts, and is greatly pleased with the interest all are taking to make the performance a success.

The play is to be given under the auspices of the Sons of Veterans, the proceeds to be used for the erection of a soldiers' monument. If the play itself is not a sufficient inducement to bring a large crowd, then the cause should call forth the liberal support of all. There will be three performances given, this evening, Friday evening and Saturday evening.

The following are the local people who will take part: G. M. Campbell, George Imbrie, Chas. R. McGregor, Thos. McClure, Richard Methenic, E. R. Cummings, William Morris, Ray Daugherty, Fred Dodge, Thomas Sheets, Jesse Davidson, Chas Hill, Gus Snider, Grace Parke, Helen Bailey Mary Noss and Lilliam Heakin.

DOG POISONERS IN WELLSVILLE

Five Animals, Some of Them Valuable, Found Dead This Morning.

The poisoning of dogs seems to be a fad recently adopted by several Wellsville people. Between Fifth and Sixth streets on Main street five dogs died this morning, all appearing to have received the same kind of poison. Among the dead is Jack, the valuable white bulldog of Edward Bunting. This dog was sent to Mr. Bunting from Boston by his daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Leybourne. C. V. Shoub's little fox dog was another of the poor brutes. The other three dogs as yet have not been claimed.

As far as is known all these dogs were perfectly harmless. An investigation will be made at once. Should the guilty parties be found they may receive rough treatment at the hands of some of the dog owners.

Fought Over a Horse Deal.

A fight occurred yesterday on Main street between Harry Kountz, of Wellsville, and William Smith, a gypsy who camps near Salineville. It arose over Smith having queered a horse deal between his father and Kountz some time ago. The fight had not progressed very long when Officer Davis appeared on the scene and arrested Smith and conveyed him to the city lockup. He was given a hearing before Mayor Fogo and fined the usual amount, $4.60, and ordered to leave town at once.

EGGS IN GREAT DEMAND AND PRICES GOING UP

A Jump From 18 to 22 Cents Per Dozen Has Taken Place Since Yesterday.

Already people are beginning to feel the effect of the observance of Lent. During that time there is a great demand for eggs, as meats of any kind are tabooed by the strict observers of that period. The price of eggs has been low for some time, but today it took a sudden jump skyward. Yesterday eggs could be purchased for 17 and 18 cents per dozen. Today it is different and in order to get them it is necessary to pay 22 cents.

The cause of this has been the failure of the packets to bring the quantity of eggs ordered by the local dealers. In fact, it seems that the boats brought less than the regular supply owing to the increase in the demand for eggs everywhere. Dealers who had ordered twenty cases received seven or eight. Just how long the egg famine will last is hard to tell. An extra effort will be made to secure a big supply to accommodate the demand.

Cards And Dancing.

A most enjoyable social event was the party given last evening by Miss Mayme Vincent, of Pleasant street, for about 20 of her young friends Cards and dancing were the chief amusements. Miss Helen Hales and Fred Howard excelled at the game and were awarded the prizes. Refreshments were served.

Court Will Meet Oftener.

A law was passed at the last session of the legislature that will assist in the disposition of the accumulated legal cases of the district. The circuit court will meet every three months instead of four. The dates set for the convening of court will be the fourth Monday in January and the second Mondays in May, July and November. The law does not go into effect until 1905.

Postoffice Business Better.

The report for the last quarter of the Chester postoffice, sent to Washington, showed a decided increase in the amount of mail matter handled, as well as largely increased receipts. The receipts from registered letters alone amounted to $227. This increases can be accounted for from the fact of the large amount of money sent to Europe by the foreigners employed about the mill.

Leased for Oil Drilling.

O. W. Harvey has leased his farm of 114 acres, back of Rock Springs park, to Murray & Miller, of New Cumberland. A clause in the lease binds the firm to drill in a well inside of three months, and operations will be commenced at once.

BE YOUR OWN JUDGE

Mi-o-na, the remarkable flesh-forming food and cure for dyspepsia, has won fame by the unusual way in which it is sold. It is the only remedy offered for the cure of dyspepsia which costs the user absolutely nothing unless it cures.

Will Reed, the popular druggist, is selling a great many packages of Mi-o-na and with every box is given his personal guarantee to refund the money if Mi-o-na does not give satisfaction, you to be your own judge as to whether the remedy helps or not.

Mi-o-na is an unusual combination, it is a flesh-forming food, combined with agents that regulate the digestive organs and remove irritation, congestion and inflammation from the stomach, liver and intestines. It enables those organs to extract from the food all that goes to make good, rich blood, firm muscle, steady nerves and a sound body. It does not contain any pepsin, pancreatin or other drugs that never effect a cure and rarely give even temporary relief.

Mi-o-na puts the digestive system into proper working order, gives health, strength and good flesh, and is the only natural cure for indigestion. Even in chronic cases, where life is one long drawn-out pain, this remedy will effect a cure. It is the simplest and most reliable of all remedies. Just one small tablet before or after meals and you can eat a hearty meal with no distress.

If Mi-o-na does not do all that is claimed for it, Druggist Will Reed will cheerfully return your money.

AN AUTOMOBILE FIRE ENGINE.

Oil is the fuel employed by this automobile fire engine and the steam it generates is used alike for the propulsion of the machine and for pumping the water through the hose. This particular engine is the invention of an Englishman, who has succeeded in having it adopted by the London fire brigade. It is said that Chicago will shortly experiment with a couple of these machines. If they should do all that is claimed for them, it may not be many years before horses as an adjunct of a fire department will be things of the past. These machines have under rather unfavorable conditions attained a speed in excess of fifteen miles an hour.

The ARIZONA KICKER

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

It is remarked in a St. Louis paper that the game of poker would never have been known in this town but for our efforts. We reply that it was here and in full swing when we arrived, and the only part we have played in the matter has been a losing one. We have never had an ace full that some one else hadn't fours to beat us.

We do not know the name of the man who waylaid us last Tuesday night on Cochise place as we were returning home from Mrs. McGee's high tea, but as he was limping when he disappeared in the darkness we are willing to pay a doctor for digging the bullet out of his leg.

HE WAS LIMPING WHEN HE DISAPPEARED IN THE DARKNESS.

It is stated in a Buffalo paper that we have made four different attempts to assassinate the editor of the other weekly paper published in this town. Here we laugh. It is a well known fact that our esteemed has pegged away at us about three times a week for the last five years, but up to date has not even cut a button from our coat.

We find in a Montana paper the statement that we make a practice of killing at least two Chinamen each month in the year. Sing Lee has been with us for the last five years as pressman and is alive and well today, and all communications on this subject can be addressed to him.

It was reserved for a Detroit newspaper to announce that we stood by and laughed in fiendish glee while a grizzly bear ate up a companion who was hunting with us. We have never hunted the grizzly. We have never seen one, dead or alive, in this territory. In fact, we have not seen a bear of any species, and, as for "fiendish glee," we couldn't come within forty rods of it if we tried ever so hard.

A Baltimore paper gives credence to the report that we shoot men dead in their tracks for refusing to subscribe to our paper. This is an original way of building up a circulation, and we call the attention of our contemporaries to it.

An Ohio editor has learned from a reliable source that we are constantly surrounded by a bodyguard of twelve desperate men and but for that fact we would be lynched within an hour. If that editor saw us strolling around town, with our hands clasped under our coattails, he'd probably invent some other canard.

We bought another mountain the other day, making five that we now own, and if any of our esteemed eastern contemporaries can spare a couple of weeks this winter we will give them no end of sliding down hill on the trail of grizzly bears. We believe we are the only editor in the world owning five mountains and each and all of them wild and untamable.

We proceeded to the general offices of the Giveadam Gulch Stage company the other day and leveled two guns on the president and demanded that our annual pass be renewed. After a bluff or two it was renewed. It always is, but we have to go through the same old programme year after year.

The fact that we now and then take a hand in a game of poker is not considered by the postmaster general to be against our usefulness as postmaster, and the people who are trying to make a handle of it might as well save their breath.

A Tucson paper announces that we have the cheek to aspire to the governorship of Arizona. 'Tis true, and we'll bet a hat that we get there; afterward—the presidency! We are a critter of such aims and ambitions that it makes our hair stand up now and then. M. QUAD.

What He Thought.

Old Gentleman (nearsighted)—Who is that stranger coming up the walk, daughter?

Daughter—Why, that is Reggie, papa! You know I told you he was coming to speak to you today.

Old Gentleman—Ah, yes! I see now. Don't you know, at first I thought it was a man.—Chicago News.

Knew How.

"Old Hunks told you more of his business secrets in five minutes than he has ever told anybody else in five years. How did you worm it out of him?"

"I didn't do any worming at all. I just patted him on the back and let him purr."—Chicago Tribune.

Softer.

"I have no doubt you have heard some stories to my discredit," he said.

"I don't like to put it in that way," she quietly replied.

"How then?" he hopefully asked.

"I have never heard any stories to your credit," said she.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Last Straw.

"Well, what do you want now?" queried old Growells as the insurance solicitor entered his office. "You have bullied me into insuring my life, my store and the title to my real estate. What is there left to insure?"

"I just dropped in," calmly replied the man with the adamantine cheek, "to see if you would like to insure your insurance policies."—Chicago News.

Unreasonable Woman.

"This thermometer," complained the customer, "is no good. I can never tell by it how cold it is."

"Consider, my dear woman," replied the Boston shopkeeper, "the word 'thermometer' is derived from two Greek words meaning 'measure of heat.' The instrument is designed to measure heat, madam, not cold."—Philadelphia Press.

REALM OF SPORTS

BOB'S WIFE BACKS HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Fitzsimmons Bets $5,000 That the Ex-Champion Will Beat Jeffries.

Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons has always been under the belief that her husband was the peer of any pugilist in the world. In only two instances has she been mistaken. They were when the Cornishman went down to defeat at the hands of James J. Jeffries.

Always preferring that Bob should retire from the ring and settle down with his family, she has never failed to give the former champion advice and encouragement when matched to fight. Now, Mrs. Fitzsimmons has assumed a different role. She has placed herself in the position of her husband's backer and urges him on to fight.

This change of feeling was chiefly caused by the attitude of Tommy Ryan, who challenged the Australian to fight at the middleweight limit, and when the latter had expressed his willingness to accept, gave up fighting to become an instructor in a St. Louis athletic club. Subsequently, "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien issued a defi to Bob to battle for the middleweight championship of the world, and for fear that the Quaker may follow in the footsteps of Ryan, Mrs. Fitzsimmons has stepped to the front and invited O'Brien to make good.

As showing her absolute confidence in her husband that he can beat the Philadelphian, in company with Bob, she called on Al. Smith, the well known stakeholder, in New York, and gave him a check, signed by herself, and calling for $5,000, which is put up as a side bet, and will be forfeited if Fitz does not make the weight—158 pounds.

FOUL STRIKE RULE

Bitterly Opposed by the Baseball Fans of the Forest City.

The Cleveland patrons of the American Baseball club are a unit in opposition to the foul strike which has been forced upon the Amercan League by the minor leagues under the leadership of President Powers. They saw it tried last fall, when the All-Americans and Pittsburgs played, then and there registering abhorrence of the rules in tones by no means mild. It is learned that at a meeting of a few "fans" a few nights ago, it was decided to start an endless chain of letters to Ban Johnson protesting against the American League putting the obnoxious rule in force.

The originators of the novel scheme say that they are sure at least 100 letters have gone to Johnson already, and that the plan is but in its infancy, and that they expect that Cleveland patrons of baseball will respond to the number of 1,000 a week. Each man writes to three friends asking each to write a protest to Johnson and to enlist three others in the cause. They argue that the fans are the ones who pay for baseball and make the national game the success it is, and their wishes should be regarded in formulating rules.

SO DECEPTIVE

Many East Liverpool People Fail to Realize the Seriousness.

Backache is so deceptive.

It comes and goes—keeps you guessing.

Learn the cause—then cure it.

Nine times out of ten it comes from the kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Cure every kidney ill from backache to diabetes.

Here's an East Liverpool case to prove it:

Mr. C. S. Hill, of Esther, Pa., carpenter, says: "For a year I suffered from pain across the back, difficulty with the kidney secretions and was naturally anxious to procure some treatment which would check it if not radically cure the trouble. Advised by a friend, I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy and I want East Liverpool people to thoroughly grasp this fact; before I used the entire contents of the box I was cured. To prove that my convictions were laid on solid foundation, I have since purchased for a neighbor of mine three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured him. Now when a preparation which cured me in the condition I was in and also my neighbor, a preparation which is held in such estimation in and around East Liverpool, that an acquaintance of mine advised me through a newspaper statement to obtain it—when that preparation performs exactly what it promises what can be expected—or any resident of East Liverpool suffering from kidney complaint who will not take advantage of his neighbor's experience and profit by his opinions."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Sold by W. & W. Pharmacy.

We thought the ballot was going to be an instrument by which the colored man should become civilized, educated, prosperous, and we imagined that he and the whites of the south were going to live together in harmony and good will.

* * *

But I wish to say, so that we may be humble and enter upon this great task with a proper spirit, that I do not believe that most of us would have done much better than they have done down south if the conditions had been reversed. We cannot plume ourselves on superior virtue. The thing that we need to do is to help the country out of this great difficulty, and in order to do that we need sympathy and comprehension of the problem; we need tenderness toward those who are struggling with it, bitterly, fiercely perhaps sometimes, in the south; we need to know what it means to them, what their hopes and fears are, and we need to remember that the colored man did not come here himself, and we, havi brought him here, are under the highest of all conceivable respo sibility to do for him the very best thing we can.

* * *

We need his labor. Let us do all we can to educate, to develop him; to give him a free opportunity to become the best and highest possible, and at the same time let us deal with the problem so that there may be no bitterness, antagonism; so that there may be no degradation of the white people as they stand face to face with these masses of the black.

Will Get 20 Per Cent.

Attorneys for John J. Ryan & Co., the defunct "get-rich-quick" turf investment company, have come to an agreement with United States Marshal W. L. Morsey whereby the latter will make a settlement with the Ryan creditors on or about March 25. Under the term of the agreement investors will get about 20 per cent, it is expected.

A $10,000 Dog Poisoned.

Floyd Courtwright's $10,000 pointer dog, Hawkeye, died at Coshocton ten minutes after arriving from the Pittsburg bench show, where it had taken four first prizes. An autopsy is said to have shown that the dog was poisoned.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Leech Maskrey will again manage the Warren (Ohio) team. In the old days Leech stuck to Louisville.

Vancouver, B. C., wants Jeffries and Jim Corbett to fight in that city. The Vancouver base ball club has wired both pugilists that it will offer a purse of $25,000, the battle to take place in July.

The Sharon (Pa.) Matinee Driving club has been organized with 24 members. The membership is open to all horse lovers within three miles of Sharon. The half-mile track at the Sharon fair grounds will be repaired and placed in first-class condition.

Last week the announcement was sent out from 'Frisco that Joe Corbett had announced his permanent retirement from base ball. Later dispatches say that he has signed with Los Angeles, of the California league, and will get a salary of $5,000 a season.

If Tommy Ryan keeps his word he will not be seen in the ring after May 1 of the current year. According to a dispatch from Hot Springs the middleweight champion has made a dicker with the Missouri Athletic club of St. Louis to become that organization's boxing instructor.

BEGAN TO FLOAT DOWN THE STREAM

Deputy Sheriff and Attorney Had An Exciting Time in a Flooded Creek.

Steubenville, March 12.—Deputy Sheriff Voorhees and Attorney Ira Blackburn drove to Cross creek on Tuesday to serve injunction papers on the Spruens Oil company, which was enjoined from drilling by the McIntire Oil company, of Mingo. The trip out was made without much difficulty and the papers served on the oil company, but on the return trip the deputy sheriff and attorney had a thrilling experience. Cross creek had reached a flood stage, but believing it could be crossed safely, the horses were driven into the water.

In the middle of the stream the animals began to go down with the current and Blackburn becoming frightened, proceeded to climb towards the top of the buggy, the water being over the seat. Voorhees knew it was a case of either drowning or ducking, so he chose the latter, and kept his seat in the water. He urged the horses through the strong current, and finally their backs began to show up. This was enccuragement and it was not long until the good old mud road was reached. It was a thrilling experience.

Epidemic of Smallpox.

St. Johns, D. W. I., March 12.—Dr. Bridger, who has been commissioned by the authorities of the island of Barbados to investigate the eruptive fever prevailing in the island of Trinidad, reports that it is a widespread and rapidly increasing epidemic of smallpox, and bases his statement on evidence obtained and on observations made. The Trinidad medical board, however, declares that smallpox does not prevail there epidemically and that the eruptive fever referred to is not smallpox.

Killed by Fast Train.

Philadelphia, March 12.—Charles Zeigler, freight agent at Devon station, was struck and instantly killed by the Pennsylvania flyer. Zeigler, whose home is in Parkersburg, had just stepped from a pay train onto the track and was unable to get out of the way of the express.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Self Education Through the Medium of Specially Prepared Articles by Prominent Instructors

. . By . .
WILLIAM H. HINRICHSEN

II.—Civil Government.

The study of civil government is best carried on through means of the ordinary textbooks to be obtained in the bookstores, but in connection with the theoretical work the student should visit the public offices of his city, town, county and state if possible and make such inquiries of the officials as will fix thoroughly in his mind the information gained from his reading.

He should apply himself to learning the following:

First.—The name, the destination and term of office of every public official elected by the people in his township, town, ward, district or precinct, as the case may be.

Second.—The duties of these officers.

Third.—The name and designation of each public official elected by the people in his city and county.

Fourth.—The duties in a general way of each.

Fifth.—The names and duties in general of every state officer elected by the people.

Sixth.—The names of the members of both houses of the legislature for his district and the names of the judges of the courts in his district.

Eighth.—The names and duties of the principal appointive offices in his county and state.

Ninth.—The names of the president, vice president, members of the cabinet, speaker of the house and judges of the supreme court, with the state in which each lives.

It is not such a great task as it may appear, and it should be gone over carefully again and again. Information regarding local officers may be obtained in the offices of the county and city clerks, and that regarding state and national affairs may be found in any political almanac, which may be purchased at a bookstore. Some states issue blue books containing all this information. Obtain one if possible.

Election Laws.

The study of the election laws is the next thing to be taken up. These laws are usually issued in pamphlet form and may be obtained from the county officer having supervision of the elections.

The same officer will furnish information that will make clear any points left dark by the books. And the chairman or other member of your local committee will always furnish you information as to the practical workings of the laws.

You should attend every local election, every primary election and every caucus and should watch carefully how they are carried on. If you get an opportunity to serve as an officer of election, do so. The experience will be valuable to you.

Apply yourself to learning the following and do not desist until all facts are firmly fixed in your mind:

First.—The date fixed by law for each regular election in the territory in which you are entitled to vote.

Second.—The date of registration (if required) for each of these elections and how an elector may be registered.

Third.—The qualifications of a voter.

Fourth.—The marking of the ballot.

Fifth.—The hours of opening and closing the polls.

Sixth.—The rules of the polls.

Seventh.—The rules governing naturalization.

Eighth.—The rules governing primary elections or conventions in each civil division in the territory in whic you vote.

Ninth.—The rules governing election returns.

Tenth.—The forms of nominating certificates where required.

Eleventh.—Eligibility of candidates.

Twelfth.—Rules governing cumulative voting where practiced.

Political Geography.

You may have studied geography very thoroughly at school, and much of what you have learned there will prove useful to you, but you will find much more to learn before you have acquired the information you require in political matters.

You should procure a good map of your city if you live in one or if there is a city in your county. You should also procure a map of your county and one of your state.

If you can find city and county maps showing the civil divisions each contains, they are the best, and maps of the state showing the legislative, congressional and judicial districts or circuits will make your work somewhat easier.

If not, you can mark off the divisions with a pen on ordinary maps, which will serve your purpose.

Where the records of these apportionments are not printed in book form they may be found in the records of the city, county and state offices. They may also be found in any good political almanac, provided it be printed in your state.

You should fix the political geography of your locality firmly in your mind. First, take your voting district or precinct, whether in the city or county. Fix its boundaries firmly in your mind and walk or ride over it until you are thoroughly familiar with its streets or roads, as the case may be.

You should draw a map of it on a convenient scale, noting thereon all objects that attract your attention, such as public buildings, churches, schoolhouses, large factories, etc. If in the country, of course every village should also be noted. Every street, alley, boulevard, avenue, road or cartway should appear. This map should be kept convenient for reference, and it should be studied until its features are fully stamped upon your mind.

In City and Country.

In a large city you should continue your study in this direction until you are well acquainted with the boundaries, the principal streets and the salient landmarks of the ward in which you live and until you have a general knowledge of each ward in the city.

If living in the country, you should, in addition to learning your town, township, voting precinct or district, thoroughly make yourself familiar with the geography of your county.

In all this work you should draw maps for yourself, correct them from time to time and note every new feature that comes under your observation.

Having gained a fair knowledge of the geography of your county, you should extend your study until you are familiar with the location, general appearance on the map and population of each county in the state and the number of the legislative, congressional, judicial and other districts in which it is situated. You should also study the location of each county seat and large city and should get a general idea of all the railroads running into each.

You should extend your studies to cover all the states and territories in a general way, giving attention to population, the relative strength of political parties, area and growth.

You should when through your geographical studies be able to state:

First.—The boundaries of your voting precinct or district.

Second.—Its approximate population.

Third.—The strength of the different political parties at the last national election.

Fourth.—The same concerning your ward, town or township, as the case may be.

Fifth.—The same concerning your city or county or both.

Sixth.—The name of each town, township, village or city in your county, with the approximate population of each and the approximate strength of the political parties in each as shown by the returns of the last national election.

Seventh.—The names of each county in the state, its county seat and other large towns and cities; also the approximate population of each county and the usual majority for the dominant party.

Eighth.—The counties or city wards comprising each legislative, congressional, judicial or other district in the state.

Ninth.—The population of the state and its approximate vote by parties at the last three national elections.

Tenth.—The name, approximate population and area of each state and territory.

Eleventh.—The capital and large cities with the approximate population of each in each state.

Twelfth.—The usual strength of the political parties in each state.

Thirteenth.—The present governor and United States senators of each state.

Fourteenth.—The number of congressmen to which each state is entitled.

All this information will prove almost a necessity in the further worl before the student, not only for hi own use, but to enable him to answer readily questions which will be asked him in his succeeding work.

THE PINKHAM CURES

ATTRACTING GREAT ATTENTION AMONG THINKING WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Stafford, of 243 E. 114th St., N.Y. City, adds her testimony to the hundreds of thousands on Mrs. Pinkham's files.

When Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies were first introduced skeptics all over the country frowned upon their curative claims, but as year after year has rolled by and the little group of women who had been cured by the new discovery has since grown into a vast army of hundreds of thousands, doubts and skepticisms have been swept away as by a mighty flood, until to-day the great good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her other medicines are doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, physicians and thinking people.

Merit alone could win such fame; wise, therefore, is the woman who for a cure relies upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Why can't we come over to your house and play any more?

Because papa gets so mad when we make a little bit of noise.

What makes him that way?

Mamma says it's dyspepsia makes him act so crazy.

That's about the way it strikes the small boy. The dyspeptic has no idea of his own unreasonableness or harshness. Little things are magnified and seem to justify his quick anger.

There's health for the dyspeptic and happiness for the family by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and restores perfect health and strength, by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

"I have taken one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for indigestion and liver complaint," writes Mr. C. M. Wilson, of Yadkin College, Davidson Co., N. C. "Have had no bad spells since I commenced taking your medicine—in fact, have not felt like the same man. Before I took the 'Golden Medical Discovery' I could not eat anything without awful distress, but now I can eat anything I wish without having unpleasant feelings."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse and regulate the bowels.

Rheumatism, Eczema, Hives, Tetter, Scrofula, Erysipelas, etc., are caused by impure blood. Purify the blood, and you have removed the cause, and cured the disease.

To purify the blood you must have perfect digestion on the one hand, that the blood may be supplied with healthy nutrition, and perfect excretion on the other that all the impurities may be thrown off.

Life Plant insures perfect digestion and perfect excretions, because it contains ingredients that perform those functions, acting together in perfect harmony. Life Plant is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism, Eczema, Catarrh, Hives, Tetter, Scrofula, Stomach and Liver troubles—and all forms of blood diseases.

Catarrh.

Mr. F Hurst, Father of Hurst Brothers, Grocers, New Philadelphia, Ohio, says:

A member of my family for six years or more, has had a severe case of Catarrh in the head and throat causing nervous prostration, with so much pain and roaring in head, that the hearing had become materially affected, the stomach deranged and the appetite gone, and with a feeling of prostration and lassitude. Was cured by the use of Life Plant more than a year ago and the trouble has not returned.

The New Arabian Nights

One fine morning he came into the drawing room and began to arrange some music on the top of the piano. Lady Vandeleur, at the other end of the apartment, was speaking somewhat eagerly with her brother, Charlie Pendragon, an elderly young man, much broken with dissipation and very lame of one foot. The private secretary, to whose entrance they paid no regard, could not avoid overhearing a part of their conversation.

"Today or never," said the lady. "Once and for all, it shall be done today."

"Today, if it must be," replied the brother, with a sigh. "But it is a false step, a ruinous step, Clara, and we shall live to repent it dismally."

Lady Vandeleur looked her brother steadily and somewhat strangely in the face.

"You forget," she said. "The man must die at last."

"Upon my word, Clara," said Pendragon, "I believe you are the most heartless rascal in England."

"You men," she returned, "are so coarsely built that you can never appreciate a shade of meaning. You are yourselves rapacious, violent, immodest, careless of distinction, and yet the least thought for the future shocks you in a woman. I have no patience with such stuff. You would despise in a common banker the imbecility that you expect to find in us."

HARRY GAVE HIMSELF UP FOR LOST.

"You are very likely right," replied her brother. "You were always cleverer than I. And, anyway, you know my motto, 'The family before all.'"

"Yes, Charlie," she returned, taking his hand in hers, "I know your motto better than you know it yourself. 'And Clara before the family!' Is not that the second part of it? Indeed you are the best of brothers, and I love you dearly."

Mr. Pendragon got up, looking a little confused by these family endearments.

"I had better not be seen," said he. "I understand my part to a miracle, and I'll keep an eye on the Tame Cat."

"Do," she replied. "He is an abject creature and might ruin all."

She kissed the tips of her fingers to him daintily, and the brother withdrew by the boudoir and the back stair.

"Harry," said Lady Vandeleur, turning toward the secretary as soon as they were alone, "I have a commission for you this morning. But you shall take a cab. I cannot have my secretary freckled."

She spoke the last words with emphasis and a look of half motherly pride that caused great contentment to poor Harry, and he professed himself charmed to find an opportunity of serving her.

"It is another of our great secrets," she went on archly, "and no one must know of it but my secretary and me. Sir Thomas would make the saddest disturbance, and if you only knew how weary I am of these scenes! Oh, Harry, Harry, can you explain to me what makes you men so violent and unjust? But, indeed, I know you cannot. You are the only man in the world who knows nothing of these shameful passions. You are so good, Harry, and so kind! You, at least, can be a woman's friend. And, do you know, I think you make the others more ugly by comparison."

"It is you," said Harry gallantly, "who are so kind to me. You treat me like"—

"Like a mother," interposed Lady Vandeleur. "I try to be a mother to you, or at least," she corrected herself, with a smile, "almost a mother. I am afraid I am too young to be your mother really. Let us say a friend—a dear friend."

She paused long enough to let her words take effect in Harry's sentimental quarters, but not long enough to allow him a reply.

"But all this is beside our purpose," she resumed. "You will find a bandbox in the left hand side of the oak wardrobe. It is underneath the pink slip that I wore on Wednesday with my mechlin. You will take it immediately to this address," and she gave him a paper, "but do not on any account let it out of your hands until you have received a receipt written by myself. Do you understand? Answer, if you please—answer! This is extremely important, and I must ask you to pay some attention."

Harry pacified her by repeating her instructions perfectly, and she was just going to tell him more when General Vandeleur flung into the apartment, scarlet with anger and holding a long and elaborate milliner's bill in his hand.

"Will you look at this, madame?" cried he. "Will you have the goodness to look at this document? I know well enough you married me for my money, and I hope I can make as great allowances as any other man in the service; but, as sure as God made me, I mean to put a period to this disreputable prodigality!"

"Mr. Hartley," said Lady Vandeleur, "I think you understand what you have to do. May I ask you to see to it at once?"

"Stop," said the general, addressing Harry. "One word before you go." And then, turning again to Lady Vandeleur, "What is this precious fellow's errand?" he demanded. "I trust him no further than I do yourself, let me tell you. If he had as much as the rudiments of honesty, he would scorn to stay in this house, and what he does for his wages is a mystery to all the world. What is his errand, madam, and why are you hurrying him away?"

"I supposed you had something to say to me in private," replied the lady.

"You spoke about an errand," insisted the general. "Do not attempt to deceive me in my present state of temper. You certainly spoke about an errand."

"If you insist on making your servants privy to our humiliating dissensions," replied Lady Vandeleur, "perhaps I had better ask Mr. Hartley to sit down. No?" she continued. "Then you may go, Mr. Hartley. I trust you may remember all that you have heard in this room. It may be useful to you."

Harry at once made his escape from the drawing room, and as he ran upstairs he could hear the general's voice upraised in declamation and the thin tones of Lady Vandeleur planting icy repartees at every opening. How cordially he admired the wife! How skillfully she could evade an awkward question! And with what secure effrontery she repeated her instructions under the very guns of the enemy! And, on the other hand, how he detested the husband!

There had been nothing unfamiliar in the morning's events, for he was continually in the habit of serving Lady Vandeleur on secret missions, principally connected with the millinery. There was a skeleton in the house, as he well knew. The bottomless extravagance and the unknown liabilities of the wife had long since swallowed her own fortune and threatened day by day to engulf that of the husband. Once or twice in every year exposure and ruin seemed imminent, and Harry kept trotting round to all sorts of furnishers' shops telling small fibs and paying small advances on the gross amount until another term was tided over, and the lady and her faithful secretary breathed again. For Harry, in a double capacity, was heart and soul upon that side of the war. Not only did he adore Lady Vandeleur and fear and dislike her husband, but he naturally sympathized with the love of finery, and his own single extravagance was at the tailor's.

He found the bandbox where it had been described, arranged his toilet with care and left the house. The sun shone brightly. The distance he had to travel was considerable, and he remembered with dismay that the general's sudden irruption had prevented Lady Vandeleur from giving him money for a cab. On this sultry day there was every chance that his complexion would suffer severely, and to walk through so much of London with a bandbox on his arm was a humiliation almost insupportable to a youth of his character. He paused and took counsel with himself. The Vandeleurs lived in Eaton place. His destination was near Notting Hill. Plainly he might cross the park by keeping well in the open and avoiding populous alleys, and he thanked his stars when he reflected that it was still comparatively early in the day.

Anxious to be rid of his incubus, he walked somewhat faster than his ordinary, and he was already some way through Kensington gardens when in a solitary spot among trees he found himself confronted by the general.

"I beg your pardon, Sir Thomas," observed Harry politely, falling on one side, for the other stood directly in his path.

"Where are you going, sir?" asked the general.

"I am taking a little walk among the trees," replied the lad.

The general struck the bandbox with his cane.

"With that thing?" he cried. "You lie, sir, and you know you lie!"

"Indeed, Sir Thomas," returned Harry, "I am not accustomed to be questioned in so high a key."

"You do not understand your position," said the general. "You are my servant, and a servant of whom I have conceived the most serious suspicions. How do I know but that your box is full of teaspoons?"

"It contains a silk hat belonging to a friend," said Harry.

"Very well," replied General Vandeleur. "Then I want to see your friend's silk hat. I have," he added grimly, "a singular curiosity for hats, and I believe you know me to be somewhat positive."

"I beg your pardon, Sir Thomas, I am exceedingly grieved," Harry apologized, "but indeed this is a private affair."

The general caught him roughly by the shoulder with one hand while he raised his cane in the most menacing manner with the other. Harry gave himself up for lost, but at the same moment heaven vouchsafed him an unexpected defender in the person of Charlie Pendragon, who now strode forward from behind the trees.

"Come, come, general; hold your hand," said he. "This is neither courteous nor manly."

"Aha!" cried the general, wheeling round upon his new antagonist. "Mr. Pendragon! And do you suppose, Mr. Pendragon, that because I have had the misfortune to marry your sister I shall suffer myself to be dogged and thwarted by a discredited and bankrupt libertine like you? My acquaintance with Lady Vandeleur, sir, has taken away all my appetite for the other members of her family."

"And do you fancy, General Vandeleur," retorted Charlie, "that because my sister has had the misfortune to marry you she there and then forfeited her rights and privileges as a lady? I own, sir, that by that action she did as much as anybody could to derogate from her position, but to me she is still a Pendragon. I make it my business to protect her from ungentlemanly outrage, and if you were ten times her husband I would not permit her liberty to be restrained nor her private messengers to be violently arrested."

"How is that, Mr. Hartley?" interrogated the general. "Mr. Pendragon is of my opinion, it appears. He, too, suspects that Lady Vandeleur has something to do with your friend's silk hat."

Charlie saw that he had committed an unpardonable blunder, which he hastened to repair.

"How, sir?" he cried. "I suspect, do you say? I suspect nothing. Only where I find strength abused and a man brutalizing his inferiors I take the liberty to interfere."

As he said these words he made a sign to Harry, which the latter was too dull or too much troubled to understand.

"In what way am I to construe your attitude, sir?" demanded Vandeleur.

"Why, sir, as you please," returned Pendragon.

The general once more raised his cane and made a cut for Charlie's head, but the latter, lame foot and all, evaded the blow with his umbrella, ran in and immediately closed with his formidable adversary.

"Run, Harry; run!" he cried. "Run, you dolt!"

Harry stood petrified for a moment, watching the two men sway together in this fierce embrace; then he turned and took to his heels. When he cast a glance over his shoulder, he saw the general prostrate under Charlie's knee, but still making desperate efforts to reverse the situation, and the gardens seemed to have filled with people, who were running from all directions toward the scene of fight. This spectacle lent the secretary wings, and he did not relax his pace until he had gained the Bayswater road and plunged at random into an unfrequented bystreet.

To see two gentlemen of his acquaintance thus brutally mauling each other was deeply shocking to Harry. He desired to forget the sight; he desired, above all, to put as great a distance as possible between himself and General Vandeleur, and in his earnestness for this he forgot everything about his destination and hurried before him headlong and trembling. When he remembered that Lady Vandeleur was the wife of one and the sister of the other of these gladiators, his heart was touched with sympathy for a woman so distressingly misplaced in life. Even his own situation in the general's household looked hardly so pleasing as usual in the light of these violent transactions.

He had walked some little distance, busied with these meditations, before a slight collision with another passenger reminded him of the bandbox on his arm.

"Heavens!" cried he. "Where was my head, and whither have I wandered?"

in Congo and meeting Stephen one day wrote the address in the book. Speaking of the life of the dead man Jesse Wallace said:

"He was always inclined to roam the country, and was at home but little after he was old enough to take care of himself. He was of a rather surly disposition and at one time was considered insane. He was single and had many peculiarities. It has always been our wish to have all the members of our family buried in our lot at North Branch cemetery, and we will take the body there as soon as we are given the permit."

The body, before being buried in the potters' field, was well embalmed by Mrs. Miller, and it is thought will be in a very good state of preservation when moved.

HARRY SHEETS HEARD FROM

The Man Who Broke Into Furrer's Barber Shop Telephoned, Desiring to Get Back.

Harry Sheets, the barber who has been employed at Fred Furrer's barber shop, is still among the missing. Tuesday night about 10:30 he, it is alleged, cut the glass out of the rear window of the barber shop and, hastily getting his tools, left the shop. Yesterday morning about 10 o'clock he called up Tony Bertele, another employe of the barber shop, and said that he was in Toronto and wanted to know if things could not be arranged for him to come back. He said that he was intoxicated at the time or he would not have done as he did. However, he was informed that he would have to see the proprietor in regard to the matter, and it was thought that his services were no longer needed. He offered to make good any damage he had done, but his offer was not accepted.

It was learned later that he had been in Chester as late as 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and it is supposed that he telephoned from there instead of Toronto, as he said. Since then nothing has been heard from him, and it is supposed that he has left for another part of the country. It is said that the agent of a clothing firm who is selling on the installment plan was taken in by Sheets to the amount of $25, as he had purchased a $30 suit and had only paid $5 down on it before leaving. It is also said that he left other creditors.

FREDERICK-HOWARD

Well Known Young People of the East End Quietly Married Last Evening.

Lewis F. Howard and Miss Luella Frederick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Frederick, of Ohio avenue, were married last evening about 9 o'clock at the Second Presbyterian church parsonage by Rev. N. M. Crowe. Only the immediate relatives of the couple were present at the wedding. The wedding will come as a surprise to the friends of the couple. Their friends had been anticipating a wedding soon, but hardly expected it to be conducted as quietly as it was, or before early summer.

Both young people are well known and have many friends. The groom is connected with the force at the East End fire station and is deservedly popular. Mr. and Mrs. Howard left this morning for a short trip to New York, and upon their return will be "at home" in the East End, where they will begin housekeeping.

Entertained the Club.

Mrs. Frank E. Grosshans delightfully entertained the members of the Flabbergaster club, at her home, Hill Crest, yesterday afternoon. The event was given in honor of Miss Jennie Simpson, of Peekskill, N. Y., who is the guest of Mrs. Grosshans. The afternoon was a most delightful one, and was much enjoyed by those present.

PATHETIC STORY TOLD BY A WOMAN

Relatives Failed in Promise to Pay Her Wages Agreed Upon.

Mayor Davidson this afternoon listened to one of the most pathetic stories that has been told to him during the several years of his official life. The narrator was a woman, and if her story is true, and there is every reason to believe that it is, she has been the victim of the base ingratitude of relatives near enough of kin to make her welfare almost their first consideration. The woman is Mrs. John White, and she came here three weeks ago to nurse her sister, who was then very seriously ill. The name of the sister will not be made public at this time. Mrs. White was to receive $1 a day for her services as nurse. She entered upon her duties at once and watched almost constantly at the bedside until the patient was on the road to recovery. Not one cent was paid to her during this time.

The sister recovered her health and a few days ago she and her husband made arrangements to leave the city. No provision was made for Mrs. White, and, she states, not one cent of the money due her was paid. If the couple take their departure she will be left destitute in a town in which she is almost a total stranger. She has no other relatives here and is practically homeless.

That people could grow so depraved as to turn a deaf ear to the entreaties of a near relative is almost incomprehensible, and that they should desert one who had done so much in their hour of need is scarcely to be believed. Yet this is true, if Mrs. White's story is correct. The mayor was touched at the pitiable condition of the woman who told her story with tears streaming from her eyes and was highly incensed at the actions of such hard-hearted relatives. He promised to do everything in his power to assist the poor woman, and if there is any law to cover the case it will likely be invoked.

City to Be Cleaned Up.

There remains but one case of contagious disease in the city. After tomorrow the city will be rid of even this one. The case is diphtheria, but although the patient has recovered the quarantine will not be raised until tomorrow. There has been considerable sickness during the winter and citizens will gladly welcome the warm weather, which will put an end to infectious diseases of various kinds. As soon as it is possible the accumulation of filth and debris will be removed from every street and alley in the city.

River Division First.

It is reported that the main line of the Cleveland & Pittsburg railway will not be double tracked from Yellow Creek north till the river division is finished. The contracts have been let for the river division with orders to rush work through as speedily as possible. It is believed that the work on this division will be finished by fall and the work on the part of the line north of Yellow Creek will be pushed.

TUESDAY AGREED ON

As the Time When Vote Will Be Taken on Measure and Amendment.

PROGRESS ON CANAL TREATY.

Agreement Has No Bearing on Cuban Compact, but May Open Way for Early Consideration — Guatemalan and Mexican Treaties Ratified.

Washington, March 12.—Decided progress was made toward reaching an agreement for a vote on the Colombian canal treaty, and when the senate adjourned there was a general understanding that some hour next Tuesday would be definitely agreed on as the time when a vote should be taken on the treaty and all amendments. All statements to this effect have been accompanied by the announcement that there were yet some details to be arranged.

The arrangements were brought about largely by Senator Frye, who, by virtue of long service with Senator Morgan on the committee on foreign relations, has come to be on terms of great intimacy with the Alabama senator. No other senator thus far has shown any inclination to delay the final disposition of the treaty, so that all that was necessary was to secure Mr. Morgan's assent to the taking of the vote. The negotiation was begun early in the day, and after Senators Frye and Morgan had been closeted for some time the latter sought Senator Gorman and talked over the situation with him, with the result indicated.

Democratic senators have practically agreed unanimously to urge an amendment to the twenty-third article of the treaty, relieving it of all question as to the right of the United States to control the canal, and they express confidence in obtaining some Republican votes for it. Many senators also express the conviction that the change in the treaty committing the United States to a policy of non-acquisition of Central American territory should be eliminated as entirely out of place. The indications are, however, that the treaty will be ratified without modification in any particular.

The agreement made has no reference to the Cuban treaty, but opens the way for its early consideration in the senate.

Senator Morgan continued his remarks in the senate in opposition to the canal treaty, but most of the time was given up to the reading of documents by the clerk at Mr. Morgan's request. The few remarks made by him related to the unsanitary conditions in the vicinity of the Panama route and to the division of the money to be paid to Colombia by the United States.

The Guatemalan and Mexican extradition treaties were ratified.

The understanding among the members of the committee on foreign relations is that none of the reciprocity treaties before the committee shall be reported for consideration this session and that the Cuban treaty will be the last to receive the attention of the committee at present.

CONTRACT LABOR IN PRISON.

Committee Submits Report to Michigan Legislature Condemning Practice.

Lansing, Mich., March 12.—Contract labor in state prisons is strongly condemned in a report submitted to the lower house of the state legislature by the committee on the Jackson state prison. The report goes to show that prisoners are hired out to contractors for from 35 to 75 cents a day, whose work would call for from $4 a week up to $4 a day at union rates of wages. The committee expresses the opinion that the contract system enriches the contractors at the expense of the state and says further in its report:

"We cannot understand why an institution of this kind, employing 500 to 600 men every day, cannot be self-sustaining. We are informed that the demand from some contractors for articles manufactured is so great that the prison is unable to fill some of its contracts."

Succeeded on Third Attempt.

Detroit, March 12.—After two attempts at suicide in the county jail, Jacob Beyer, a young farmer, whose home was near Wayne, Mich., made a third and successful effort about 7 o'clock in the county asylum at Eloise, where he had been taken during the day. His skull was crushed in like a broken eggshell by a desperate dive over the third-floor bannister to a hardwood floor 40 feet below. Beyer for two weeks had been confined at the county jail awaiting trial for burglary.

Appointed Consular.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 12.—Francis Keene, of this city, a class-mate of President Roosevelt at Harvard, received notice from Secretary Hay at Washington that he would be appointed United States consul to Florence, Italy.

Commander of Polar Expedition Sails.

New York, March 12.—Anthony Fiala, who is to command the Zeigler expedition in search of the north pole, was a passenger on the steamship Oceanic.
